HUNGARY MAKES NEW CONCESSIONS TO GERMANY

Budapest Said to Agree to Consider Minority's Claims, Harmonize Police With Those of Reich and Fight Reds.

CZECH POLICEMAN KILLED BY NAZIS

His Countrymen Say He Was Victim of Attack by Drunken Officers at Nachrod Near Former Frontier.

BUDAPEST, June 10 (AP).—German Minister of the Interior Wilhelm Frick returned to Berlin tonight with what diplomats described as agreement to a far-reaching co-ordination of Hungarian and Nazi internal policies.

Quarters close to the Government declared that Frick, in conferences lasting five days, had been given expressions of Hungary's willingness to:

1. Consider fully the wishes of the German minority.
2. Harmonize the police with those of Germany.
3. Put her administration at the disposal of anti-Communist activities to be carried on by members of the anti-Comintern pact.

The latter, it was said, includes co-ordination of the Hungarian press with that of Germany.

Informed sources, stating that the Hungarian Government already co-operates with Germany in foreign policy, said they expected Hungary's press, police, and civil administration also would be brought into harmony with those of the Reich.

Hungarian leaders were said to have agreed to this program after Frick had declared it necessary "to defeat Bolshevism."

While here Frick received leaders of the German minority in Hungary, which German statistics place as high as one-tenth of the total 10,000,000 population.

Diplomats said hints were given to Hungarian leaders that members of the minority felt "their wishes" should be taken into account.

The fate of Czecho-Slovakia, which failed to satisfy the Reich regarding the wishes of its German minority, also was said to have been pointed out to Budapest authorities.

CZECH POLICEMAN KILLED BY NAZIS

KLADNO, Bohemia-Moravia, June 10 (AP).—The killing of a Czech policeman in a quarrel with German police was announced tonight shortly after the withholding of additional punitive measures against the Kladno community for the killing of a German police sergeant.

A German communique said the Czech had been shot to death last night at Nachod, the result of an "unfortunate chain of regrettable incidents." No further details were issued.

The impression grew, meanwhile, that German police either had apprehended the killer of the German police sergeant or had clarified the case to their satisfaction.

Nachod Inquiry Begins.

An investigation of the Nachod incident was under way and those involved were being detained. Nachod is near the former frontier between Germany and Czecho-Slovakia.

The Czech version of this affair was:

The Czech policeman, Johann Mueller, and two fellow officers were approached on a street corner by a number of German policemen, apparently intoxicated.

An exchange of words followed and the Czechs, unwilling to argue, withdrew to a small district police station and locked the doors.

The Germans followed, entered the building and began shooting. Mueller was shot in the head.

In Prague, the Reich Protector for Bohemia-Moravia, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, decided to "abstain from reinforcing the present exceptional measures" against citizens of this Czech industrial town for the killing of the sergeant, Wilhelm Kniest.

Von Neurath Intervenes.

Von Neurath, who had ordered the previous restrictions placed on Kladno's 19,000 citizens, intervened tonight to spare them further penalties, even though it had been announced that new "restrictive measures" would be enforced if Kniest's

Mexico-U. S. Oil Parleys Break Down and Cardenas Is Reported Dealing With Mystery Man Davis

Disagreement Over Handling of Wells; Operator Who Arranged Barter Transaction Said to Control Hamburg Refinery.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1939, Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 10. — Negotiations between American oil companies and the Mexican Government over expropriated American properties have broken down, the Post-Dispatch has learned, and Mexico is understood to be entering into a series of new transactions with W. R. Davis of New York, the independent oil operator who a year ago concluded a series of barter deals with Germany for Mexican oil.

Two transactions which Davis recently arranged are said to involve $10,000,000 and another $8,000,000. The Mexican Government in return for oil in these amounts would receive refining machinery which, it is hoped, would enable the Mexicans greatly to increase their oil production.

There has been no word from the Mexican Government concerning the oil issue since Donald Richberg, Washington attorney representing American and British interests, including Standard Oil and Royal Dutch Shell, last talked with President Cardenas early in May.

Richberg on May 9 gave Cardenas a memorandum outlining specific principles of a settlement which both sides were then optimistic of bringing about.

Disagreed on Operation.

On virtually all major points, including compensation for the expropriated properties, the oil companies and the Government were in agreement. The question of actual ownership was left conveniently vague.

But the two parties could not agree on who should operate the Mexican oil industry, both sides insisting on this right. Particularly insistent was Vicente Lombaro Toledano, head of the Mexican Confederation of Labor, and members of the oil workers' union now operating the properties. Ostensibly it is over this difference that the negotiations have come to a standstill.

Meanwhile Davis, who is now in Mexico City, has been extremely active. Reports have come to the State Department here that he has been negotiating the new transactions with apparently unlimited capital.

Behind the Davis deals is an extraordinary network of intrigue involving high political figures in Washington and Mexico City.

How much of this behind the scenes activity will ever become known is doubtful but if and when the whole story of the fight for oil is revealed it will read like a Phillips Oppenheim thriller.

A Man of Mystery.

Davis is a man of mystery, a free lance oil operator with interests scattered all over the world, spending much of his time in airplanes and in urgent discussions on the trans-Atlantic telephone. He is said to control a large refinery in Hamburg, Germany, and much of the oil from expropriated Mexican wells has gone there. But in part at least this has been shipped after refining to the Scandinavian, Baltic and Central European countries.

Just how much was involved in the original Mexican-German deals, engineered by Davis, has never been definitely known. In the first three months Mexico received, according to a reliable source, more than $5,000,000 in cash and barter goods. Machinery, office equipment and newsprint were taken from Germany in exchange for Mexican oil.

State Department officials believe that Germany is behind Davis' present activities in Mexico.

Envoy Refers to Delays.

Mexican Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera would make little comment on the reported breakdown of negotiations. He said there had been "delays" due to the fact that President Cardenas was traveling so rapidly in remoter parts of the country that he could not take time to consider the oil problem.

While holding out the possibility that negotiations might be reopened despite the delays, Embassy officials did not appear optimistic. Richberg, too, expressed doubt that anything further would come of the stalled negotiations. He expects to confer on Monday in New York with Standard Oil officials.

American oil companies have put a valuation as high as $175,000,000 on their properties. The Mexican figure is closer to $50,000,000. British holdings, including vast oil reserves, are far more valuable than American holdings. Following a sharp controversy after the properties were expropriated, the British broke off diplomatic relations with Mexico.

No Reply From Cardenas.

The State Department has followed the negotiations between the companies and the Mexican

NEW DESTROYER REACHES SPEED OF 44 MILES AN HOUR

ABOARD U. S. S. HAMMANN AT SEA, June 10 (AP).—This new $5,500,000 destroyer raced today at between 39 and 40 knots (43 to 44 miles an hour), stopped in 58 seconds or 2½ lengths, turned like a racing car, and speeded 20 knots in reverse.

The occasion was a "builder's trial" off New York harbor, one of three test voyages before the United States Navy accepts the ship from the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. Aboard were navy officers, civilian representatives, and, for the first time in recent years, a group of newspapermen.

The 341-foot, 1500-ton ship, one of 12, was launched Feb. 4 and named for the late Ensign Charles Hazeltine Hammann of the Naval Reserve.

Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowen, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Engineering said the destroyer's two turbine units generated about the same power as the old Leviathan, a ship 33 times as large, and produced twice the horsepower in half the space of the wartime destroyers.

Going at 39-40 knots the helmsman threw the rudder hard to one side, then to the other and the destroyer leaned sharply to port, then to starboard, its quarterdeck almost touching the water. It pulled out of both tests as if it were a high-speed outboard.

TREES, WIRES BLOWN DOWN IN WIND AND RAINSTORM

Sweeps City and County, Flooding Some Streets; Interrupts Mayor's Picnic at Tilles Park.

A heavy wind and rainstorm which swept St. Louis and vicinity yesterday afternoon blew down trees and wires, flooded some streets and interrupted outings, including Mayor Dickmann's picnic for 300 city department heads and subordinate officials at Tilles Park.

At the Weather Bureau .60 of an inch of rain fell between 2:45 and 3. Wind velocity was 31 miles an hour at 2:50.

Trees or heavy limbs were blown down at 4137 Laclede avenue, 3936 Cote Brilliante avenue, 5624 Bartmer avenue, 1921 Bremen avenue and on Florissant road, south of Ferguson, and wires fell in the 200 block of East Grand avenue and at Broadway and Lemp avenue. Five automobiles stalled in two and a half feet of water on Seibert avenue, near Morganford road, Gardenville, and occupants were assisted to dry ground by a deputy sheriff.

A tent, on the campsu of iLndenwood College, St. Charles, used as dressing quarters for players in a commencement pageant, was blown partly down and several large tree limbs fell, one striking a parked automobile. The pageant had been transferred to Roemer Auditorium. Several hundred persons gathered before amplifiers outside the hall were drenched by the downpour.

MAN PUT ON PENSION AGAINST HIS WILL DIES THE SAME DAY

Motorman in Crash That Injured 15 Persons Succumbs After Being Put on Retired List.

George LeClaire, street car motorman, died Friday at his home, 5870 Delmar boulevard, shortly after he had been told he was to be retired immediately. Le Claire, who was 69 years old, was the operator of an Olive street car that crashed into a Jefferson avenue car May 13 when his brakes failed to hold. Fifteen persons were injured slightly.

Absent from work since the accident, LeClaire went Friday to the street car line offices, DeBaliviere and Delmar, to arrange his return to duty, but was informed that he was to be put on pension at once instead of next January when he would have been retired automatically because of his age.

His wife, who accompanied him, said he was upset by the announcement and protested against it in vain. He collapsed when they got home. He had worked for the company 36 years. An inquest will be tomorrow.

Henry Fonda Ill at Canal Zone.

CRISTOBAL, C. Z., June 10 (AP).—Henry Fonda, moving picture actor, went to the Colon hospital today with a high fever after leaving an airliner on which he and his wife were flying homeward from Lima, Peru. The nature of his illness was not disclosed.

TWO ARMY PILOTS CRASH IN STORM, NEITHER IS INJURED

ONE CRAFT CATCHES FIRE ON STRIKING

Other Does Not Burn — Machines Demolished — Both Flyers Use Parachutes.

Two army reserve pilots saved themselves by leaping with parachutes when a torrential rain stalled the motors of their single-seater pursuit planes shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon over Millstadt, St. Clair County, Ill.

The flyers, Lieut. Paul C. Droz and Lieut. George M. McNeese, attached to the Seventy-seventh Pursuit Squadron at Barksdale Field, Shreveport, La., escaped uninjured, but their planes were demolished.

One airplane burst into flames when it crashed on a farm a mile and a half east of Millstadt, 12 miles southeast of St. Louis. The other plane fell in an apple orchard two and a half miles south of Millstadt but did not burn.

The pilots ran into the thunderstorm at 1500 feet, a short time after taking off from Lambert-St. Louis Field on a flight to Nashville, Tenn., en route to their Louisiana station. They had flown to St. Louis from Barksdale Field earlier in the day in Curtiss Wright P 36's, low wing monoplanes.

Storm Severe.

The severity of the storm is indicated by observations at Scott Field, army station about nine miles northeast of the scene of the crashes. There three-quarters of an inch of rain fell in the half hour immediately following the mishaps and wind velocity on the ground reached 50 miles an hour.

The plane which fell east of Millstadt landed on the farm of Emil Buecher. The pilot—it could not be learned which officer was piloting which ship—came down in his parachute near the burning craft.

A truck driver, Ralph Westfall of Millstadt, whose truck was stalled by the rain on a road beside the farm, told a Post-Dispatch reporter the plane was spinning when it struck the earth. He watched the pilot descend a moment later.

The other plane came down on the farm of Eugene Keck and Chris Fritzinger, brothers-in-law. They told a reporter they heard the crash, looked out of the barn where they had taken refuge from the storm, and saw the wreckage of the ship in the orchard 200 yards away.

The pilot of this plane landed in his parachute a mile away. He made his way to the Buecher farm, joined the other officer and together they inspected the wreckage of both craft.

Droz and McNeese returned by automobile to Lambert Field where they went to the National Guard hangar, declining to discuss the mishaps with reporters. They spent the night at the home of a National Guard officer, Lieut. O. F. Harris, 423 Shirley avenue, Ferguson.

They reported by telephone to Air Corps officers at Scott Field. The explanation of the motor failures was made to reporters there by Col. A. G. Fisher, commandant.

DESTROYER SHOWS KING SPEED, TAKES GANGPLANK IN HASTE

Steams Off Three Minutes After Royal Party Embarks, Carrying Landing Gear With It.

FORT HANCOCK, N. J., June 10 (AP).—The United States Navy's destroyer leader Warrington was underway for New York three minutes after the King and Queen boarded it here this morning.

This afternoon the Warrington returned from New York, a 36-mile round trip, to return the gangplank it had carried off in its haste.

HONORARY DEGREE FOR DOG

"Seeing-Eye" Animal Escorted Master to Classes Four Years.

NEWARK, N. J., June 10 (AP).—Newark University has conferred on a dog the honorary degree of "doctor of canine fidelity." The recipient was Bonzo, a "seeing-eye" shepherd dog which for the four years of his master's college course escorted Joseph Melillo, 22 years old, to every class. Melillo was graduated with high honors.

Calling the dog a partner in Melillo's success, Dr. Frank Kingdon, university president, conferred the degree on Bonzo "for those qualities of faithfulness and devotion which have made you a familiar and inspiring figure."

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT AMENDMENTS PASSED BY HOUSE

CHANGES APPROVED BY VOTE OF 361 TO 2

Levy Change Hailed as Recovery Step; Savings to Workers, Employers Put at $1,710,000,000.

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).—With only two dissenting votes, the House approved and sent to the Senate today a set of amendments extending and increasing the benefits of the Social Security Law while keeping the old age pension tax at its present level for the next three years.

The vote was 361 to 2, with Representatives Smith (Rep.) Ohio and Thill (Rep.) Wisconsin, casting the negative votes. Representative Carlson (Rep.) Kansas, first voted "No" then changed to "present," because he was paired with a member who favored the legislation.

The tax amendment has been hailed as a "recovery step" because it would avoid a 50 per cent increase next year in the old age insurance tax.

If the Senate approves the House's action, it will mean that the working man covered by old age insurance will continue to contribute to his retirement pension one per cent of his pay, up to $3000, until January 1, 1943.

The employer pays the same tax as his employe.

Rate Goes Up in 1943.

In 1943, the rate will go up to 1½ per cent. Under present law, the rate is due to go up to 1½ per cent next January 1.

Furthermore, the benefits to be received by persons who reach 65—the retirement age—in the next few years would be greatly increased.

For instance, under present law a man making $100 a month would be entitled to $17.50 a month pension on Jan. 1, 1942, if he had paid the old age tax five years (since Jan. 1, 1937).

Under the amendments, if this man reached 65 on Jan. 1, 1940, or thereafter, he could retire on a pension of $25.75 if he were single, or $38.63 if he were married.

A Ways and Means Committee report estimated "total savings" to taxpayers during the next three years would be $1,710,000,000.

At the same time, it estimated that increased benefits would cost an additional $1,200,000,000 during the next five years. The committee said, however, that the total cost over the next 45 years would be about the same as under present law.

The committee also said that 1,100,000 additional persons—seamen, bank employes and employed persons 65 and over—would be pro-

KING AND QUEEN PRESIDENT'S GUESTS AT HYDE PARK HOME

Queen Signing Register at Fair

QUEEN ELIZABETH signing the guest register in New York yesterday while KING GEORGE chats with GROVER WHALEN, president of the fair.

Roosevelt, His Wife, Son, and Mother, 84, Greet Them Informally — No Entertainment for Them After Dinner for 30.

PARTY TO ATTEND CHURCH TODAY

Picnic and Dinner to Follow With 3 Hours to Themselves for Guests—Most of Suite Sleeps on Train.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 10 (AP). — The home of President Roosevelt offered a retreat tonight for King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England, weary but happy over the tremendous, daylong ovation with which New York City's millions greeted them.

After a drive up the Hudson River through a light but steady rain, the royal pair turned into the President's quiet estate at 7:41 p. m., (5:41 p. m. St. Louis time) there to be greeted once again by Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt.

With the President and his wife when the royal party swung up the tree-shaded drive were the President's 84-year-old mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, and his son, James.

The President's wife stepped forward first to welcome the Queen with a handshake, then turned and introduced her visitor to her mother-in-law, after which the King moved forward so that she could be presented to him.

Flags Over Porch.

Over the great porch hung four flags, in this order: the royal standard, always evident wherever the King is; the British flag; the American stars and stripes and the President's flag.

Members of the royal party said Poughkeepsie gave them the most enthusiastic welcome after they left New York City. State department officials said about 1000 persons a mile lined the highway for the entire 75-mile drive.

It was only yesterday in Washington the King and Queen and President and Mrs. Roosevelt parted after a long round of formal affairs.

The royal motor cavalcade drove through the well-guarded countryside without delay, once the party was through with its engagement at Columbia University.

Informal Greeting.

Within the century-old home of the President, the royal couple found quiet and an informal restfulness.

It was expected that King George and Queen Elizabeth would find the repose of the President's 1200-acre estate in striking contrast to the pretentious grounds and palaces of Britain's sovereigns.

In the cool study of the stone and stucco house, with ivy clambering over its walls, President and King had their first chance to speak more than pleasantries.

Roosevelt already had indicated that he and the King probably would touch on international affairs. He said the conversations would not be of special significance.

One bedroom each was set aside for the British monarchs. And they could retire as early as they wished, because no entertainment was planned after dinner served for 30 persons.

Dinner Hour and Half Late.

The King and Queen descended from their second floor rooms for dinner at 9:15 p. m. (7:15 p. m. St. Louis time), an hour and a quarter after the meal was originally scheduled. It took another 15 minutes to introduce them to the rest of the guests.

King George was attired in a dinner jacket similar to those worn by other men present. The Queen wore the most informal dinner

NEW YORK GIVES ROYAL PAIR THUNDEROUS WELCOME

King and Queen Drive Through City, Visit Fair and Columbia University —Cheered by Millions.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—In six hours thunderous with the welcome of more than 3,000,000 residents of a city lost long ago to his empire, King George and Queen Elizabeth paid a historic visit today to this metropolis of the West and bowed at the New York World's Fair to a moving demonstration of affection for them.

Then, after a brief call at Columbia University, the royal Britons left at 3:15 p. m. (St. Louis time) for Hyde Park to rejoin President Roosevelt for a Sunday visit before returning to Canada for their trip back home.

Through 51 miles of city streets they rode, smiling to a roaring salute from the people and to the almost continuous roll of drums and the blare of brasses.

Before the end, the tanned, slight King appeared weary though profoundly affected.

But the Queen—who had brightly answered "Isn't that a lovely thing for you to say" when the Mayor's secretary told her on her arrival "All New Yorkers are in love with you already"—looked in the highest of spirits and vigor through it all.

"It's More American."

In the long procession to and from the fair the King rode not on the Queen's right, as is customary abroad, but on her left. He was understood to explain, with a remark that was characteristic of the easy behavior of both: "It's more American. Let us do it that way."

During the great pageant there were many such human touches. The King skipping his luncheon cocktail but the Queen taking hers, Both omitting their dessert to hurry things up. The calvacade having been made late because the royal pair, happy at the presence of such vast crowds, had asked the procession go slower than had been planned.

Then, as they stepped upon a terrace of the fair's Federal building, standing easily and with no silk-hatted personages with them, there was such a tumult of affectionate shouts from the crowd that the Queen blinked her eyes rapidly to hold back the almost visible tears.

There was no smile on the King's lips—he looked solemnly conscious of an extraordinary tribute.

Chief Crowds in Streets.

Despite the demonstration at the fair, the number who saw their Majesties there was much smaller than had been expected: The official attendance just before they left was put at a little more than 147,000. The great turnout was on the streets of New York—hundreds of thousands of obscure men and women and children who stood patiently to gape at and to cheer these young rulers of an empire of 500,000,000 people.

They landed near the site where

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).—King George's sense of humor was compared by Senator Pittman, (Dem.), Nevada, today with that of the late President Calvin Coolidge, renowned for his dry, New England wit.

The Nevadan, chairman of the reception committee when the King and Queen met Senators and Representatives in the Capitol yesterday, related a conversation he had with the King just after the Monarch had entered the rotunda.

"You have some beautiful paintings here," the King was quoted as saying, as he surveyed the canvases which depict early American history.

"Yes," Pittman said he replied, "they are all famous works of art."

"I see they deal with the early history of your country," the King continued.

The King glanced at the canvas, showing the baptismal scene, in 1613. He let his eye travel around the rotunda walls, taking in the paintings which depict the surrender of the English General Burgoyne at Saratoga in 1781 and the surrender of General Cornwallis at Yorktown, in 1781.

"Oh, yes, I see there are some of a later period, too."

PENDERGAST TAKEN FROM HOSPITAL BACK TO CELL

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 10 (AP).—T. J. Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic political boss, serving a term for income tax evasion, has been removed from the Federal penitentiary hospital and returned to the prisoners' quarantine cell block, it was learned today.

Pendergast was taken to the prison hospital a week ago when he suffered a serious heart attack. His condition today was reported greatly improved.

ICKES SAYS 'LOOK' DISTORTS ARTICLE HE WROTE ON 1940

PICTURES INFER HE ATTACKS GARNER

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes today made public the original text of an article by him entitled "Why I Want Roosevelt to Run Again," which he declares the magazine "Look" dated June 20 has issued in a distorted and mutilated form, supplementing and transposing the article, and misrepresenting the author by "grotesque editorial and illustrative material."

Ickes says he was invited by the publication to express his personal views without restriction, and that a promise to submit the proofs to him was not kept until after the issue went to press.

Ickes declares he has refrained from taking legal action because the editors have promised to publish the article as originally written in the next issue. He charges further that the magazine put out a promotional release "naming and reflecting on individuals whom I did not even mention in my article. This material was so presented as to mislead the public into believing that I injected these men into the discussion, while actually this was done by the editors of 'Look' without my knowledge or approval."

Infers He Wrote It All.

The article as published is headed: "I Want Roosevelt for a Third Term; a Picture-Article by Harold L. Ickes." It consists of four pages of photographs with captions in which material taken from the original article is mingled with editorial additions without benefit of quotation marks. The inference would be that Ickes wrote the entire text.

Ickes takes particular objection to a strip of photographs representing Vice-President Garner, Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Postmaster-General Farley, Thomas E. Dewey and Senators Vandenburg, Taft and Lodge. None of these men was mentioned in Ickes' article, although he is represented as saying: "Pick from the above group of prominent candidates of both parties one who could be influential in world affairs while at the same time commanding the respect of his own people."

Under the strip, as if Ickes were making an avowed, direct attack on Garner and others of the men pictured with him, is the following passage from the article: "This is no time for a candidate whose 'qualifications' consist of the fact that he has been chirping weak opposition to everything the world's greatest democratic leader has done, or a candidate whose claim to office consists of the traitorous knifing in the back of the commander-in-chief to whom he has sworn fealty, or one whose 'strength' is that of knowing nothing, saying nothing, doing nothing."

Although Ickes did not mention Charles Evans Hughes, James C. Reynolds or William E. Borah, there is a portrait of Chief Justice Hughes with a caption, apparently written by Ickes, as follows: "Chief Justice Hughes (above) has spent 15 years on the Supreme Court; Justice McReynolds, 25. Borah has been a Senator since 1907." What Ickes actually wrote was:

"In principle, I fail to see why any man is qualified to serve 30 years in Congress while a man, of equal or greater ability, should be limited to eight years in the White House." He added: "Nor can I see, as a matter of logic, how one can argue for unlimited terms for Judges, and, at the same time, for a strictly limited tenure for Presidents."

He describes his original production as "a serious contribution, based on historical research and political judgment and conviction." One important statement which the magazine omitted is a forthright declaration that liberals who left the Republican party to follow Franklin D. Roosevelt, like Ickes himself, "will not stultify themselves by voting for a reactionary Democrat," and that "if they have no other choice they will prefer a Republican to a Democratic reactionary."

Other Passages Deleted.

Among other significant passages deleted are the following:

"On the subject of a third term, or of any number of terms for that matter,, the Constitution is eloquently silent."

"About four years after Washington's Farewell Address, Jefferson . . . set down conditions as a result of which he, who had originally been opposed to more than one term for the President, might be willing, himself, to accept a third term."

"It does not make sense to insist that the country should not retain as its leader its best qualified statesman merely because George Washington for purely personal and easily understandable reasons, decided that he did not care to accept a third term."

"From an article that appeared only a few days ago it would appear that Woodrow Wilson was seriously considering running for a third term. This statement was based upon current notes kept by Senator Carter Glass, who, at the time, was Secretary of the Treasury in the Wilson Cabinet."

Washington's "Amendment."

"As a matter of fact, Washington wanted to retire at the end of his first term. I suppose that if he had done so we would now have 'a one-term tradition.'"

"It was to be left to ingenious political opportunists of a later generation, seeking to give to partisan expediency a cloak of respectability to discover that Washington meant what no contemporary understood him to mean—that Washington sought, by mere personal dictum, in effect to amend the Constitution."

If any of Washington's contemporaries, Ickes proceeds, understood the Farewell Address to express the conviction that a President should never under any circumstances accept a third term, then none of them—including Jefferson, Hamilton, John Adams, Madison and Franklin—"seems ever to have said or written anything on the subject."

"Economic Antoinettes."

In characteristic phrase, Ickes dubs as "economic Marie Antoinettes" those who favored a third term for Calvin Coolidge and oppose one for Roosevelt. Their present attitude, he declares, is due to their fear of another four years in the White House for "a man who does not believe in frying financial fat from those who are already too spare of rib." The result of Theodore Roosevelt's voluntary disavowal of a third term in 1908, in the Secretary's opinion, was "the four sterile years of Taft." It is his belief that had Theodore Roosevelt not died, he would have been elected for a third term in 1920.

"If it is admitted," Ickes concludes, "as seems to me self-evident, that only a liberal Democratic ticket can hope to win in 1940, then the next question is: What liberal can be nominated on the Democratic ticket? the liberal who can most surely be nominated and, therefore, elected on the Democratic ticket is the man who was overwhelmingly elected in 1932 and re-elected by an even greater vote in 1936."

KING AND QUEEN GUESTS OF PRESIDENT AT HYDE PARK HOME

dress in which she had appeared thus far in this country.

Perhaps the two persons most perturbed over the delay were the President's mother and Mary Campbell, the family cook.

The senior Mrs. Roosevelt had been ready in all her finery to step into the role of co-hostess to Their Majesties at 6:15, the hour set for their arrival. It was understood she was fidgeting a bit by the time the royal car drove up to Hyde Park house.

And Mary—that was the only name which Mrs. Roosevelt could recall today—had in common with the elder Mrs. Roosevelt the worries over the possibility that a fine dinner would be dried out and spoiled.

Menu for Royal Pair.

The menu for the dinner follows: Clear soup and cheese straws. Halibut mousse. Lobster brandy sauce. Bread and butter sandwiches. Fillet of beef with mushrooms. Virginia ham. Young green beans, asparagus lettuce and tomato salad. French rolls. Assorted cheeses and crackers. Ice cream and cake, fresh strawberries. Coffee.

Members of the British party not attending the dinner were invited to dine at the homes of neighbors of Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt said the hostesses were Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, Mrs. Vincent Astor and Mrs. Gerald Morgan.

Guests at Dinner.

The Roosevelt dinner guests were: King George and Queen Elizabeth. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada; the British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay; Lady Nonburnhome and Lady Katharine Seymour, ladies in waiting; the Earl of Eldon, lord in waiting to the King; the Earl of Airlie, Lord Chamberlain to the Queen; Alan Lascelles, acting private secretary to the King; Lieutenant-Colonel Piers W. Legh and Commander E. M. C. Abel-Smith, equerries to the King.

Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Morgenthau; Rear Admiral James O. Richardson, American naval aid to the King; Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan, naval aid to the President; George T. Summerlin, chief of protocol of the State Department; Miss Marguerite Lehand, the President's personal secretary; Mrs. J. Roosevelt Roosevelt, widow of the President's half-brother.

Three of the Roosevelts' sons, John, Franklin Jr. and James and the wives of Franklin and James; Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, the wife of another son who had a radio engagement; Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson, Mrs. Roosevelt's cousin, and Mrs. Richard F. Babcock, a friend of the family.

Most of Party Stays on Train.

The Roosevelt home is spacious enough for the family, but most o fthe British royal party had to remain on the King's blue and silver special train at nearby Poughkeepsie. Only two ladies in waiting, two gentlemen attendants of the King, and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada were able to share in its hospitality for the night.

Three Hours to Themselves.

For three hours tomorrow afternoon, Mrs. Roosevelt said, George and Elizabeth "can do just what they please." They will be invited to drive about the estate or countryside or to swim in a blue-lined pool two miles through the woods near the President's Dutchess Hill cottage.

Those three hours of respite will be sandwiched between a picnic at the cottage and dinner at Hyde Park house.

Tomorrow morning the President and his royal guests will attend services in St. James Episcopal Church.

Fresh green stuffs and strawberries from the Roosevelt gardens were on the menus during the stay of Their Majesties.

"I never knew Ma to buy anything like that," Mrs. Roosevelt explained. "Ma" is her affectionate name for the President's mother, the actual owner of Hyde Park house.

From a side porch or newly groomed lawns, the King and Queen may look down on the Hudson, its waters nearly hidden by the verdant branches of tall old trees. Across the river diagonally is the "heaven" of Father Divine, New York Negro evangelist.

Back from the river, the estate rolls eastward more than three miles. And it is at the top of its highest point, 400 feet above the river, where rests the cottage designed by the President himself.

That was the scenic spot selected for the picnic. There will be hot dogs, if it is cool, Mrs. Roosevelt promised.

In addition to hot dogs the picnic lunch tomorrow will offer cold ham, smoked and plain turkey, salads, sandwiches, Boston brown bread, baked beans, shortcake, doughnuts, gingerbread, cookies, beer and soft drinks.

If it rains, the picnic will be converted into a buffet lunch at the President's home.

A wooden platform has been tacked onto the porch and an Indian Princess, Te Ata, will tell legends of the red men and another Indian, Ish-Ti-Obi, will sing. Both are Oklahoma Indians.

For two hours before the King and Queen were due at the Roosevelt home, the Albany-New York post road was closed to traffic. Even persons whose estates front on the highway were barred.

Helmeted soldiers, each with a rifle, were spaced at regular intervals along the thoroughfare, supplementing the New York State police and secret service.

HITLER DRAFTING ECONOMIC PLAN, FRENCH REPORT

According to Their Version, Fuehrer Will Offer to Aid Peace to Get Trade Concessions.

PARIS, June 10 (AP).—French diplomats tonight appraised reports reaching diplomatic circles from Germany that Reichsfuehrer Hitler was drafting a specific plan for world appeasement to offer to the United States, France and Britain next month.

(In Berlin, sources close to the Fuehrer expressed surprise at the reports and said that as far as they know Hitler had no such plan in mind.)

There was speculation here whether the reports, which originated in usually well-informed Berlin sources, might be designed to sound out the possibilities of concessions following British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax's expressed willingness to consider a world conference on Nazi demands if Germany would renounce a policy of force.

The reports asserted Hitler already was working on the draft plan of proposals to be presented in a speech at the launching of a new German warship early in July and indicated that he would offer to trade peaceful co-operation in return for economic concessions, perhaps colonies.

The reports, which received no open, official confirmation, however, gave no hint of the specific nature of the plan.

Some French sources said they saw an indication that Germany might be preparing the way for a proposed economic settlement in a speech today by Count Johannes von Welczeck, German Ambassador to Paris.

Speaking at the Lille Exposition of Social Progress, Count von Welczckek praised its theme as 'particularly appropriate for aiding a better understanding between peoples."

"For in the last analysis," he said, "it is social progress, that is to say, the creation of healthy living conditions for its citizens, which is the proudest course which a Government can set itself to follow as an ideal."

He declared it was in a spirit of "peaceful, constructive labor" that he opened the German exhibit in Hitler's name.

4TH OCEAN AIR MAIL FLIGHT

New Clipper Takes Off for Europe With Films of King.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—The fourth flight on Pan American Airways' trans-Atlantic air mail schedule was undertaken today by a third new clipper ship designated only as "PAA 21." The third round-trip flight was completed with the arrival of the "Yankee Clipper."

The "PAA 21" took off from Port Washington at 2:33 p. m. with a crew of 12, five observers and 207 pounds of newsreel films and newspaper photographs of the British King and Queen. Capt. Arthur E. Laporte was in command.

New York Gives British Royalty Tremendous Welcome

the statue of George IV had been melted down by the angry colonists to make bullets to fight a war for independence and near the spot, too, where George Washington was inaugurated as first President of the United States.

But they landed in friendliness, in a scene where the old quarrel was forgotten in the memories of the long peace since, to a welcome as impressive, if not more noisy, than ever was given to any other man and woman reaching these shores.

Salutes Statue of Liberty.

As the destroyer Warrington, on which they rode from nearby Fort Hancock, N. J., to Manhattan's tip at the Battery, pulled by the Statue of Liberty, the King went from starboard to port and stood stiffly at salute. The Queen stood rigid beside him.

The harbor, lying under a light haze in the intense sun, burst into tremendous noise and life.

Coast Guard cutters racing ahead scattered the pleasure craft from the area of the Battery pier. The whistles of harbor craft gave forth a rising bass roar; overhead cruised a fleet of the U. S. Army's "flying fortresses."

The city's fireboats spouted shining streams; blimps moved silently back and forth in the sky. The crowd at the Battery—as shabbily venerable an area as the King and Queen saw in their trip through the city and to the World's Fair, but brave in the colors of the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes—strained their throats in shouts of welcome.

Across the water, the army's batteries on Governors Island boomed out the 21-gun salute.

U. S. and British Anthems Played.

Bands, perspiring in the heat, burst forth with the old hymn of the Empire, "God Save the King," and with the national anthem, the Star Spangled Banner.

As the King left the Warrington the royal standard was lowered from the foremast to indicate that he had stepped ashore.

Their Majesties walked across a wide red carpet in disembarking and were met by two top-hatted representatives of this city and State, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia and Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

There was handshaking all around, and then Mrs. LaGuardia presented to the Queen a bouquet of red roses. Her Majesty wore a pale blue dress with a cape, a hat of the same shade turned up at one side, and carried orchids. The King, in an oxford gray cutaway, took off his gray topper and extended his hand.

With the Queen he entered a limousine, the glass windows of which were bullet proof, and set out on the ride to the Fair. The band burst into "Rule Brittania" as the procession moved off slowly, under a rain of ticker tape—Lower Manhattan's traditional gesture of welcome but one which the authorities had sought to avoid.

On the roofs of the nearby buildings stood policemen armed with rifles, and on all the 51-mile route through the city detectives examined rooftops and overpasses.

About 20 persons in the crowd who fainted, were treated by physicians along the route from the Battery.

The procession, following West street to Duane, the West Side elevated highway to Seventy-second street, the East Drive to Central Park, then north to Ninety-sixth street, then to the great Triborough bridge and out Grand Central Parkway to the Fair, fell quickly behind schedule.

A minor delay was averted when the Valhalla Junior High School Band of 50 pieces from Westchester County, which had its music set to play "God Save the King," was ordered to play something else. Playing the British national anthem, it was explained, would have required the procession to stop.

King George personally was responsible for slowing down the royal progress to a speed far less than that called for in the program.

Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine twice sent word back to the King's car that the "road was clear" only to get word by courier that His Majesty and the Queen had agreed they should travel slowly through the city to give the people a chance to see them and themselves a chance to see the city.

Children Wave Union Jack.

At every available sot stood unnumbered thousands—some calling out greetings, some standing awed at the only welcoming celebration of the kind ever held in this city of parades. Children—hundreds of thousands of them — stood in groups, waving the Union Jack.

The King and Queen saw most of the city—its tenements and mighty skyscrapers, its best and its worst.

Television cameras recorded the arrival of the King and Queen at the Fair. The television screen showed the roofs of the Fair exhibit buildings jammed with spectators and a crush of people around Perylon Hall.

At the fair a vast throng saw them. The total number of those who got at least a glimpse of the royal entourage was figured by Commissioner Valentine at 3,000,000, counting the vast crowds along the way from the Battery to the fair grounds, the royal entourage was more than half an hour behind schedule in arriving at the fair. As their car entered the grounds under escort, the entrance was cleared of all save police and representatives of the Federal Government.

The 21-gun salute roared out again—this time from Fort George Washington. Two dozen Indians, holding aloft the flags of the fair, stood at attention.

Above the roar of the motorcycle escort rose a long series of cheers and massed troops—400 soldiers, 200 marines and 200 sailors —snapped to attention. Two bands and a bugle corps played the British National Anthem while the crowd screamed and whistled.

After reviewing the assembled troops in the Court of Peace at the fair, the King and the royal party had luncheon in the Federal Building, while outside, bands steadily played martial airs. The King appeared tired but the Queen showed no weariness.

Both shook many, many hands—the hands of at least 300 persons in a reception in Perylon Hall, where 260 others, showing frank disappointment, were introduced collectively.

Among those presented was the Italian Commissioner-General at the fair. Bowing before the King, he raised his arm in the Fascist Salute.

The King and Queen were in the chamber for 21 minutes. Seated on two gold brocade chairs on the dais, facing a $400,000 tapestry, they cooled off in the welcome conditioned air. Both looked just a little sunburned and warm.

Intermittent Rain.

Intermittent rain fell through the sunshine and the fair grounds, a glittering area of white modernistic buildings and green shrubbery, were alive with umbrellas and folded papers used to ward off the rain.

There was a curious mixture of the formal and the informal in the visit of the royal pair to the fair and it was seen too, in the music, which ranged from heavy marches to such popular stuff as the "Penny Serenade" and "Hold Tight."

The greatest demonstration at the fair occurred after the King and Queen finished luncheon and stepped out to the terrace of the Federal Building. The crowd roared a great welcome and the Queen smiled broadly, but the King was serious. In the interval between the British and American anthems he whispered to her and she nodded in acknowledgement.

The Queen appeared moved, blinking her eyes rapidly on the last notes of the Star Spangled Banner, while the King stood looking tired but intent, as though he were concentrating to take in the whole scene.

The King and Queen walked slowly away then, the crowd's tumult continuing, to the adjacent Eire (Ireland) building, the first stop on a trip of inspection which included the Canadian, British and Rhodesian exhibits.

Visit to Columbia University.

They left the fair grounds at 4:30 p. m. (2:30 p. m. St. Louis time) amid one more in the long series of demonstrations of affection from the crowd, and headed back through the city to Columbia University, their last call in New York.

As they rode through the uptown area they were greeted by about half the population of Harlem.

At Columbia's library they met 400 business and professional leaders in ordinary business dress and professors wearing mortar boards and academic robes.

They entered the library over a blue carpet stretching to the street and briefly occupied a dais, over which was hung a blue canopy.

In an address of welcome, which was more like an old-fashioned proclamation, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia thus greeted them:

"May it please Your Majesties: the trustees and faculty of Columbia University, in the City of New York, successors to the Governors of the college of the Province of New York in the City of New York in America, created by virtue of the charter granted by George II, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, defender of the Faith, etc., under date of Oct. 31, 1754,

"Offer heartfelt greetings to Your Majesties on the occasion of their gracious visit to Morningside Heights. . . ."

After an orchestra had played "God Save the King" Dr. Butler showed the royal couple the original charter enclosed in a frame on a stand; then both signed the guest book of the university.

The skies looked threatening when they finally walked out slowly to the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance"—written for Victoria's Diamond Jubilee—and entered a closed car for the trip to Hyde Park.

Red Bank, N. J., Greets Royal Pair on Way to New York.

The King and Queen boarded the destroyer Warrington at Fort Hancock, N. J., after an automobile ride from Red Bank.

Guards stationed about 25 yards apart along the route kept back shouting crowds, that numbered altogether about 100,000 on the 16-mile route.

The royal train arrived at Red Bank at 5:59 a. m., Eastern standard time (4:59, St. Louis time).

The 13-car silver-and-blue train, with curtains drawn on most of its coaches, pulled into the little frame station in the town center on Monmouth street, where United States Army troops and State and municipal policemen stood guard.

Leaving the train at 8:03 a. m., King George and Queen Elizabeth received friendly handclasps, official greetings and the cheers of massed thousands.

HAMILTON-BROWN NEED PUT AT MORE THAN $500,000

Trustees Recommend Liquidation Unless New Capital Can Be Raised and Claims Paid.

U. S. JUDGE MOORE POSTPONES ACTION

Extends Until Next Friday Final Date for Filing of Reorganization Plan for Shoe Firm.

Immediate liquidation of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. unless stockholders or creditors can raise $500,000 in fresh capital and pay off all unsecured claims was recommended to United States District Judge George H. Moore yesterday by James K. Vardaman Jr. and John W. Lake, co-trustees of the company.

Judge Moore took no action on the recommendation and, at the request of John S. Leahy, attorney for the company, extended until next Friday the final date for the filing of any reorganization plan.

Leahy attacked a financial statement of the company's condition submitted by the trustees, saying it was "unfair, inaccurate and did not reflect the actual situation." In it the trustees wrote down the stated net worth of the company by $1,254,000, cutting down its statements of assets, accounts receivable, plants and equipment and patterns and dies.

Founded 56 Years Ago.

Established 56 years ago, the company was once the largest manufacturer of shoes in America. It has weathered two receiverships in the last nine years.

In the event the company is liquidated, Leahy said, the 800 stockholders, owning 200,000 shares, would probably receive nothing. The stock was quoted at 25 cents on the St. Louis Stock Exchange yesterday.

The reasons which, Vardaman told the Court, make a "financially sound reorganization impossible," except by the injection of fresh capital, are:

"A distressed condition generally with a lack of working capital and lack of available liquid current assets, the relatively small equity which the company has in its current assets because of the large amount of accounts payable secured by chattel mortgages, a large amount of unsecured accounts payable to the trade, and an indeterminate but disproportionately large amount of contingent liabilities composed primarily of preferred labor claims and mechanics' liens."

Labor Claim Against Firm.

The labor claim is largely an order by the National Labor Relations Board, upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, that the company must rehire and give back pay to 103 employes at its Union, Mo., plant who were fired for union activity. Local 125 of the United Shoe Workers of America, a CIO affiliate, contends the total back pay will aggregate about $150,000, but the company maintains it should be settled for about $20,000.

Leahy told the Court that it was impossible to make any plans for reorganization until "the labor factor is determined." He was answered by George Duemler, attorney for the CIO union, who said it was his understanding that the company, before reopening its Union plant, would have to re-establish the status quo at the time when the Labor Board charges were filed.

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

MOVIE UNION PROBLEM PUT UP TO COURT BY RECEIVERS

Judge Takes Under Advisement Request for Instructions as to Negro Theater.

A request by the receivers of the Motion Picture and Projection Machine Operators' Union, Local 143, in dealing with the Criterion Theater, 2644 Franklin avenue, where a Negro organization is demanding the employment of Negro operators, was taken under advisement yesterday by Circuit Judge Ernest P. Oakley.

George Pliakos, 46 Lewis place, owner of the theater, signed a contract with Local 143, until recently under the domination of John Nick and Clyde Weston, which does not expire until Sept. 1, 1940. However, the Colored Cashiers' Society placed pickets in front of the theater a week ago asserting that Negro operators should be employed in the place because it is patronized by Negroes.

Lawrence H. Whitson, president of Local 143A of the union, a Negro group working in co-operation with Local 143, declared that his organization had not ordered the picketing, but added that he thought the Cashiers' Society had a right to demand the employment of Negroes. He said there were two theaters in St. Louis patronized zy Negroes but not under the jurisdiction of his local.

VETERANS TO STAGE SHOW TO BUY PERSHING PORTRAIT

Proceeds of Wrestling Event to Go Toward $5000 Purchase Price.

The Allied Veterans' Committee, representing the American Legion and its auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars and its auxiliary, Disabled American Veterans, Jewish War Veterans, Italian War Veterans and United Spanish War Veterans, will seek to sell $3700 worth of tickets. The show, billed as a championship wrestling event, will be given at Municipal Auditorium.

INNOCENT PURCHASERS KEEP LOTS SWINDLER SOLD THEM

Former Owner, Who Contends He Was Defrauded in Deal, Loses Suit to Recover Property.

The suit of August L. Haupt, 5138 Washington boulevard, to recover four lots in St. Louis County which he alleged were wrongfully conveyed by John A. Rosenfeld was dismissed yesterday by Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley. The Court held that William Dowling and Edward F. Wuigk were innocent purchasers, having no knowledge of any fraud by Rosenfeld, now under four-year sentence for mail fraud.

Dowling paid $850 and traded two other lots and Wuigk paid $500 and a lot for the Haupt lots. Haupt admitted he had signed deeds conveying title to Rosenfeld. Later he received title to other property, which he told the Court he did not want. He said his sale price was to be $2850.

Rosenfeld was represented by an attorney, who contended the Court could not make an effective order against him since he no longer holds title to the lots. Rosenfeld was sentenced in United States District Court for mail fraud in the sale of fake civil service courses.

THOUSANDS GREET BOMBER CARRYING BODY OF SARABIA

Message of Condolence From Roosevelt to Mexican President on Flyer's Death.

MEXICO CITY, June 10 (AP).—Francisco Sarabia, Mexico's foremost flyer, returned home today to receive in death one of the greatest tributes the Republic ever paid a hero. A crowd of about 200,000 thronged the airport, where a United States army bomber landed in mid-afternoon with the body of the flyer after a non-stop flight from Washington.

Another 300,000 lined streets along the four-mile route to the Federal Communications Building where the flyer was borne to lie in state until services tomorrow afternoon. The bomber was preceded by a regular passenger plane from Brownsville, Tex., which brought Sarabia's widow. She came from Washington, where she had seen her husband plunge to his death in the Potomac River last Wednesday on starting home after setting a non-stop flight record from Mexico City to New York.

At the airport were the United States Embassy staff, ranking Government officials, thousands of soldiers, police and a detachment of sailors. President Lazaro Cardenas, absent in northern Mexico, was represented by Cabinet members. The bomber, topped by Mexican and United States flags, brought a message of condolence and good will from President Roosevelt to Cardenas.

PROFIT BASE AT ISSUE IN SALE OF BRIDGE

Purchase of Chain-of-Rocks Span by Village Depends on Deal With U. S.

Consummation of the $2,300,000 sale of the Chain-of-Rocks highway toll bridge to the village of Madison, which had been expected last week, now depends on negotiations with the Federal Government over income taxes on the deal, the Post-Dispatch was told yesterday by a principal in the transaction.

The question of the base on which to figure profits on the sale is at issue. The price of the property at a foreclosure sale in 1932 was $600,000, which was described at the time as a nominal bid.

Promoters of the sale to Madison have contended for a much higher base, understood to be more than twice as high. The higher the base, the lower would be the tax payable.

It was learned that about $125,000 has been set aside for Federal and Missouri income taxes. The promoters are represented as holding that it will not be possible to carry out the sale if the spread of profit subject to taxation is made too large.

Plan to Sell Bonds.

The same informant told the Post-Dispatch that arrangements had been made to sell the $2,300,000 in Madison revenue bonds on the bridge to three brokerage houses at a price of 98, or a discount of $2 from par, while the village would receive par. The discount of $46,000 would represent one of the expenses to be drawn out of the residue of proceeds after retiring bonds and stocks of the present owners, the Kingshighway Bridge Co.

R. M. Sherritt of Chicago, principal promoter of the sale, told the Post-Dispatch last month that chief profits of his corporation would be derived from sale of the revenue bonds abo par. He could not be reached yesterday to explain the change in circumstances. The syndicate has been offering the bonds for sale to the public at a price of 103 for the last 10 days, on a when-as-and-if-issued basis.

A new estimate of the expense and the possible profit fund was obtained, putting it at $276,000. This was made up of $176,000 remaining from net proceeds of the bonds at 98 (after paying off the old bond and stockholders and settting aside $29,000 for bridge improvements), together with $60,000 for net assets of a wholly-owned subsidiary and $40,000 for net cash assets of the parent company as of June 15.

The 26,280 shares of common stock outstanding would be called at $27 a share. A spokesman for the bridge company estimated that net earnings for the last fiscal year, after payment of bond interest and income taxes and deduction for depreciation were about $55,000, or about $2.09 a share. It was estimated yesterday that more than 6000 shares of common stock had been deposited by small holders so far for immediate redemption, besides a block of about 15,500 under the control of the Sarjem Corporation.

Estimated Sarjem Profit.

It was declared by the informant that a profit for the Sarjem Corporation might be the $22,593 remaining after all expenses of the sale and corporate liquidation were paid, under the present tentative estimates.

Representatives of the bridge company said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that investors in the $1,400,000 mortgage bonds of the original company which opened the bridge in 1929, woud lose nothing, except for the loss of interest, at 6½ per cent, for about a year and a half, the period of receivership preceding the foreclosure. The new company gave them income bonds, dollar for dollar, at the same interest rate and, with some delay, paid the interest in full.

In addition, the bondholders were given two shares of the new common stock for each $1000 in bonds, which now would be called for $54, and in the call of their bonds they would receive a 5 per cent premium. Some of the present bondholders, it was said, had bought their bonds as low as $20, but would cash in at $105. The bonds are said to be held largely by the investing public.

Holdings of preferred and common stock in the original company were wiped out in the reorganization. The old company issued $600,000 in debentures, for which 10,800 shares of common stock in the new company were substituted; this stock, at the $27 price, would yield $291,600.

LAGUARDIA TELLS IOWA WOMAN WHAT A CORN FRITTER IS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 10.—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, who admits a faulty memory for names and faces, told a good story on himself today, after the departure of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England.

At a luncheon in the Federal Building at the World's Fair, given by Commissioner-General Edward J. Flynn and Mrs. Flynn, the Mayor thought he knew the woman on his right but he couldn't place her. He finally decided she was of the royal entourage, and, when he saw her toying with a corn fritter, part of the "typically American" repast which Flynn served, helped out as follows:

"That's a corn fritter. Typically American dish. Quite a delicacy. I think you'll like it."

His luncheon partner smiled and said, in a typically American voice:

"I think you've forgotten me, Mr. Mayor. I'm Mrs. Henry Wallace."

Hold-up Men Make Customers Lie on Floor; One Hits Proprietor With Revolver.

The St. Louis Loan & Mercantile Co., a pawnshop at 2018 Franklin avenue, was robbed of about $300 at 5:15 p. m. yesterday by three Negroes, all armed.

The robbers forced three customers and a Negro porter to lie on the floor and made the proprietor, Sam Silverberg, open a cash register. When he moved too slowly one of the robbers hit him on the side of the head with his revolver.

After scooping the money from the cash drawer the robbers ordered Silverberg and the others into a back room and fled.

A filling station at 5600 Natural Bridge avenue was held up and robbed of $13 last night by a man, who followed the attendant into the station after buying gasoline, while a woman companion remained in the automobile. The car had been stole a short time earlier from the 5300 block of Cabanne avenue. It was abandoned by the robbers at Clara and Easton avenues.

WIFE BREAKS TAVERN WINDOW

Says Owner Ignored Her Requests Not to Sell Husband Liquor.

A woman who broke the plate glass window of a tavern at 1744 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, yesterday told police she did so because the proprietor had ignored her repeated requests that he sell no more liquor to her husband.

The woman, who said she was Mrs. Agnes Pressnell, 1737 Gaty avenue, broke the window with her shoe. She said her husband, Fred, had not been bringing any of his pay home to her and their five children.

LONDON PRESS AMAZED AT KING'S RECEPTION

'New York Goes Crazy,' Is Specimen Headline Over Report.

LONDON, June 11 (Sunday) (AP).—British Sunday newspapers expressed amazement today at the New York City reception of King George and Queen Elizabeth and glee at its success.

A Sunday Express banner headline said: "New York Goes Crazy Over King and Queen." The tabloid Sunday Graphic's headline was: "King Gets Craziest Welcome Ever," and the Chronicle-Referee said: "New York Goes King Crazy."

The staid Observer, in an editorial headed "Thanks, America, a Wonderful Welcome," used such adjectives as "dramatic," and "miraculous."

"That the possibility of discord has been extinguished between two such nations is a fact of immeasurable import," the Observer said. "We cannot sufficiently admire the unreserved generosity of their (Majesties') reception by all sections of American democracy, whose warmth and depth of natural feeling never was more strikingly demonstrated."

The Sunday Times, in a three-column special article headed: "Old Feuds Forgotten in Historic Reunion," said: "Americans are famous for hospitality, but the warmth of their welcome to the King and Queen surpasses anything that could have been expected. . . . The growing friendship between this country and the United States makes the principal bright patch in the surrounding gloom of international affairs."

The Times article, which was written by "Scrutator," significantly noted that on the day President Roosevelt and the King shook hands, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax made a speech saying Britain was willing to seek peaceful settlement of international issues although now strong enough to fight if necessary.

A Sunday Graphic editorial headed "Conquest of Democracy," said: "Nothing in the career of Their Majesties touches the heart or influences the world so potently as this phenomenal conquest of the most critically democratic nation in the world. It is magnificent and augurs well for peace."

In France too the newspapers printed long accounts on the front pages of the reception to British royalty in New York while newspapers in Rome and Berlin gave it brief mention on back pages.

HUNGARY MAKES NEW CONCESSIONS TO THE GERMANS

killing were not solved by 8 p. m. tonight.

One hour before the deadline Von Neurath's office issued a statement saying "the conduct of the population enables the Reich Protector to dispense with additional measures on the expiration of the time limit set by the authorities."

The commander of the German police, who have taken complete charge of Kladno since Kniest's body was found in a street Thursday morning, declared tonight that "definite progress has been made."

He refused to say whether the killers were among dozens of persons being questioned, but admitted that more than one man must have shot at the German policeman.

Referring to an autopsy at Prague, the commander said: "He was struck by bullets of different caliber and it is hardly possible that one man would have shot with two pistols."

Three bullets struck Kniest, two of nine millimeter diameter and one of only six. Since he had not fired his own gun it was believed he was the victim of a surprise attack.

The German police were of the opinion that the killing was the culmination of a well-organized plan.

Attack on Uniform.

"The assassins wanted to shoot someone in German uniform," one officer said. "The possibility of personal motives has been pretty well discounted.

"It was merely Kniest's misfortune that he walked down the street alone when the killers' plans were ready."

In Berlin the Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, semi-official mouthpiece of the Foreign Office, accused foreign countries, especially England, of fostering unrest among the Czechs. The Czechs themselves, and not Germany, are bound to suffer as a result, Korrespondenz said.

"The Reich . . . can meet attempts to stir trouble with all proper means and, if it must be, with force," said Korrespondenz.

The Kladno District first had been given, under threat of further penalties, until 8 p. m. Friday to produce the killer, and this deadline at that hour was extended 24 hours.

One woman, a nurse described as a "great patriot," was among those held for questioning.

WHEN PRINCE EDWARD VISITED NEW YORK

His Round of Pleasure Contrasted With Royal Brother's Sedateness.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—Another King of England—then Prince of Wales—visited New York 15 years ago. Then, as now, the town went wild. Young, gay, unmarried Prince Edward's visit was a madcap escapade contrasted with the regal tour of his younger brother and sister-in-law.

Welcomed in the harbor as thunderously as were George and Elizabeth, the young prince ducked out on a crowd of disappointed thousands and slipped away to Long Island. He danced with debutantes, did the town incognito with chorus girls, acted before movie cameras.

He played poor polo and worse golf with Long Island's horsey set, once being clouted in the eye with a flying clod, and was mobbed when he went to see the great Epinard race at Belmont Park.

Wearing, as a rule, a gray suit, he went everywhere, saw everything: the subway, museums, newspapers, and public schools. Once, he kept going 28 hours without a nap. In short, he was New York's ideal tourist.

By contrast, King George and Queen Elizabeth saw little of what is recommended in the guide books for other visitors to see. Except for their stops at the World's Fair and Columbia University, they were just passing through.

TWO ON FISHING PARTY REPORT COMPANION IS MISSING

Tell State Police They Last Saw John Lovell Sitting on Bank N of Meramec.

State highway patrolmen were asked last night to aid in a search for John Lovell, a WPA worker, 3709 Cass avenue, who was reported by two companions to have disappeared yesterday when on a fishing trip on the Meramec River, nine miles south of Bourbon, Mo.

Lovell's friends said they were running trot lines in the river at 7:30 a. m. yesterday and last saw Lovell sitting in the water near the bank.

When they looked for him a few moments later he had disappeared, they said. His wife, Ida, went to Bourbon after being notified by telephone. They have three small children. Lovell is about 32 years old.

ST. LOUISAN PRESENTED TO KING IN ONTARIO

Miss Hortense Courlaender Meets Rulers by Command; She Was Born in Palace.

Miss Hortense Courlaender, 4296 Washington boulevard, a childhood playmate of Princess Alexandra of Denmark, who became the wife of Edward VII of England, was presented by royal command to King George and Queen Elizabeth when they stopped at St. Catherines, Ont., on their Canadian tour prior to visiting the United States.

Miss Courlaender, who came to St. Louis shortly after 1900, was the daughter of the secretary to King Christian IX of Denmark, who died in 1906. Her mother was a lady-in-waiting to Queen Louise. Miss Courlaender was born in the palace while her parents were members of the Royal Household. Queen Louise acted as her godmother when she was christened.

Only a few years younger than Princess Alexandra, who died in 1925 as Dowager Queen of England, grandmother of the present King, Miss Courlaender played with her during their childhood days. Two years ago she visited Denmark and was entertained at Court.

In recent years Miss Courlaender has resided at her Washington boulevard apartment in the winter and visited her niece, Mrs. Arthur Schom, at St. Catherines, during the summers.

NATIONAL INCOME REPORTED 10 PER CENT LOWER IN 1938

Per Capita Figure Last Year Was $480, National Industrial Conference Board Says.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP). — The national income dropped 10 per cent in 1938 compared with the previous year, the National Industrial Conference Board estimated today. The board is a research organization supported largely by contributions from private business corporations.

According to its estimates, based upon a survey completed by its division of industrial economics, 1937 income totaled $69,400,000,000, and 1938 income $62,500,000,000. Based on accompanying 958,000 increase in population, per capita income decreased 10.6 per cent in the same period, the board said. Per capita income for 1938 was $480, compared with $537 for 1937.

Greatest estimated decrease was in Michigan, 23 per cent, due to smaller automobile manufacturing activity and industrial demand.

South Dakota had a 1 per cent increase. Income in agricultural states and in the District of Columbia was "relatively well maintained in 1938," the board added.

Plants Alfalfa but Gets Wheat.

GUTHRIE, Ok. (AP).—After last year's wheat harvest, Gus Flasch decided to plant alfalfa instead, but his volunteer wheat was so good he had to cut it. His grain was the first sold here this spring.

WOMEN TEAR UP BOUQUET GIVEN QUEEN, FOR SOUVENIRS

Even Ribbon That Was Mrs. LaGuardia's Gift, Is Ripped to Bits.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP). — Excited women at the Battery seized the great bouquet of red roses presented Queen Elizabeth by Mrs. F. H. LaGuardia, wife of the Mayor, tore it to pieces and even ripped up the ribbon for souvenirs.

After the presenttion, the Queen handed the bouquet to Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, who handed it to Dock Superintendent M. T. Bishop.

When Bishop reached the pier the women scrambled from the grand stand and made a wild dash for the bouquet, Bishop said.

A scramble to walk on the red plush carpet where the rulers had passed on the way to their automobile followed the Battery reception. One woman got down on her hands and knees and kissed the carpet.

Chiselers Always Wrong, Says Loaded Dice Dealer

'Such Customers Are Pikers,' Merchant Explains; Complains Gambling's Gone to Seed.

A business man who operates on the novel theory that certain of his customers are always wrong is Henry Bargamann, who runs the Schaefer Sporting Goods Co. at 11A South Broadway.

"They are a lot of pikers and chislers," Bargamann said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday as the proprietor and his crony, Jake Rall, an occasional employe of the business, lounged in the firm's office.

Mr. Eargamann sells loaded dice—and makes no bones about it. The customers to whom he referred as "pikers" are those who buy that sort of equipment. He also sells "honest" dice.

"It's the little fellow that wants them loaded," Bargamann explained. "Smart boys can heft the loaded ones and tell in a minute. It doesn't pay to ring them in on the smart boys, they get awfully mad."

"The trade's gone to pot," Rall volunteered. "Time was when we were humming in here, and you couldn't hear yourself think for the noise."

"Sweet Quick-Seven Jobs."

"That's right," said Bargamann. "We were turning out 300 pairs a day and at $1.40 a pair a man could make himself a little money. Gambling's gone to seed, like everything else. Here we were, making a nice pair of dice for as low as six bits and loading up the sweetest quick-seven jobs you ever saw for 10 bucks, and selling a lot of other athletic equipment, too—poker chips and spinners and horse machines—and what happens? Depression comes along and bingo! She's gone."

Asked about the process of loading a pair of dice, Bargamann said it was a tedious and expensive process.

"You take your celluloid and you fill in under the number, whichever one you want. We mostly use gold or platinum. Here's a dandy little job; snake-eyes comes up uncommonly well with this job. The banker wins a lot of money with it if he lives."

Roulette Wheels for Rent.

The company doesn't traffic much in roulette wheels. There are several hanging about on the walls, but they aren't for sale. "We rent them," Bargamann said. "We rent them to churches and that kind of organization; makes a nice little diversion for a picnic sociable. We were renting some to carnivals, but it got so they were neglecting to return the wheels before they left town. We require a deposit from the carnival folks nowadays. It makes them honest."

Rall said he had been in the dice business, in one way or another, for about 35 years. He doesn't think much of St. Louis as a gambling town. "It's the cops," he said, "they've got no feelings; they close you up. Conditions here are the worst I've ever seen. Give me Detroit or Toledo, O."

He and Bargamann both are pretty gloomy about the business outlook. They advocate discontinuing WPA, PWA, CCC, AAA, RFC, FHA, and several other agencies. "Open the factories," Bargamann said, "get the boys back to work, leave people alone, stop this shilly-shallying. Let's get things to rolling again."

MEXICAN AND U. S. OIL NEGOTIATIONS ARE BROKEN DOWN

Government very closely but has not actively participated. At the department it was said there had been a June 4 deadline for a reply from Cardenas on the controversal points in the memorandum. Nearly a week has passed since that deadline.

Officials of W. R. Davis, Inc., in New York, would not discuss the reported new Mexican transactions. From a source close to the company, however, confirmation was had of the intensified activities on the part of Davis and his associates. These concern particularly the purchase, through oil exports, of new refinery equipment. Rapid progress has been made recently, it was said, toward obtaining new equipment for Mexico's oil industry.

One handicap that the Government has been under in operating the oil properties is that in the past comparatively little oil has been refined in Mexico. Oil production has dropped drastically since the Government took over. It is hoped with new refineries to check this trend.

The Mexican Government has accused the oil companies of initiating a world-wide blockade against Mexican oil. This blockade, the Government declared, forced the barter deal with Germany.

No Mention by Lewis.

Efforts have been made to draw many persons other than those directly concerned into the oil controversy. A little less than a year ago John L. Lewis visited Mexico City to participate in Lombardo Toledano's Pan-American Labor Congress. Lewis, in a speech in the bull ring in Mexico City, carefully refrained from mentioning the oil problem, to the disappointment of his Mexican audience.

Senator Joseph P. Guffey (Dem.), Pennsylvania, visited Mexico not long before the controversy arose over expropriation of American-owned farm lands. He talked with Cardenas at that time. He has indirectly interested himself in the oil question, it is believed, as has also Charles Alvin Jones, a Pennsylvania politician who was the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Governor last year.

What the next move will be no one predicts. The remote possibility that negotiations between the companies and the Government may be reopened is not, of course, precluded. There is the possibility, too, that the State Department may intervene actively in behalf of the companies, as was done for the land owners. The Mexican Government last month turned over a check for $1,000,000 as a first payment on the amount owed to Americans who lost their land through expropriation.

Consul to Go on Vacation.

Joel S. Quinones, Mexican Consul in St. Louis, will leave tomorrow for a two-month vacation in San Antonio, Tex., where his family lives. Ernest Cota, member of the consular staff, will be acting Consul in his absence.

CREDIT SOUGHT IN U. S. FOR MEXICAN OIL ROAD

Money Wanted for Tehuantepec Railway to Get Japanese Oil Business.

MEXICO CITY, June 10 (AP).—The Mexican Government was reported today to be seeking cash and credit in the United States for development of efficient rail facilities across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec which would provide a direct outlet for oil sales to Japan.

Informed sources asserted Ulysses Irogoyan, former chief of the tariff and railroad section of the Federal Communications Department, had gone to the United States to enlist the help of shipping and financial interests to back the necessary improvements.

Irogoyan was said to be representing the Mexican treasury. Official information on his trip was not forthcoming but he was expected to get in touch with both West Coast and Eastern interests.

The railroad across the isthmus—which runs 188 miles from the Atlantic to the Pacific side—now handles 400,000 tons of freight yearly but requires $1,000,000 for immediate improvements or, one authority estimated, $10,000,000 to put it in first-class condition.

Mexico has been virtually cut out of the Japanese market for oil by lack of efficient direct communications from the oil-producing east to the west and of loading facilities for petroleum on the Pacific Coast.

Japan finds it cheaper to get oil in California than to buy at a lower price in Mexico and pay tolls for shipment from Gulf of Mexico ports through the Panama Canal, and across the Pacific to Japan.

Government railroad experts say improvements of the present railroad would create an important interocean commercial link and bring welcome business to the worker-operated national railways.

INQUIRY PRESSED INTO WATER DEAL AT KANSAS CITY

Municipality Moving for Recovery of $356,500 Paid to Concern During Six Years.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 10 (AP).—Federal and State agencies concentrated today on an investigation of the city Water Department's dealings with the John J. Rathford Engineering Co., which received $356,500 from the city during a six-year period.

The Rathford concern, investigation disclosed, was composed of John J. Rathford, a $140-a-month Water Department employe, Carl D. Higgins, superintendent of a machinery and equipment company, and J. G. Halpin, an attorney.

City officials discovered payments were made by the Water Department to the firm at the rate of $5000 a month to conduct a survey of leaks in the water system.

Water Department officials have said services of the firm did not justify such large payments.

Federal Check on Taxes.

The Federal Government, checking on possible violation of the income tax laws, sought to learn who ultimately received the money and whether payment of income taxes was involved.

The Star said the Government was of the belief that a "high political power" a behind the water leak payments.

The city has filed suit against Rathford, Higgins and Halpin to recover the money, asserting it was fraudulently paid out.

At a deposition hearing today, Higgins told a court referee he did not know he had been named an officer of the engineering concern until two years after his name was associated with it.

He testified he never had handled any of the company's funds, never had received any money from it and did not know to whom the receipts were paid. He also asserted he never knew the address of the company's office.

Picone Gets Prison Sentence.

Continuing its effort to clean up crime conditions here, the Federal Government today received a plea of guilty from John Picone, alleged leader of a rival narcotics ring to that allegedly headed by Angelo Donnici.

Picone pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with illegal sale of drugs and was sentenced by Judge Merrill E. Otis to two years and six months in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. He also was fined $2000. Donnici, reputed director of a drug syndicate handling $12,000,000 worth of narcotics annually, previously has been convicted and given a prison sentence.

Carollo Posts Another Bond.

Charles V. Carollo, reputed gambling Czar of Kansas City, posted $5000 bond today pending his arraignment on a Federal indictment for perjury. It was the third Federal indictment against him. Bonds on the other two total $20,000. He was convicted this week of operating a gambling game by a jury in Circuit Court and was sentenced to one year in jail.

Meanwhile representatives of the Citizen's Audit Committee reported they had not received a reply from H. F. McElroy, former city manager, who resigned several weeks ago under pressure of public action for a cleanup of municipal government, to their request for records that would aid in an audit of an "emergency fund" he controlled at the City Hall. McElroy has been ill in a hospital several weeks.

House Social Security Changes

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).

HERE is how the Social Security amendments approved by the House today would affect monthly old age insurance pension payments to a worker who had averaged $100 a month:

	Present Plan (Marital status unaffected)	Revised Plan Single.	Revised Plan Married.
3 years coverage— — — — —	No payments	$25.75	$38.63
5 years coverage— — — — —	$17.50	$26.25	$39.38
10 years coverage— — — — —	$22.50	$27.50	$41.25
20 years coverage— — — — —	$32.50	$30.00	$45.00
30 years coverage— — — — —	$42.50	$32.50	$48.75
40 years coverage— — — — —	$52.25	$35.00	$52.50

Under the revised plan, the larger "married" payments would be due only if the wife also was aged 65. If she had worked and was entitled to "primary" benefits herself, the married benefit would not be paid unless the total of her and her husband's primary benefits was less than the married benefit. In other words, the husband and his wife could take their choice of each receiving the "single" benefit payment to which they were entitled or the "married," whichever was larger.

Under the amendments, married persons who reach the age of 65 on Jan. 1 or thereafter and who have been participants in Federal old-age insurance since it started Jan. 1, 1937, would receive $38.63 a month in old-age insurance if their average monthly wage was $100 a month. Here are sample rates of payments that would be made starting Jan. 1. 1940, under the amendments:

	Average Monthly Salary.	Single Persons.	Married Persons.
For 3 years, 1937-1939 Inc. — —	$ 50	$20.60	$30.90
For 3 years, 1937-1939 Inc. — —	100	25.75	38.63
For 3 years, 1937-1939 Inc. — —	150	30.90	46.35
For 3 years, 1937-1939 Inc. — —	250	41.20	61.80

The present law provides for a lump sum payment—of three and one-half times what the worker has paid in—to his survivors in case he dies before reaching age 65.

The revised plan provides monthly payments to a dependent child, widow, or parent (over 65) on the following scale, if the worker averaged $100 a month:

	Parent or One Child.	Widow.	Widow and One Child.
3 years coverage— — — — — — —	$12.88	$19.31	$32.19
5 years coverage— — — — — — —	$13.13	$19.69	$32.81
10 years coverage— — — — — — —	$13.75	$20.63	$34.38
20 years coverage— — — — — — —	$15.00	$22.50	$37.50
30 years' coverage— — — — — — —	$16.25	$24.38	$40.63
40 years coverage— — — — — — —	$17.50	$26.25	$43.75

Provision is made in the revised plan for lump-sum payments to the estate of a worker who has no survivors entitled to benefits under the above schedule. These will be six times the monthly benefit due under his coverage. After three years coverage the payment, if the average wage had been $100 a month, would be $154.50 compared with $126 under the present plan; after 40 years coverage it would be $210, compared with $1680 under the present plan.

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT AMENDMENTS PASSED BY HOUSE

vided old age insurance under amendments which extended coverage to these groups, and that 200,000 additional would get unemployment insurance.

Old Age Benefit Payments.

Under the amendments, the Government would begin paying old age insurance benefits next year, instead of waiting until 1942 as present law provides.

The amendments also would provide pensions for elderly widows and parents and the minor children of deceased old age insurance participants, doing away with the lump sum payment to heirs as in present law.

The maximum Federal contribution to states for old age assistance would be increased from $15 to $20 a month, as would the contribution for aid to the blind.

Old age assistance is intended for the indigent aged and is distinct from the old age insurance benefits. The states must match Federal funds for this purpose, dollar-for-dollar.

Other provisions in the amendments:

Federal contributions to states for aid to dependent children would be changed from a basis of one Federal dollar to two State dollars to straight dollar for dollar matching. Estimated cost $29,000,000.

The 3 per cent unemployment compensation tax would be applied only to the first $3000 of an individual's compensation instead of all compensation. Estimated savings to taxpayers $65,000,000.

Tax delinquency provisions would be eased. Estimated savings to taxpayers, $15,000,000.

A plan would be inaugurated whereby states could reduce their unemployment compensation taxes if they had adequate reserves for unemployment benefits. The Social Security Board estimated that if states acted promptly they could reduce tax burdens $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 in this calendar year and $175,000,000 next year.

A special trust fund would be set up for old age pension funds and the amount of the reserve would be reduced drastically. It was estimated that under present law the fund would reach $47,000,000,000 by 1980. The amendments would limit the fund to three times the size of the highest amount likely to be paid out in any one year.

TWO KILLED IN STORM SWEEPING INDIANA

Wind, Lightning and Rain Wrecks Buildings; Many Persons Injured.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 10 (AP).—Two persons were killed, 20 or more were hurt late today when high wind, lightning and rain swept over Indiana.

Eight-year-old Martel Briles of Swayzee was killed when an automobile traveling through rain ran into a tree blown across the road.

Four adults and six children were in the car. Five were hurt. They were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Briles, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Briles, and a year-old child.

Gerald W. Brown, 26, of Schneider, was killed when an implement supply house fell in on him.

Mrs. Harry Burley was injured when her house near Brook was demolished. Mr. and Mrs. Amos Cross of Brook were taken to a hospital at Rensselaer.

Two men were injured in Kentland. One, 60-year-old Matt Donahue, was blown to the pavement.

The storm swept along a path 12 miles wide from Sheldon, Ill., through Kentland, Goodland, Remington and Wolcott.

It was estimated that in the strip about 25 miles long through Newton, Benton and White counties, damage amounted to $50,000.

George Ade's estate, Hazelton, near Brook, suffered heavy damage. In the vicinity three farm houses were damaged. Near Raub, four were demolished.

More than 120 utility poles were blown down west of Wolcott, blocking traffic. In Brazil, state police were called to clear streets blocked by fallen trees, poles and wires. In Greencastle and Putnam County, damage was estimated at $20,000.

The wind reached 32 miles an hour in Indianapolis and an inch of rain fell in about 20 minutes. Temperature fell 19 degrees to 64 in an hour. Lightning set fire to many houses.

Wind Unroofs Several Houses in Jacksonville (Ill.) Storm.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., June 10 (AP).—A blasting wind out of the Southwest caused heavy damage this afternoon on the north outskirts of this city, unroofing at least a half dozen houses, and damagin numerous porches, out-buildings and trees.

A heavy rain, in the wake of the wind, flooded basements in the business section and covered streets to depths of several inches.

Lightning struck one house which was destroyed by the resulting fire.

The storm struck at 1:30 p. m. Telephone and electrical service was partly disrupted, and traffic was halted during the height of the storm.

Baby Killed in Windstorm at Beloit, Wis.

BELOIT, Wis., June 10 (AP). —An 18-month-old girl was killed late today in a windstorm which struck a 12-block area here, demolishing small buildings.

The victim, Judith Donna Pike, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pike of Janesville, Wis., was killed when a small garage, picked up by the wind, smashed against the side of the Robert Bjerk home, where the baby's parents had left her while attending the funeral of Mrs. Pike's mother. Sitting near the window, the baby's jugular vein was cut by flying glass.

Storm Knocks Down CCC Camp's Tents at Sedalia.

SEDALIA, Mo., June 10 (AP).—A high wind and electrical storm, accompanied by 1.19 inches of rain, struck here early today, leveling temporary tent quarters for a CCC camp in the southeast part of the city.

Sedalia's residential section was strewn with toppled trees and branches, and a few display windows in the business district were shattered. No injuries were reported.

Kansas City was the nation's wet spot, with 2.70 inches of rain in 24 hours. Thundershowers also were prevalent throughout most of the State.

2 SQUALUS SALVAGE DIVERS ARE 'BLOWN' TO THE SURFACE

One Unconscious Several Hours After Undersea Mishap—Work Halted for the Day.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 10 (AP).—Mishaps to two divers, both accidentally "blown" to the surface, one unconscious, today slowed the navy's salvage work on the sunken submarine Squalus.

His suit filling with air, Walter Squires, 31 years old, of Los Angeles, shot upward shortly after completing a 17-minute job on the submersible, 240 feet below the ocean surface 15 miles off this port. He was rushed into a decompression chamber aboard the salvage ship Falcon, where he remained unconscious for several hours. Alvie Payne, making his first descent to the Squalus, suffered a similar accident a few hours earlier, but after a period in the decompression chamber appeared to have recovered.

Salvage work was halted for the day after Squire's mishap. Naval officers said an obstruction has blocked completion of a tunnel under the submarine's stern so far.

Annual Dent County Picnic.

The Dent County Association will hold its eighteenth annual reunion and picnic Saturday, June 24, at 1 p. m. at picnic grounds 8 and 9, Forest Park.

BILL TO EASE RESTRICTIONS ON U. S. DEPOSIT INSURANCE

House Votes to Relieve Large State Institutions of Federal Reserve Membership Rule.

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).—The House voted today to relieve State banks with deposits of $1,000,000 or more from the requirement that they must join the Federal Reserve System to qualify for Federal deposit insurance after 1941.

The proposal was approved as an amendment to a Senate bill extending for three years from June 16 the period in which loans to executive officers of Federal Reserve member banks may be renewed or extended. The House changed this to five years and sent the bill back to the Senate.

Closing Time for Foreign Mail.

Prisoner Not Gone but Forgotten.

DALLAS, June 10 (AP). — Judge Henry King suddenly halted the murder trial of Silvester King, Negro, pointed to the prisoner's empty chair and asked "Where's the defendant?" "Why, Your Honor," explained Prosecutor Andrew Patton, "He's been testifying for an hour and a half."

CITY HIGH SCHOOLS GRADUATE RECORD TOTAL THIS WEEK

2433 Students Will Receive Diplomas at Semi-Annual Commencement Exercises.

A record number of boys and girls, 2433, will be graduated from the public high schools at semi-annual commencement exercises this week.

In other branches of the public school system more than 4000 other students will receive degrees, diplomas or certificates in the course of the week. Included will be 17 in the first graduating class of the new junior colleges, 52 in the first graduating classes in the teachers' colleges in two years, 201 in the vocational schools and about 3800 in the elementary schools.

Southwest High School will have its first graduating class, bringing the number of high schools participating to 10.

The number of high school graduates has risen steadily in the last 10 years, having been only 1200 in June, 1930. The 1930 figure included 1037 white children and 163 Negroes, while this week 2148 whites and 285 Negroes will receive diplomas.

Dates of Commencement.

Dates of the various exercises, the number of graduates from each school and members of the Board of Education who will deliver addresses are as follows:

Harris Teachers' College (at Soldan High), 36 in teachers' course and 13 in junior college, Thursday, 8 p. m., President John J. Sheahan.

Stowe (Negro) Teachers' College (at Sumner High), 16 in teachers' course and four in junior college, Thursday, 8 p. m., Vice-President Mark D. Eagleton.

Beaumont High, 367, Thursday, 4 p. m., Arthur A. Blumeyer.

Blewett, 178, Wednesday, 7 p. m., Eagleton.

Central (at Beaumont), 195, Wednesday, 8 p. m., Dr. Rudolph Hofmeister.

Cleveland, 380, Wednesday, 8 p. m., Edward A. Ferrenbach.

McKinley, 233, Thursday, 8 p. m., John A. Fleischli.

Roosevelt, 388, Thursday, 8 p. m., James J. Fitzgerald.

Soldan, 288, Thursday, 10 a. m., Max G. Baron.

Southwest, 119, Wednesday, 8 p. m., Sheahan.

Sumner (Negro), 149, Wednesday, 8 p. m., J. Harry Pohlman.

Vashon (Negro), 136, Thursday, 8 p. m., Thomas F. Quinn.

Hadley Vocational School, 187, Thursday, 5 p. m., Richard Murphy.

Exercises on Campus.

At Blewett High there will be an innovation, for the public schools—commencement exercises on the campus at 5351 Enright avenue at sunset. Hadley Vocational will conduct its program on the large roof of the institution, 3405 Bell avenue, in late afternoon.

The Hadley graduates are divided among 10 industrial and two commercial courses. So far, 20 of them, or 11 per cent of the class, have obtained jobs, but the school's employment office was hopeful of placing some of the others this week. At Washington Vocational, in addition to the 14 graduates there will be a class of 54 boys and girls completing a one-year course in special vocational training.

Commencement programs in the elementary schools will be simple in character. More than 90 per cent of the children finishing eighth grade work are expected to constitute the beginning class of about 3500 pupils in high schools and ninth grade centers in September.

Lack of employment opportunities has been swelling the ranks of high school students for years, while authorities at the same time have noticed a decline in the grade schools attributed to falling birth rate.

The schools will close for an 11-week vacation next Friday, reopening Sept. 5.

GERMANS TO EXPEL AMERICAN WHO WROTE ANTI-NAZI VERSE

Decide Not to Prosecute Californian Arrested in Heidelberg May 15.

BERLIN, June 10 (AP).—The Ministry of Justice decided today not to prosecute William Bardwell Curts, 20 years old, of Oakland, Cal., charged with slandering the German state, on condition that he leave Germany. Consul-General Raymond H. Geist is making arrangements for Curts to leave.

The American was arrested May 15 in Heidelberg after he had written an anti-Nazi verse in a beer hall guest book. Other guests took offense and a fight followed.

Curts had been traveling in Europe since August.

Ex-Mayor of Collinsville Dies.

William H. Field, former Mayor of Collinsville, died at his home there yesterday of infirmities of age. He was 77 years old, and was born in Collinsville. He was elected Mayor for a two-year term in 1896. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Josephine Lundak Field, and three sons, William H. Jr. and Edwin O. Field, associated with him in the building contracting business, and Jules R. Field of St. Louis, secretary to former Mayor Victor J. Miller.

Inventor Dead

COL. JOHN R. FORDYCE
(From a wartime photograph)

COL. JOHN R. FORDYCE FUNERAL TO BE TODAY

Service for Inventor, Former St. Louisan, at Home in Little Rock.

The funeral of Col. John R. Fordyce, formerly of St. Louis, an archeologist, inventor and army engineer in the World War, who died of a heart attack Friday night in the Army and Navy Hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., will be held this afternoon at his home in Little Rock.

Col. Fordyce, 69 years old, was the father of C. Powell Fordyce and Edward W. Fordyce, both of St. Louis, and a brother of Samuel W. Fordyce of St. Louis, an attorney.

Born in Huntsville, Ala., he was taken to Arkansas by his parents when a boy. The Fordyce family moved here in 1885, when the father, the late S. W. Fordyce, became president of the Cotton Belt Railroad. Here John Fordyce attended the old Manual Training School and was graduated from the Washington University School of Engineering in 1892.

On Dr. Cook's Arctic Cruise.

After post-graduate work at Harvard University, he sought adventure in an Arctic cruise under leadership of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who subsequently became the center of one of the most spectacular controversies of modern exploration over his report of discovery of the North Pole in 1908. Young Fordyce found adventure when the ship became disabled off the coast of Greenland and the crew and passengers took to open boats.

Subsequeitly he went to Oregon in charge of gold-mining properties there, in which his father was interested. His inventions include cotton processing machines, a round bale press, carrying systems for handling cotton in warehouses, a method of firing machine guns from the shoulder and flexible asphalt and metal matting for river-bank revetments, now in use on the lower Mississippi.

In 1917 he volunteered for service in the Engineers' Corps, was appointed a major and detailed to Little Rock to superintend construction of Camp Pike. In the spring of 1918 he came here for construction of a warehouse at the Arsenal. He was promoted to the rank of Colonel and later appointed advisory engineer in construction of terminals for the new Federal barge lines between St. Louis and New Orleans.

Named to De Soto Commission.

In his later life he became increasingly interested in archeology and early American history. Recently President Roosevelt appointed him to a commission to study explorations of De Soto.

Four years ago Col. Fordyce gave to the Government as an addition to Hot Springs National Park 63 acres of land, which included an old Indian quarry, described by Secretary of the Interior Ickes as of great ethnological importance. Often he had expressed an intention of bequeathing a collection of Indian relics, inherited from his father, to the United States. It was his hope that a musum would be established in the national park to house collections drawn from that region.

Surviving, in addition to the St. Louis members of the family, are the widow, Mrs. Lillian Powell Fordyce; two other sons, Samuel W. Fordyce III of Kansas City and John R. Fordyce Jr. of Little Rock; another brother, W. C. Fordyce of Chicago and a sister, Mrs. David S. Stanley of Washington.

Japanese Board Disabled Steamer.

TIENTSIN, June 10 (AP).—The British-owned steamer Tseangtah, chartered by the British Lighter Co., was involved in an accident today while proceeding up the Hai River. Japanese boarded the steamer, arrested its American captain named Van Meter and ordered the ship to return to Tangku.

D. A. MILLAR ELECTED SAFETY COUNCIL HEAD

Judge L. E. Skeel, Cleveland, Discusses Reduction of Traffic Accidents.

David A. Millar, attorney and former Mayor of University City, was elected president of the St. Louis Safety Council at the annual meeting at Hotel Jefferson Friday night.

Two new vice-presidents, N. L. Allen, plant manager of the American Zinc Co. of Illinois, and Mayor E. F. Chapman of Webster Groves, were elected. Hermann Spoehrer, who has been treasurer of the council more than 20 years, was re-elected. Reyburn Hoffman will continue as secretary-manager.

Judge L. E. Skeel of Common Pleas Court, Cleveland, president of the Greater Cleveland Safety Council, was the principal speaker at the meeting. Judge Skeel said St. Louis practically paralleled Cleveland in reducing traffic accidents. The peak years for accidents in both cities were reached about 10 years ago, and since then there has been a general trend downward, he said. He attributed the reduction to public education, plus engineering and enforcement of traffic laws.

"The character of enforcement in Cleveland has eliminated any attempt to 'fix' traffic cases," Judge Skeel said. "There is not a policeman in Cleveland who has not had at least a short course in the proper enforcement of traffic law, and some of our officers have gone to Northwestern University and have attended the national conferences on highway safety."

Carl Barker, retiring president, called attention to a reduction in traffic deaths from 144 in 1937 to 86 last year, the second lowest death rate among major cities. In fire prevention, St. Louis is one of three cities with a grade of more than 90 per cent in the national fire prevention program.

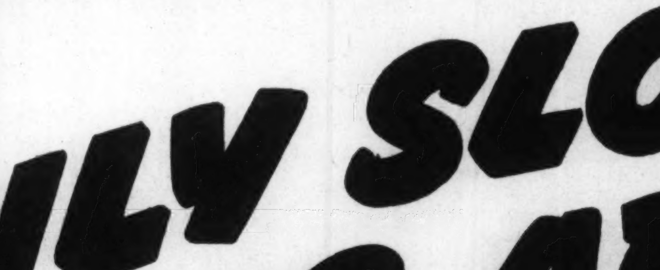
ONLY SLOW-MOVING THING ABOUT OLDS!



THE NEEDLE ON THIS GAUGE!

RECORDS SHOW THAT OLDSMOBILE IS ONE OF THE EASIEST CARS ON GAS!

IT'S A REAL ECONOMY CAR!

HOW'S your gas mileage? Does the needle on your gauge seem to hurry from "Full" to "Empty"? If it does, you ought to own an Olds. For here's one car that steps right out—gives you the pick-up, pep and brilliant action that contribute both safety and pleasure to driving—without penalizing your pocketbook for gas and oil.

Olds is an economical car to drive, in every way. You pay a low price to begin with—you get good value when you trade it in. It saves you money every mile on gas and oil—saves you money on tires and maintenance, too.

You can check these facts by talking with Oldsmobile owners. Or you can look at the record—Olds took first place in its class in 1939 in the famous Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Run, averaging 21.4 miles per gallon for 315 miles over mountain roads.

At the same time, Olds is a big car, a luxury car—built to quality standards through and through. It gives you such fine-car features as 100% full-pressure lubrication, modern coil springs all around and wide-vision Body by Fisher.

Come in for a trial drive. Get behind the wheel and put an Olds through its paces. Compare it with other low-priced cars in price, in performance and in quality. You'll be amazed at the value a low price buys in Olds!

YOU'LL GET A BETTER DEAL FROM OLDSMOBILE!
The car you are driving will never be worth a dollar more than it is today. Why not trade it in while you can get top value, and enjoy all the advantages of a brand new Oldsmobile during the summer season? Come in and we will gladly make an appraisal without obligation on your part.

8 SCHOLARSHIPS IN WASHINGTON U. FOR BRIGHT PUPILS

Outstanding High School Graduates, Four Boys and Four Girls, to Get Full Tuition.

Four-year scholarships in Washington University for outstanding graduates of the public high schools will be presented to four boys and four girls at commencement exercises this week.

Beaumont High: Mary Jo Hurley, 18 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Hurley, 4219W Kossuth avenue.

Blewett: Carl B. Zytowski, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Zytowski, 1318 Temple place.

Roosevelt: Kenyon Hammack, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Hammack, 3736 Hydraulic avenue.

Southwest: James C. Sisk, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Sisk, 6047 Oleatha avenue.

The new Southwest High, with its first graduating class this month, has an entrant in the list of scholarship winners for the first time.

Youngest Only 14.

Hammack, who celebrated his fourteenth birthday only five months ago, is the youngest winner of a Washington University scholarship in the St. Louis schools within the recollection of veteran school officials. He is one of the youngest graduates of public high schools in recent years. The son of a carpenter, he is undecided whether to study for teaching or engineering. In this year's "Boys' State" of the American Legion he was the representative of Roosevelt High.

Sisk, whose father owns a filling station, hopes to become a physician. He is president of the Southwest Student Council and the Hi-Y Club and has been president of the Classical Club and editor of the school yearbook for two years. As the outstanding junior in his school, he was awarded a membership in the South Side Y. M. C. A. last year. This year he represented Southwest at a student assembly at Jefferson City. He belongs to the intramural champion softball team.

Miss Canis won two-year and four-year scholarship seals at Soldan, where she was a member of a champion spelling team and held several class offices.

Miss Hurley wants to become a physician. She has won a science award and scholarship pins. As a member of the Beaumont Service Club she has aided in formulating school programs. Secretary of the senior class, she also is vice-president of the Shakespeare Club. Her father is a mechanic.

In each of the eight terms of his career at Blewett, Zytowski, whose father is a department store employe, has been listed on the honor roll. For a year and a half he was editor of the school paper, was assistant editor of the yearbook and author of the script for several school plays. Frequently he has appeared as tenor soloist with the chorus. He wants to be a chemical engineer.

A football player and track man, Branahl, son of a catalogue compiler, is president of the senior class and of the Committee of Twenty, a service club with members selected on scholastic rating. He won a school scholarship pin. Civil engineering is his goal.

Miss La Sage, daughter of a salesman, has won a series of eight school letters for academic excellence, a scientific award and oratorical honors. She has held class and student council offices and been associate editor of the Cleveland paper.

Planning to become a nurse, Miss Schwebel has been active in athletics, gaining the 1000-point emblem from the Girls' Athletic Association. Her father is a blacksmith.

The scholarships are awarded on faculty recommendations with consideration not only to scholastic achievement, but intellectual promise, participation in significant activities and character.

HOUSE GROUP RECOMMENDS BOND ISSUING POWER FOR TVA

Subcommittee Favors $65,000,000 Loan to Finance Purchase of Utilities.

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).—A House Military Subcommittee recommended legislation today to authorize the Tennessee Valley Authority to issue $65,000,000 worth of bonds to finance its purchase of the properties of two private power companies.

The TVA had asked for authorization of a $100,000,000 bond issue.

Sidelights on Royal Progress Through New York City

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).

THE alley stroller that believed in the old say, "A Cat May Look at the King," was a disillusioned feline today. It appeared suddenly for a stroll on the 300-foot red velvet carpet flung out for royal feet to walk on. The police were ruffled and red-faced over this single untoward event and the cat was promptly shooed back to its mousing among the pier sheds.

Many commoner feet trod the royal carpet in the scramble for the bouquet the Queen discarded for a smaller one as the party sped away from the batteery.

The old sod of Battery Park and its scrubby trees were saved from general destruction by police lines which held the crowds far back on the fringes. Those who tried to enter the wide area reserved for dignatires were told the King himself couldn't crash the line. The best the pressing crowds could do was advance to 150 feet or so onto the park. They caught only fleeting glimpses at the smiling, sunburned Queen and the King, deeply tanned and hale but apparently weary. The best views of the royal pair were obtained in downtown skyscrapers, through field glasses.

The city and Federal Governments left nothing undone in the way of precautionary measures. Even the ocean bottom was inspected. The Department of Docks sent a diver down Thursday to look over the underpinnings of pier 1.

NEW YORK is by reputation the best policed city in the world but it had something less than ordinary protection today because most of the members of the force were detailed to guarding royalty. A checkup showed foot patrolmen were absent from Madison, Park and Fifth avenues and other main arteries. Prowl cars worked the area but crime apparently was taking a holiday along with the rest of the city.

The policemen's womenfolk got a break. They were guests of the city in one lane of the West Side express highway, which had been closed to traffic, while the King and Queen rode down the open lane.

King George carried on an animated conversation on his way to the fair with Mayor LaGuardia, a ready conversationalist.

The King wore a two-tone outfit—dark grey oxford cutaway with trousers to match and a pearl gray top hat, which was greeted by "ohs" and "ahs" in a town where a topper seldom brings a murmur. The Queen had on a pale blue crepe frock with a full-length cape of the same hue swinging from her shoulders. Her hat was a blue felt, turned up on one side and caught with a feather spray. She carried a blue bag and wore her favorite two-strand pearl necklace.

THOSE who planned the trip from the Battery to the world's fair couldn't have chosen a faster or more unlovely way. It started up the ramshackle West Side, flanked on the left by pier sheds and on the right by a hodgepodge of old brick in the Turkish-Armenian section far downtown, Greenwich Village, Hell's Kitchen and the tough upper West Side where is located the notorious Warrens of San Juan Hill. It got better, however, when they turned into Seventy-second street and entered the leafy roads through Central Park.

They passed through part of Harlem, too. All the while they got sidewise glimpses of the great buildings and hotels but never neared them. Royalty does not pass through deep canyons between buildings, where commoners are wont to throw confetti made from telephone books—not bothering to tear them up sometimes.

The triborough bridge is one of the wonders of the city they saw. The ride up the Hudson to the Roosevelt estate at Hyde Park is one of the most eye-filling trips in the country.

Not one person was arrested by police here in connection with the royal visit. A musician entering Columbia University with a violin case was stopped by a policeman. "I've got a machine gun in it," quipped the man, hurrying to job in the orchestra. "Yeah?" said the policeman. "Open up." He had a violin.

Arriving here on the pilot train correspondents and radio men reported all was not pomp and circumstance on the royal tour. When the confusing time changes on the continental tour was being deplored by one of them, the King brightly replied, "If it keeps up, I'll lose a day's pay." One correspondent came from Boston, said His Majesty remarked, "Oh, yes, something about a tea party, wasn't it?"

Two Firemen Burned to Death.

MADISON, Wis., June 10 (AP).—Two firemen were burned to death today when they were trapped in the basement of a blazing building on South Park street. They were Judd Holcombe and Adolph Habich. They fell into the basement when the first floor of a combination bakery shop, grocery and barber shop collapsed. Another fireman was injured.

STATE'S OMNIBUS BILL INCREASED $450,000

Conference Restores Many of Senate's Cuts; $6,500,000 Total Indicated.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 10 (AP).—A Senate-House conference committee added nearly $450,000 to the omnibus appropriation bill today in a report which restored many of the Senate's cuts in the bulky measure and put in $200,000 of new allotments.

Acceptance of the report by both branches of the Assembly would leave the bill with appropriations of about $6,500,000 from general revenue, $9,000,000 from fees and nearly $5,000,000 from Federal funds—a total of about $20,500,000.

The new appropriations inserted by the committee were for State contributions to support of tubercular patients at Leeds Hospital, Kansas City, and at St. Louis Hospital, as provided in a recently passed bill. Each received $100,000.

Gov. Lloyd C. Stark scored another victory in his frequent fights over payment of his special auditors when the committee recommended appropriation of the full $25,000 he asked, instead of the $12,500 the Senate allowed.

The committee also restored such Senate condemned items as: $80,000 for the proposed Prairie Lee Lake Park in Jackson County; $40,000 for establishment by the University of Missouri of the proposed Col. W. H. Phelps Memorial Dairy Farm in Jasper County, and $10,000 for State payments for cattle condemned in the Bangs Disease Control Program.

Another $50,000 addition came in putting back the $200,000 the House granted for operation of the new State Cancer Hospital at Columbia. The Senate had reduced it to $150,000.

Among the Senate reductions accepted were: A cut of $10,500 in the State Purchasing Agent's appropriation, leaving him $119,500; elimination of $34,512 for the Blind Commission employes unpaid during the last half of 1938 because of a blind pension fund shortage; elimination of numerous proposed State parks carrying total allotments of about $500,000 and a cut from $25,000 to $10,000 for purchase of a park site on the Wilson Creek battlefield at the boundary of Greene and Christian counties.

DON'T GET A LOAN until you check this new plan

Read how you can borrow $100 without endorsers if you can repay $9.75 a month for 12 months. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives—No embarrassment or delay

THIS new loan plan makes it simple for you to figure how you can borrow what you need and how you can repay it. You get the money you need now and you repay in 2 to 20 months as best suits you. The faster you pay up your loan, the less it costs.

Suppose you need $100 and can conveniently repay $9.75 a month. Twelve installments of this amount will repay your loan in full, including all charges. Or suppose you can pay more each month—installments of $18.15 each will pay your $100 loan in full in six months. Or suppose you wish to pay less each month—$6.41 a month for 20 months will also repay a $100 loan.

Simple to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is acquaint us with your needs. No stocks or bonds are required. No credit inquiries made of friends or relatives. No need to ask others to sign the loan papers with you (married couples sign together). You get your loan promptly and privately. Usually the money is ready for you the day after you apply.

Choose the plan that fits your budget

Locate the amount of cash you need in the loan table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment which best fits your budget. See how you can make very small payments if you wish. Or you can pay larger installments and pay up sooner. Note how little your loan costs if you repay in a short time. A loan of $100 repaid in four monthly installments costs $6.32. And to get a loan you need no endorsers. You are spared the nuisance of asking others to guarantee your loan.

Study the table. Note the convenience of Household's new payment plan. Then phone or visit us for further information without obligation.

CARDINALS PLAY RAGGEDLY AND LOSE TWICE TO PHILS, 6-5, 5-3

HIGBE AND HARRELL ARE WINNING PITCHERS; BIRDS HELD TO 5 HITS IN NO. 2

Former St. Louis Righthander Yields Only Four Safeties Before Retiring in Favor of Mulcahy in Eighth—Rookie's Double Wins Opener in Ninth.

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—The recently high-flying Redbirds of Raymond Francis Blades reached a new low for the young season this afternoon when they bowed before the pitching of Kirby Higbe, Ray Harrell and Hugh Mulcahy, played raggedly in the field and dropped a doubleheader to the lowly Phillies, 6 to 5 and 5 to 3.

Suffering their fifth and sixth defeats in nine games played on this unprofitable campaign on the road, the Cardinals lost ground in their efforts to overtake the Reds and to stay ahead of the upstart Dodgers.

Higbe, recently obtained from the Cubs in the Claude Passeau trade, held the Redbirds to eight hits and shaded Morton Cooper and Clyde Shoun in the opener, aided considerably by two St. Louis errors, one by Mize that made possible two unearned runs in the first inning and one by Jimmy Brown which figured in a ninth inning tally that broke a 5-5 tie and ended the first game.

First Victory for Harrell.

Harrell, the handsome righthander with a million dollars worth of stuff and a nickel's worth of control, who also figured in the Passeau trade, gave seven bases on balls before retiring in favor of Mulcahy in the eighth inning of the first game, but he held the Cardinals to four hits and emerged with his first triumph of the season. Bob Weiland and again Shoun were the St. Louis pitchers in the second game.

With one out in the first inning of the opener, Mize fumbled Hershel Martin's grounder, Emmett Mueller singled to center and Arnovich scored Martin and sent Mueller to third with a single to center. Mueller then scored on May's sacrifice fly to Terry Moore.

Medwick's single, Mize's double and a single by Slaughter tied the score in the second, but in the third Mueller doubled, Arnovich was passed intentionally and Marty, another Passeau trade acquisition, tripled to right center, scoring Mueller and Arnovich and then scored himself on May's sacrifice fly to Slaughter.

Terry Moore hit a home run in the fourth inning, S. Martin walked, took third on Moore's double and scored on Mize's sacrifice fly in the sixth and the Cards tied the score in the ninth when Slaughter doubled, took third on a sacrifice and went home on Franks' infield out.

Shoun pitched the eighth and ninth for the Cards and with two out in the ninth Higbe beat out a grounder on which Brown made a good stop behind second, but the pitcher took second on Brown's wild throw. First Baseman John Bolling, fresh from an airplane trip from Atlanta and making his first appearance in a Phillie uniform, then hit to left field, scoring Higbe with the winning run, and was credited with a double.

Lead Throughout Nichtcap.

The Phils were in command all the way in the second game. With two out in the third, Bolling, H. Martin and Mueller singled, Arnovich doubled and the Phillies had a two-run lead. In the fourth Scharein walked, stole second, continued to third on Owen's bad throw and scored on Millies' sacrifice fly.

A pass to Stuart Martin, a wild throw by May and a single by Medwick produced a run in the sixth and in the seventh King and Moore walked and Medwick drove in another run with a single. The third and final St. Louis tally was produced in the ninth when S. Martin and Franks walked and Mize singled.

Mickey Owen was charged with three errors during the contest. He made a wild throw on Scharein's steal in the fourth, missed Arnovich's pop foul in the sixth and was given a miscue on a perfect peg in the eighth when H. Martin and Mueller worked a double steal because nobody covered second base.

RED BIRD NOTES

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.

CURT DAVIS probably will start one of the games of tomorrow's doubleheader with the Phils. It will be his nineteenth appearance of the season. Bob Bowman may start the other. Hollingsworth, Schott and Sylvester Johnson are due for the Phils.

The Cardinals will use two off days in the schedule to play exhibitions at Grand Rapids, Monday, and at Kalamazoo Tuesday.

The opening twin bill with the Phillies attracted about 6000 cash customers.

Terry Moore's homer in the first game hit a railing above the left field wall and caromed upward into the stand and then out and there was a long discussion, while Moore was held at second base, before the umpires decided it was a four-bagger.

Don Gutteridge, in a protracted batting slump, retired for a pinch-batter in the seventh inning of the first game and Lynn Myers went to third and stayed there in the second game.

Mickey Owen, who had played in all previous games of the season, sat on the bench during the opening contest.

With Bolling on first in the fifth inning of the second game, Hershel Martin bunted a pop fly toward first. Mize thinking Bolling would run back to first, dropped the ball intentionally and threw to S. Martin at first to retire H. Martin. Bolling, who upset the trick by racing to second, made it a double play after all by trying for third, being doubled, S. Martin to Myers.

Golf Finals Tomorrow.

The Paramont Golf Club's annual spring tournament will be completed tomorrow when Richard Young opposes Sam Shepard for the championship at 36 holes. The match will be played o the 18-hole Forest Park course with starting times as 7:30 and 12:30. Results in the other flights: (A) Carl Bibbs defeated Ray Steward, 3 and 2; (B) William Alexander defeated Alfred Wilson, 6 and 5; (C) Robert Holton defeated Garfield Kirksey, 3 and 2. Julia Siler defeated Addie McConico for the women's championship.

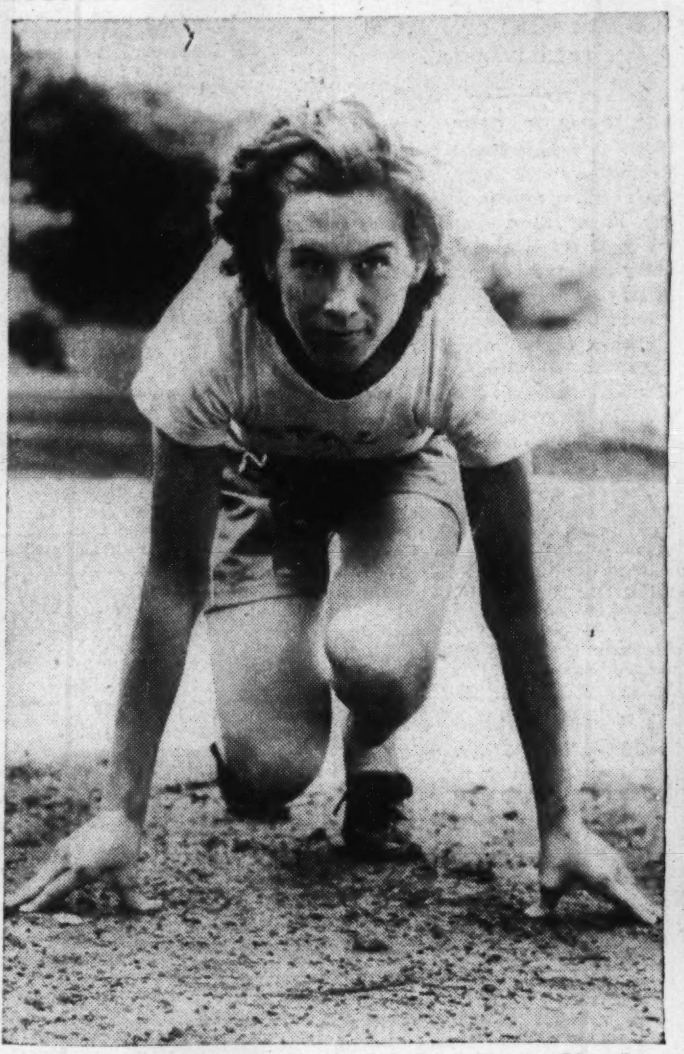
Helen Is Gone; but Here Comes Thelma!



Two views of the Ozark district's hope for the Olympics, Thelma Lalumondier, taken as she trained for today's Ozark championships at her home town, Crystal City. How that Helen Stephens is professionalized, Thelma is rated the best Olympic prospect from this area. At left—On her mark in the 100-yard dash, waiting for the starting gun. Right—Thelma at the top of her stride.

Thelma Lalumondier May Have to Step Fast In Ozark Meet Today

By Robert Morrison

A year ago Thelma Lalumondier was a 17-year-old sprinter of some promise. She was the standout of the Ozark District A. A. U. track meet and she went to the national championships. But she failed to make the grade.

Today, with a year of needed experience behind her, she comes back again in the Ozark meet at Crystal City, her home, and this time she is determined nothing will stop her.

She will not face a large field, but she will compete against a woman who in 1932 was good enough to finish fifth in the Olympic 100-meter dash at Los Angeles —Mrs. Elizabeth Wilde Kinnard.

The Crystal City girl is very keyed up about it.

"I just can't let her beat me," she said in a youthful outburst of apprehension. "If I don't win, I'll quit; I'll just die if she beats me. It wasn't so bad in Connecticut (where last year's nationals were held), but down here, before the home folks"——

That would be terrible.

No doubt Miss Lalumondier will not be able to poke along the track and pick daisies, but she may not have too much to fear from Mrs. Kinnard, who is just recovering from a throat infection of a week ago, and has not had what she considers sufficient training for the races.

Still, a look at their records and past activity indicates it should be a good race, all things considered.

Miss Lalumondier believes she has improved over last year, when she won the 100-yard dash in 11.4 seconds and the 50-yard sprint in 6.1. At the national meet she finished seventh in the 100 meters, won by the Negro girl, Lula Hymes, in 12.4. Miss Lalumondier was caught flatfooted at the start, after four false sendoffs.

"Last year," said her coach, Jerome Blanton of Crystal City High School, "I was as confident as I'm standing here, that she would have won. But she was left at the mark."

In practice he doesn't tell her what time she is making. He said her best time this year was 11.7 in the Mineral Area relays 100-yard dash, but he also recalled that before last year's meet, her best time did not break 12 seconds. And she won in 11.4.

Mrs. Kinnard, married four years and mother of a 3-year-old boy, has kept in condition playing basketball in the St. Louis Municipal League.

From Kansas City, she was second-ranking woman sprinter in the United States in 1932, went to the Olympics and tied for fifth with Marie Dollinger of Germany in the 100 meters, after winning a preliminary heat in 11.9. In 1933 she was second in the national 200-meter dash.

Then she went to Webster College and participated in sports. In 1935 she ran against Helen Stephens at Kansas City. The Olympic flash set an American record of 11.6 for 100 meters. Mrs. Kinnard pulled a muscle in her leg and didn't finish.

Like Miss Lalumondier, Mrs. Kinnard will seek to go to the next Olympics. Crystal City may be another way-station on the road to Finland.

Miss Lalumondier also will compete in the broad jump. She has done better than 17 feet at times and likely will receive little competition from the other entry in this event, Miriam Melton of St. Louis.

In the Ozark men's championships today, athletes will be trying to win the Post-Dispatch's high point trophy. Bill McLane of Cape Girardeau, last year's high point man; Bill Lewis, St. Louis Negro; Clinton Allison, Cape sprinter, are some of the leading contenders.

Eight champions will defend their titles: McLane, in the two hurdles races; Lewis, in the 220-yard dash and the broad jump; Ray Alsbury of St. Louis, 100-yard dash; Charles Malley, St. Louis, half-mile; Don Miceli, St. Louis, shotput; Tom Paisley, Cape Girardeau, discus; Ben Moore, Shurtleff College, high jump, and Miss Lalumondier, in the women's sprints.

ROBT. DREESSEN VICTOR IN A. A. U. FIVE-MILE RACE

Robert Dreessen, former Roosevelt High School athlete representing the South Side Y. M. C. A. won a road race of 4.4 miles at Crystal City yesterday afternoon in 22 minutes 29.7 seconds.

The race, sanctioned by the Ozark A. A. U., was run in a driving rain. John Luethge of the St. Louis Relays Association finished second and Robert Seib, Belleville, third.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Mere Imagination.

MIND bettors are making Joe Louis a write-your-own-ticket favorite over Tony Galento for their title fight. Odds of 1 to 10 are mentioned—but that's all. Nobody would risk money at such a figure. The public seldom cares to put up more than five dollars to win one, even on a sure shot.

The world no doubt is wondering if the affair is really a fight or a push-over.

GALENTO.

Fans ask if there is any reason why a 29-year-old beer guzzler, who has been beaten 22 times, who three times lost on a TKO and twice on fouls, should be rated a chance with the Brown Bomber.

The "expert" group scoffs at Galento's aspirations to the championship. The professional boxing element believes that Tony was built up because there no longer was any other opponent available.

Most qualified observers consider him a tough foe for second-raters, game and with a punch, but entirely out of his class in speed and quick punching ability, when compared with Louis. Because Tony is as wide open as the garden gate, they look for a quick finish.

SOME OFFICIALS, however, shake their heads about the matter. They think Tony is no two-minute egg like Schmeling, Lewis and Roper turned out to be.

For example, Referee Walter Heisner, who handled the Galento-Otis Thomas fight, when asked about the fight, commented:

"Galento really has a punch—no doubt of that. It only took one to settle Otis Thomas. He has a dangerous hook to the head or body; and a man with such a punch must always be considered. Furthermore, he has proved that he is game, and he is built like a seven-ton truck. He can take it.

"Such a combination could be dangerous. Mind, I'm not picking Galento. Not at all. Louis has too many wonderful assets. But you can't call Galento a pushover, as was the case with many of the Bomber's foes."

GALENTO SUPPORTERS base their arguments on the fact that Louis takes a punch to the head none too well. Joe shows confusion after a solid rap to the dome. Should that happen in the Galento bout, that two-ton punch of Tony's might mop up.

And then wouldn't the world's pugilistic outlook be a honey!

He's Training—They Say.

PUBLICITY SENT OUT by the House of Jacobs—Mike and Joe—tells us that Tony Galento has quit training with a bung starter and is doing road work, calisthenics, rope-skipping and boxing. We don't believe all of it because the only way Tony could run the advertised five miles daily would be if he had hold of a bear's tail and couldn't let go. And as for boxing, that's out—Tony don't know what the word means, likely enough.

But he is moving around and perspiring and developing his wind. If it's any enhancement of his prospects you can depend on it that he will be the best trained Tony that ever called the champion a bum.

And, incidentally, we wonder what Tony will really think as he steps in the ring with Louis, remembering all the rough names he has called the Bomber? After the first punch Tony probably will feel like changing his phraseology from "you big bum" to "you big bomb."

That is, provided Tony is able to talk at all.

Nights and Sundays.

WHEN CELLA, ADLER AND TILLES, famous big-shot triumvirate which ruled racing here on two sides of the Mississippi, a generation or more ago, first applied for recognition and official dates from the Western Jockey Club, then the governing body in this section, it is related that the reply was terse and tart.

"Yes, you may have dates," said the W. J. C. "You may race on nights and Sundays."

That made the local men mad and they took the jockey club at its word—they built a night race track on Russell avenue. And it went over rather well—so well that Chris von der Ahe converted

REDS OUTHIT DODGERS, 12-6, BUT LOSE, 7-6

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—The Dodgers, who never give their fans a dull day, defeated the league-leading Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 6, today in spite of being outhit 12 to 6 and bombed by four Cincinnati homers.

Seven bases on balls given by Johnny Vander Meer and Gene Thompson, first two of four pitchers used by the Reds, made up for the disparity in hits.

Ernie Koy, having one of the hottest hitting streaks in the big leagues at the moment, belted doubles in the first and third innings for five runs to put Brooklyn in front and after the Dodgers blew this lead, they came from behind in a weird eighth inning to win.

Koy's first hit followed two walks and his second came after two walks and a single had filled the bases.

Ernie Lombardi homered in the second and Lonnie Frey in the sixth but Luke Hamlin survived until the Reds really rampaged in the eighth with four runs on homers by Bill Werber and Frank McCormick, the latter coming after Frey had singled and Ival Goodman tripled.

Forrest Pressnell, who relieved Hamlin, got the victory when the Dodgers pushed across two runs in the last half of the inning on a walk and two singles. Lee Grissom, who pitched to only one batter—Pinchhitter Pete Coscarat, who got the first single—was charged with the defeat.

Giants Rejoice That Derringer Is "Ineligible"

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP). — Maybe it's just as well for the New York Giants that Big Paul Derringer can't come to town to pitch a baseball game without paying up or being put in jail.

Derringer's team, Cincinnati, is leadinng the National League, the dejected Giants are sixth, and Derringer has beaten them twice this season, shutting them out once with five hits. The Reds lost to the third-place Brooklyn Dodgers, 7 to 6, today, but jail-shy Derringer wouldn't have pitched anyway because he had won one in Philadelphia Thursday.

Needed or not, Derringer remained in Philadelphia, avoiding a "body execution" obtained against him in State Supreme Court by Robert E. Condon, industrial engineer of Larchmont, N. Y., whom Derringer owes $8170 on account of a fracas in a Philadelphia hotel in 1936.

Condon obtained a judgment for $8170, claiming that the pitcher assaulted him. The latest order against Derringer requires that he be arrested and held until he pays the judgment or post bond for twice the amount. The bond would prevent Derringer from leaving the county, which would restrict his activities, since the Reds will play a long series at home after leaving Brooklyn tomorrow.

That's how things stand.

Gehrig to Go To Clinic for Examination

Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankees' "Iron Horse" who set a record of 2130 consecutive games for his team and who, early in the season, gave up his regular first-base post to Babe Dahlgren, wants to know what's the matter with him.

To find out, Gehrig, this week, will go to the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., for a general check-up. Gehrig will leave for Rochester after playing in an exhibition game at Kansas City, tomorrow.

"I don't know how long it will take" Gehrig said last night. "I don't know their routine up there. Some say it will take three or four days; some say, two weeks. It's just for a general check-up."

"Do you expect to return to the Yanks this season?" he was asked.

"Of course I do," he replied, "why not?"

BYRON NELSON, CRAIG WOOD AND SHUTE TIE FOR OPEN TITLE

EACH HAS 284 FOR 72 HOLES; GULDAHL FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO WIN CROWN THIRD TIME

Three Leaders to Play Off for Championship Over 18 Holes Today—Snead Blows Up on Last Hole, Takes 8 Strokes to Lose Chance.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—Ralph Guldahl, the long, lanky lad who came out of Texas some years ago to make his first bid for fame and fortune in the St. Louis Open tournament at Sunset Hills Country Club, failed in his effort to be the first golfer of modern times to win the United States Open championship three years in succession and finished in a tie for fourth place with Dick Metz, Chicago, with a 72-hole score of 288.

Three seasoned campaigners tied for the title and will play off in an 18-hole round tomorrow afternoon.

They are Craig Wood, Byron Nelson and Denny Shute, each of whom had a score of 284, to tie for the prize at the end of the forty-third national open tournament over the 6786-yard Spring Mill course of the Philadelphia Country Club.

It will be the first play off the Open has produced since 1931 at Inverness when Billy Burke beat George Von Elm in 144 holes.

Nelson, who plays out of Reading, Pa., was a ball of fire in his final two rounds, when the pressure was toughest. Of the three finalists, he made up the most ground, with scores of 71 in the morning and a one-under-par 68 for his last round after being tied for sixteenth place at the half way mark. Shute had rounds of 70 and 72 today and Wood 72-72.

Ward Has 285.

Nelson, one of the several men quoted as 10-1 second choices to Guldahl before the tournament started on Thursday, was the first to post this figure. He came in just behind Marvin (Bud) Ward, the brilliant amateur from Spokane, Wash., who shot a gallant 72 for 285.

With Nelson in and Snead blown up with a disastrous 8 on the par five eighteenth, Wood was the next man to come down that long, 558-yard finishing hole. The big blond from Mamaroneck (N. Y.), who lost to Shute in a playoff for the 1933 British Open title, whipped out two screaming shots to be on the green in two.

Only 12 feet from the cup, he needed that putt for an eagle 3 and 283. But the ball wouldn't drop; Nelson and Wood were tied; and it appeared that Shute, coming up four twosomes behind, would be able to edge out both of them. He only needed to shoot three pars for his 283.

Had he taken his par on the fifteenth, he would have been able to waste a shot under this pressure. But a straying tee shot that went into the rough and a trapped approach had cost him a 5 there, and that one stroke loomed like a dozen after Shute, two-time P. G. A. champion, had finished the seventeenth.

Here his drive caught a trap and caught it in such a bad lie that he barely was able to play out into the fairway and had no chance at all of getting his second home. On in three, he was too far away to make the putt, and again there was a black five on his card.

Gallery of 10,000.

That meant a birdie for victory or a par for a tie. With most of the tremendous gallery of 10,000 strung down both sides of the fairway, Shute poked out two handsome shots that left him 75 yards short of the green. Still there was a chance that Denny might pitch one up stiff and sink the putt.

Shute arched a high pitch and the ball stopped 30 feet from the cup. Denny took a hitch at his cap, studied the line closely, stroked his putt and, by the margin of less than a foot, fell short of being crowned the forty-third U. S. Open champion.

If his finish was a tragic blow to Shute, it was no more so than the almost unbelievable way in which Snead played out his closing round. Right up to the final hole slugging Sam was the leader, despite the five he took at the twelfth, for at that point his score was one shot beter than Shute's and two better than Nelson's and Wood's.

But something, and no one quite knew what, struck Sam on the eighteenth. Nothing much was thought of it when the West Virginia mountaineer, who was second to Guldahl in 1937, put his second shot in a trap short of the green. But then he flubbed one in the bunker, lifted the ball out of that trap and into another with his fourth, finally got on with his fifth 40 feet away and then added misery to mishap by taking three putts, going a foot over the cup on his first one and then rolling by the hole coming back.

Sam Didn't Have It.

It was on the closing holes of this up and down hill layout with its gaping white sand traps and tricky greens that Snead took the lead with a 68 in the first round and retain it with 139 strokes yesterday. But today Sam just didn't have it when he needed it most.

His big 8 gave him a 74, two shots off the lead and one behind Ward, who might have been the first amateur to take the championship since Johnny Goodman in 1933. What killed the West Coast big hitter's chances was the one shot thirteenth hole, where his tee shot struck a galleryite and wound up in an almost impossible lie. Where he probably would have had a par 3 and perhaps a birdie, Ward instead took a 5.

Next in line at 287 came Johnny Bulla, a 25-year-old Chicago pro who shot a 68 to lead Snead, Wood, Shute and Clayton Heafner by a stroke after 54 holes with 211. Bulla completely stole the galleries' affections from Guldahl with whom he was paired. But the burly youngster couldn't stand the pace, and in the afternoon kited to a 76. Guldahl, who had come from behind to win his championships at Denver and Detroit but had five shots to make up when today's play started, finished with a pair of 72's and in a tie at 288 with Dick Metz, runner up to him a year ago.

Ky Laffoon, Jug McSpaden and P. G. A. champion Paul Runyan, 289; home club pro Ed Dudley, Henry Picard and Harry Cooper, at 290, and Horton Smith, second to Snead at the half way mark, with 291 trailed in that order. Heafner, who equaled the tournament 18-hole record shared by Walter Hagen, Johnny Goodman, Tom Creavy, Gene Sarazen and Jimmy Thomson, with a three under par 66 in the morning, blew himself to 80 big blows in the afternoon and took 292.

The $1000 first prize will go to the winner of tomorrow's play-off, while the second man will get $800 and the third $700. If the latter two should tie, they'll split the money. If there's a tie for first, there'll be another playoff Monday.

Sam Snead Plays Some Sunday Golf

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.

SLAMMING SAM SNEAD, the leader at 18 and 36 holes of the United States open and one shot off the pace at 54 holes, was in the rough off the eighteenth tee. His second caught a trap to the left; he missed his third, the ball merely going up to the rim of the trap, and his fourth went into the rough on the fringe of another trap. On his fifth, Sam finally got on, 30 feet in front of the cup, and from there he took three putts, missing one of less than a foot, to get a 74 and lose any chance he might have had of winning.

Injury to Keep Coleman Morse Out of P.G.A. Meet

Coleman Morse, president of the Eastern Missouri P. G. A., announced last night that because of an arm injury he will not be able to play in the National P. G. A. tournament next month.

Morse, Normandie Golf Club professional, was low qualifier in the sectional trials at Sunset recently, despite his arm condition, but his doctor would not permit him to attempt to play in the national meet.

This necessitates a playoff among three who tied for third place in the trials—Alex Ayton, St. Louis Country Club, Frank Fogertey, Greenbriar, and Ray Schwartz, driving tee. They will play an 18-hole round at Sunset next Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Coleman's brother, Clark, was the other qualifier and he intends to compete in the national meet at Pomonok Country Club, Long Island, N. Y., July 9.

Bob Jessiman, Bellerive, whose score of 148 was better than that of the three who tied for third, was not eligible for competition as he had failed to pay his membership dues before the May 20 deadline.

J. H. LEWIS TO SUBMIT TO EYE EXAMINATION

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).—John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight boxing champion, will submit to an eye examination in Pittsburgh, Thursday, to determine his fitness for further competition, the National Boxing Association was informed today.

Charles F. Reynolds, president of the association, said that if Lewis passed the test he would be required to defend his title. If not, he added, the title would be declared vacant and the N. B. A. Ratings Committee would propose at its next meeting a title fight between Melio Bettina and any of these opponents:

Billy Conn, Pittsburgh; Dave Clark, Detroit; Gus Lesnevich, Cliffside, N. J.; Ron Richards, Australia; the winner of the Len Harvey-Jack McAvoy bout.

Byron Nelson, Reading, Pa., Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N. Y. and Denny Shute, tied for the U. S. Open championship with 284 for 72 holes. They will playoff for the title over the 18-hole route today. The winner will receive the cup they're struggling for to say nothing of $1000 prize money.

Bob Stamm and Weiss Meet in District Final

By W. J. McGoogan

A brand new St. Louis District golf champion will be crowned at Bellerive Country Club today, when Bob Stamm of Normandie, and Jonas Weiss, Crystal Lake, meet in the 36-hole final of the twenty-fourth annual tournament there.

Neither of these youngsters, seeking the title which Chester O'Brien had to abandon to play in the U. S. Open at Philadelphia, has ever been in a district final before.

Both, however, have been junior champions and were team members of the University City High School squad which won the high school championship in 1932 and 1933. They were highly important members of that team, too. The 1933 victory gave U. City permanent possession of the trophy.

In his march to the final Stamm defeated Roy Flesh, Algonquin, 3 and 2; Jerome Harris, Forest Park, 5 and 4; Frank Bredall, Crystal Lake, 4 and 2; Jim Spencer, Forest Park, 3 and 1, and Dick Kohlman, Glen Echo, in the semi-finals, 11 and 10.

Weiss triumphed over Frank Kane, Triple A, 7 and 6; John Bohan, Forest Park, 4 and 3; Bob Holmes, University City, 5 and 3; Sid Salomon, Westwood, 3 and 2, and Bob Cochran, Norwood Hills, tournament favorite, 2 up in their semi-final contest.

Stamm and Weiss have almost equal ability. Stamm qualified with a 78 and Weiss with a 75. So linksiders believe that the result today may turn on the matter of temperament under fire.

Stamm likes to play quickly; he doesn't waste much time with his shots. Weiss is a deliberate player; Jonas is a plugger and a fighter and would seem inclined to be more cool than Stamm when the going is rough.

The match is a fitting climax to the best district tournament held here in years. Youth took command of the event almost at the start and has held sway to the finish.

The elimination of Bob Cochran means that the Ben Langan trophy will remain in competition for at least another year. It must be won three times to become the permanent possession of an individual and Cochran has won t twice.

The first 18 holes today is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a. m. and the second at 1:30 p. m.

WHITEHILL PITCHES, CUBS BEAT BEES, 2-1

BOSTON, June 10 (AP).—Emerging on top in a bit of last-minute maneuvering between the rival managers, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Boston Bees, 2 to 1, today in the first game of their series at National League field. It was Earl Whitehill's third victory of the season.

With the Cubs two runs to the good in the last half of the ninth, the Bees pushed Eddie Miller over the plate with a sacrifice fly. Then pinch-hitter Al Simmons, appearing for Pitcher Milburn Shoffner, singled. Manager Casey Stengel, of Boston, sent Johnny Cooney to bat for Debs Garms—and Gabby Hartnett countered by sending Charlie Root to pitch in place of Whitehill.

Stengel quickly yanked Cooney, who was credited by the scorer as batting for Garms although he did not get a turn at bat, and sent in Elbie Feltcher to bat for Cooney. Fletcher lined out and Jimmy Outlaw ended the game with a long fly to Jimmy Gleeson in right field.

Carl Reynolds scored what proved to be the winning run in the seventh when he came home on Gleeson's bad-hop two-base hit through Henry Majeski.

FINE FIELD OF COLLEGE STARS IN COAST MEET

LOS ANGELES, June 10 (AP).—The nation's finest track and field stars descend on Los Angeles this week for the 18th Annual National Collegiate Athletic Association championships.

Into the stronghold of the reigning kings of the cinder path, the University of Southern California, march the best in the land, determined to wrest the crown from a trojan horde that has captured the team title for four straight years with power never equaled in the history of the event.

More than 200 athletes, the backbone of America's 1940 Olympic games challenge, go into action Friday and Saturday in Memorial Coliseum, scene of the 1932 Olympics.

Michigan, Stanford, Illinois, California, Louisiana State, Indiana and Ohio State, all past N. C. A. A. champions, are sending men to the tournament, as are 51 other schools around the country. The defending Trojans enter an undefeated Pacific Coast Conference team of 28.

Many individual champions of the 1938 meet at Minneapolis were expected for the coming event. Fred Wolcott of Rice Institute, winner of the high and low hurdles, Walter Mehl of Wisconsin, two-mile titleholder; Mozel Ellerbe of Tuskegee, Ala., who faces stiff competition for his 100-yard dash title; Shotput champion Elmer Hackney of Kansas State, Pete Zagar of Stanford in the discus, and Mile Champion Louie Zamperini and Pole Vaulter Loring (Bud) Day of Southern California—these and possibly one or two more were due to compete.

Johnny Woodruff, Pitt's 440 and 880 star, sent word today he would defend his N. C. A. A. 880 title instead of competing in the Princeton invitational. Woodruff won both the quarter and the half mile in the recent N. C. A. A. A. A. and probably will go after both titles in the coming event.

Nick Vukmanic of Penn State, 1938 javelin throw winner, also will be back to complete the list of eligible defending champions.

Southern California piled up 67¾ points to win the 1938 N. C. A. A., while Stanford was second with 38. Michigan came next with 28¾, and behind were Wisconsin, 28, and Notre Dame and Rice with 24 apiece.

11 WALKERS ENTERED IN TITLE RACE HERE

With his eye on John J. Abbate's national six-mile walking title, Stanley Rock, local walker from 1070 South Geyer road, Kirkwood, and member of the Ozark A. A. U., has filed entry for the National A. A. U., 10,000-meter walk here next Wednesday on the Tuberculosis day entertainment card at Sportsman's Park.

One other local contestant, Billy Tadlock, will be in the starting field.

Rock has competed in the last two A. A. U. walking events here on Tuberculosis day in 1937 and in 1938, without placing. He has just returned from Cincinnati, where he came in thirteenth in a large field in the National A. A. U. 31-mile championship walk.

Among other entries received yesterday by Charles Gevecker of the Ozark A. A. U. for the walk on Tuberculosis day was that of John Deni of Pittsburgh. Deni was a surprise second-placer in the walk last year, and this year promises even closer competition for Titleholded John J. Abbate of Cincinnati. Also threatening the titleholder will be Albert Ciceroni, veteran walker from Newark, N. J.

Yesterday's entries brought the total to 11, six of whom hail from Cincinnati. Several last-minute entries from Chicago and the East are expected before Wednesday, Gevecker said.

FIELD OF 100 IN WOMEN'S OPEN GOLF TOMORROW

A field of nearly 100 women, including four "business women" golfers, will tee off at Westwood Country Club tomorrow on the 18-hole qualifying round of the women's Western open golf tournament.

Miss Beatrice Barrett, Minneapolis, defending champion, and her qualifying partner, Mrs. Helen Hicks Harb, New York, are the first scheduled to start, with their tee time being 8:30 a. m.

Mrs. Harb, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, Miss Helen Dettweiler and Miss Virginia Pep are the business golfers.

Many of the entrants from outside the city are prominent golfers in their communities, including Mrs. Bert Weill, Cincinnati; Miss Shirley Ann Johnson, Chicago; Miss Ellamae Williams, Chicago; Mrs. Leon Solomon, Memphis, and Mrs. Sam Israel, New Orleans.

Mrs. R. I. Caughey, St. Louis women's district champion, will lead the local contingent, which, naturally, makes up the majority of the field.

Miss Dettweiler will be making her first appearance as a professional, as she has just deserted the amateur ranks.

The 32 low qualifiers will go into the championship flight, with match play starting Tuesday, a round a day following until Saturday, when the finals are scheduled to be played over the 36-hole route.

ALLEN DEFEATS ATHLETICS ON TWO HITS, 6-0

CLEVELAND, June 10 (AP). — The Cleveland Indians went into a virtual third-place tie with the idle Chicago White Sox today as Fireball Johnny Allen defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 6 to 0, with two-hit pitching.

The Tribe blasted three Philahelphia hurlers for 11 hits, driving Nelson Potter from the hill with a four-run attack in the seventh. Bob Joyce finished the frame and Roy Parmelee succeeded him to start the eighth.

The victory was Allen's third in six starts. Earl Brucker and Babe Siebert were the only A's to hit safely, getting singles in the second and fourth innings.

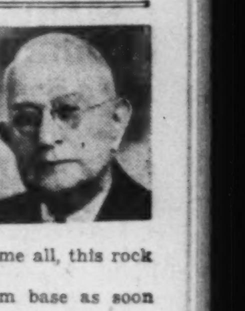
SCOTTISH ALL-STARS DEFEAT VANCOUVER FOR EIGHTH VICTORY

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 10 (Canadian Press)—A goal by Left Winger Jimmie Gillies in the closing minutes today gave the touring Scottish Internationals a 3-2 win over a Vancouver all-star soccer eleven. It was the Scotch team's eighth victory in nine games on the trip.

Vancouver rallied from the Scots' 2-0 half-time lead to tie the score before the winning counter was tallied.

Sport SALAD by L. C. Davis



Forget It, Max.

ALTHOUGH Max Baer did not go out
In a so-called blaze of glory,
Beyond the shadow of a doubt
His end was somewhat gory.

At Lou he wants another go
Which seemingly is futile,
Because to make more crimson flow
Were nothing less than brutal.

Maybe Max thinks that in a return engagement he could profit by the mistakes he made before. But it wouldn't help much as the biggest mistake he made was getting into the ring in the first place.

However—

A MAN convinced against his will,
Especially in the ring,
Is of the same opinion still
Until the birdies sing.

It's not so much the drivers' skill
As giving morbid guys a thrill.

SCHUMACHER GOES ROUTE, TRIMS PIRATES

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP). — After giving the Pittsburgh Pirates two runs on three hits in the first inning, "Prince Hal" Schumacher settled down today to scatter four safeties through the remaining innings and enable the New York Giants to win their series opener, 6 to 2.

Zeke Bonura doubled a pair of runs home in the last of the first and one of two errors committed by Bill Brubaker paved the way for two unearned runs in the third to give the Giants a lead they never surrendered.

Mace Brown, who relieved Truett Sewell in the fourth, quickly gave up two singles and the Giants completed their scoring on a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly.

PRINCE ARGO WINS CLOSING-DAY HANDICAP AT FAIRMOUNT

PEGGING AWAY SECOND IN RACE ON MUDDY TRACK

By Dent McSkimming

Neither mud nor the burden of 125 pounds on his back could stop the consistent Prince Argo yesterday afternoon as he splashed his way to victory in the Au Revoir Handicap, closing-day stake at Fairmount Park.

The bettors in the crowd of 10,000 recognized Prince Argo as the best of the field of eight but there was some question whether he could give his best effort on a water-soaked track. He was allowed to go to the post at odds of 13 to 10 whereas on a dry track he would probably have been an odds-on favorite.

His neck victory over Pegging Away was his third in succession here for Owner-Trainer Norman Hernandez, who ships his stable tomorrow to Detroit.

Closing day will be long remembered by those present as the day of the solid rain. The storm which swept the track during the running of the third race made it impossible to distinguish the horses until they reached the wire. For the first time in the 10 years that he has been making the form chart for Daily Racing Form, E. A. Miller was unable to pick out the horses, the rain was so heavy. As a result, the chart of the race will show only the order of finish.

Rain fell in such quantities that the drainage system backed up and the betting ring was flooded, a condition which paralyzed betting activity, particularly on the outcome of the fourth race. Water was ankle deep near the main entrance to the grounds and near the paddock. One self-appointed "messenger" kicked off his shoes, peeled off his socks, rolled up his trousers and waded to the mutual windows, exchanging cash for tickets for bettors who didn't like water.

Miss Ivory Scores.

It was a daughter of the great Misstep that gave the favorites a lesson in running the mile as the program opened. Miss Ivory, with Carlberg up, had to move fast to catch Gold Reef in the back stretch but with that job finished she had the race won. Shining Sea, nearest rival, weakened to the staggering point in the last 70 yards, but was good enough to beat Crystal Witch and nine others.

A "field" horse, Big Chariot, gave the favorite, The Nizam, a contest for half a mile of the second race, but Joe Dyer's mount was good enough to pull away on the turn. Then, in the stretch, Blind Star, Jean Dale, Dolly E. and others charged down as The Nizam weakened and the finish was a thriller. Blind Star, in the middle of the track, was beaten by a head and Jean Dale was a nose farther back.

Rain started to fall while the horses were in the paddock before the start of the third race.

Fortunately for the placing judges, it was not necessary to call for a photo to decide the winner of the third race. Ripplealong was a good two lengths in advance of Sioux Chief and he, in turn, was four lengths better than Falermian. It was impossible to see from the grandstand what changes in position were made during the running of the race.

Field Horses in Money.

Changed track conditions gave the "field" horses much the better of it in the fourth and they finished one-two-four. Ogee was the best of the trio, setting the pace and finishing the mile well in spite of the fact that he had run a gruelling three quarters the day before when he finished second to Dixie Dora.

The favorites were outrun in the fifth. Grecian Time set all the pace, Chipeta, which came on to win, was close up on the turn and moved up as Joyce K. weakened. Hanauer worked hard with Hiddenite to steal third money from Joyce K. and Ace of Spades.

Don Scurlock gave Uncle Mitch all the better of the seventh race in getting him away well and keeping him out on top under restraint for three-quarters but in the last furlong, Brilliant Pal and Proposing, coming fast on the outside, went to the front and finished one-two, half a length apart. Uncle Mitch was next and the others didn't figure.

Open Hearth Takes Finale.

The stanch stretch runner Open Hearth came from far back to pass a half dozen horses from the half mile pole to the wire in winning the last race of the last day of the meeting. Bon Champ, the pacemaker, looked like a winner turning for home but when Jockey Cassity looked over his shoulder at the eighth pole and saw the big grey horse charging, he went to work with the whip. With the crowd cheering him on, Open Hearth ate up more ground and caught the leader in the final yards to win by half a length. Kuvera was third.

The wife of A. Bordeau, trainer of Chipeta, winner of the fifth race, carried off the $500 handicap prize.

VOLITANT WINS 'THE SHEVLIN,' CHALLENGE OUT

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—After a blistering drive through the long home stretch, Volitant, flying the Saratoga Stable silks of George Bull and John Morris, today won his first victory of the 1939 racing season in the one-mile Shevlin Stakes at Aqueduct.

Before 12,000 fans, the Display colt took the $5425 winner's share of the purse by a head from Samuel Bachrach's Golden Voyage. Mrs. Payne Witney's Third Degree was a belated third, three lengths behind, while Tall Story was fourth. The favored entry of Mrs. H. C. Phillips' Gilded Knight and William Woodward's Challenge, trained by Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, proved a disappointment, Gilded Knight coming in seventh after being well placed early in the race.

Volitant, ridden by Don Meade, was a 3-1 second choice and he ran the mile in the excellent time of 1:36 4-5 in his first start since the Preakness, in which he ran third to Challedon.

The result was not official until a foul claim, lodged by Golden Voyage's rider, Basil James, had been disallowed by the stewards. The two horses fought it out desperately through the stretch and James claimed he was held in tight quarters, but a patrol judge reported Meade had given him racing room.

Volitant was unruly at the post and was placed outside the stalls. He was last away but broke in motion and was up with the leaders at the first turn. Golden Voyage, the only horse in the field of nine not eligible to match strides with Johnstown and Challedon in the Dwyer next Saturday, got away to a five-lengths lead and remained on top until Volitant drew up even at the head of the stretch.

Valley and Big Six Football Officials to Undergo Tests

By James M. Gould

Football "clinics," during which coaches of the game dissect and analyze plays, formations and such are thoroughly familiar to followers of the college sport but there's something new in the three-day session to be held Aug. 31 and Sept. 1-2 at the Kansas City Athletic Club.

The sessions are for football officials and include written examinations in the rules and physical tests as well as a get-together between officials and coaches in the Missouri Valley and Big Six conferences. Plans for the meeting are in charge of Arthur E. Eilers of Washington University, executive secretary of the valley group.

Eilers, recently was named as head of the board for the selection of officials for all games in the Valley.

According to Eilers, the officiating at football games all over the country is on the way to standardization and this plan has been welcomed by athletics directors and coaches who have been contacted. It is contended that a closer relationship between coaches and officials will make for a better understanding of mutual problems and for a better game on the field.

All officials having games either in the Valley or Big Six are expected to attend. Some of the veterans, it is said, are rather fearful of the athletic test for efficiency. There's a 50-yard dash on the program and a certain time is required. Failure to meet these physical tests means cancelaton of dates already made.

Collins Best Second Baseman.

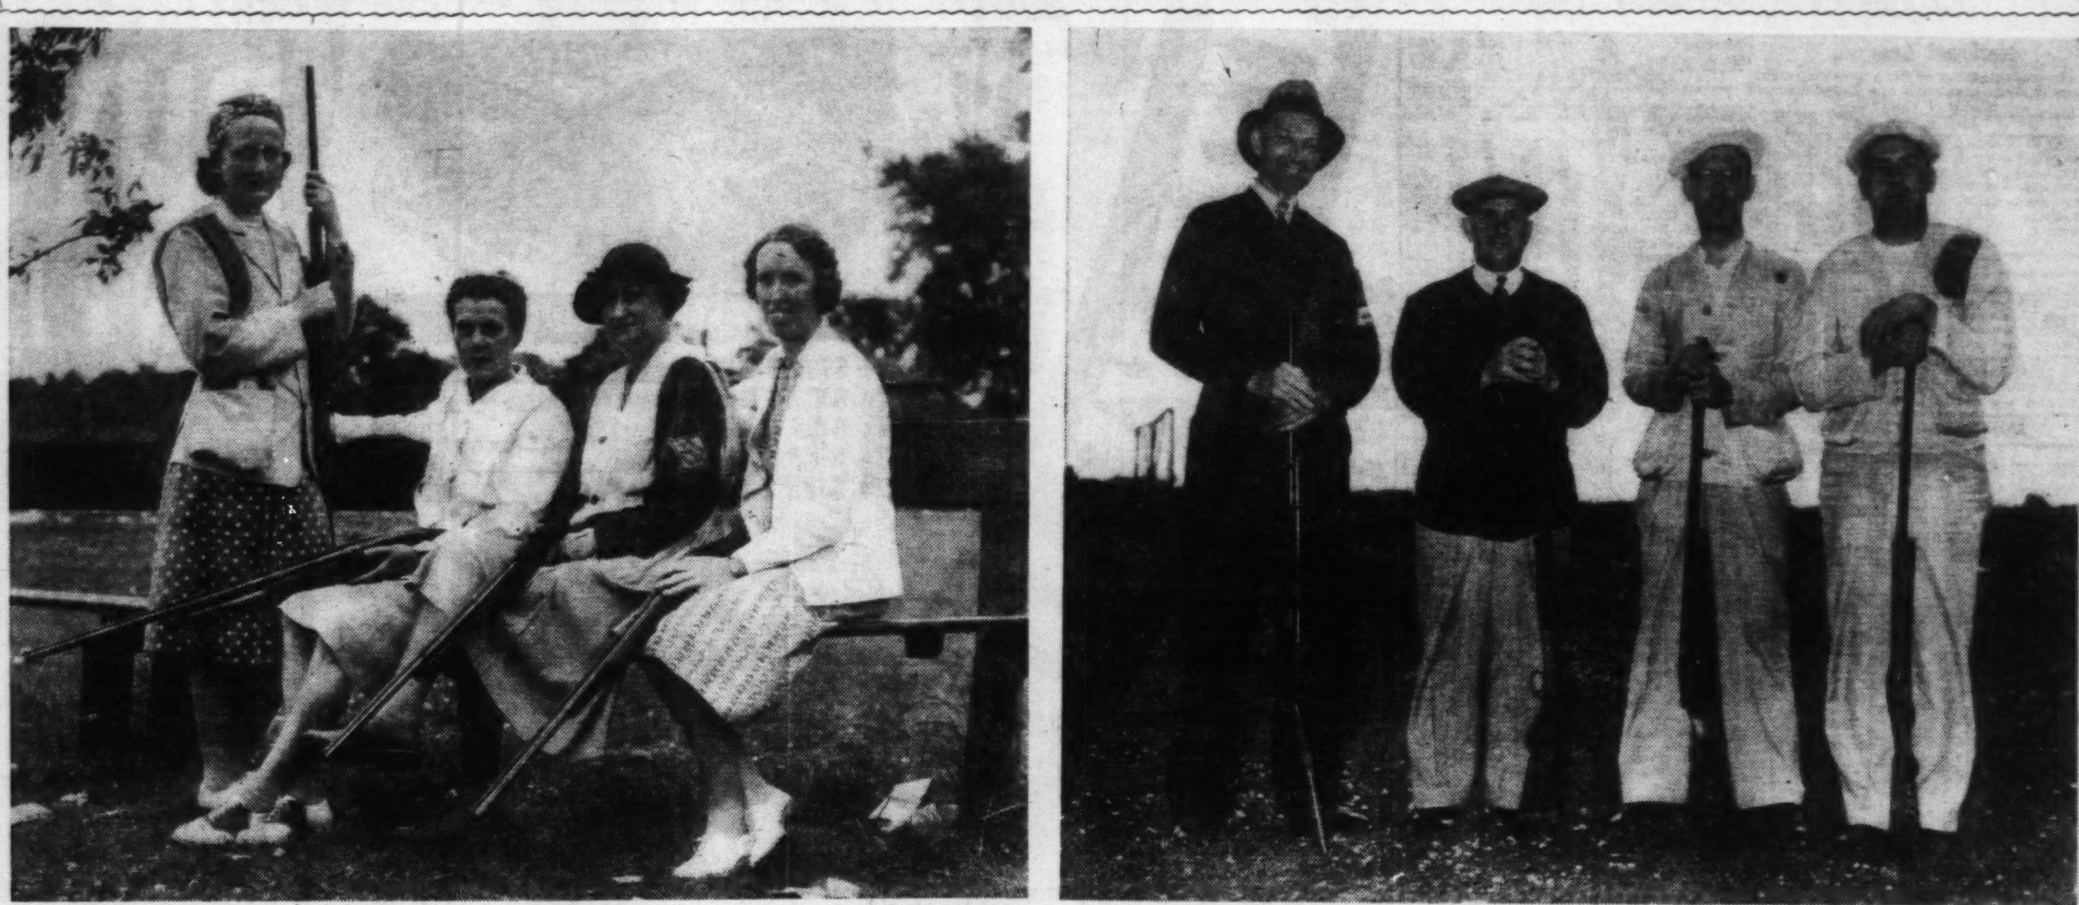
HENRY BEATS FRANZ IN SHOOTOFF FOR STATE TRAP TITLE

WHAT'S ALL THE SHOOTING ABOUT? THEY'LL TELL YOU



Mrs. Lela Hall of Strasbourg, Mo., who became Missouri state trapshoot champion for the ninth time in the meet at Creve Coeur Gun Club yesterday, is at the left with other competitors in the women's division, who are, left to right: Mrs. Russ Elliott, who tied for second; Mrs. John A. Flury, St. Louis, fourth; Miss Florence Mos, Kansas City, who tied for second.

EACH BREAKS 199 OUT OF 200 TO TIE FOR FIRST

Mrs. Lela Hall Wins Women's Crown and Ray Fienup, St. Louis, Captures Junior Division.

Thirty-one-year-old David G. Henry, employed by the United States Engineers' department at Kansas City, successfully defended his singles championship yesterday at the Creve Coeur Gun Club in the Missouri State Trapshooting championships after winning in a special shootoff with Oscar B. Franz of St. Louis. Each turned in a 100 straight after morning rounds of 99 for a 199 total.

In the shootoff both broke 25 straight in the first round, each missed one target in the second, while Henry, a Kansas U. graduate, got 25 straight in the third extra round and Franz missed his twenty-fourth clay "bird" to lose.

Other Title Winners.

Two other Kansas City Trapshooting Club members captured State titles in yesterday's competition. Mrs. Lela Hall of Strasburg, four-time winner of the women's Grand American title, won her ninth State championship by breaking 194 of 200 clay targets. The other winner was O. E. Grecian of Kansas City, who captured the veterans' high-gun award when shooting a 48 in his last 50 targets yesterday.

Incidentally, Henry also won the Elliott Cup, given to the high shooter in the singles competition regardless of non-resident restriction.

Carl Mos of Kansas City proved to be the stellar marksman of the second day when he broke 200 straight clay pigeons to win the professional award. Homer Clark of Alton was second with 195, C. B. W. Chapman of St. Louis third, with 191, and J. R. Judy of St. Louis, fourth, with 185.

Ed Best of St. Louis, who was tied with Henry, Franz and W. F. J. Fienup at the end of the first 100 targets, all having 99s, shot a 95 in the afternoon to share the State Class B title with C. W. Spaunhorst of Jefferson City, each having a 194. Three shooters, Raymond Fienup, Joseph L. Kleeschulte of Wentzville and Fred Kelley of Alton, tied for the next position with 193s. R. W. Hedrick of Jefferson City and Dr. M. E. Hagerty of St. Louis had 192s.

The Class C high-gun award was divided between Mike Beard of Kansas City and D. B. Berkley of Columbia, both ending their 200-target program with a pair of 190s. Three more competitors, Dr. David L. Penney of St. Louis, Sy Durham and Harry Neighbors of Taylorville, Ill., shot 188.

Second Place Tie.

Second place in the State women's competition ended in a tie between Mrs. Russell W. Elliott of Raytown and Miss Florence Mos of Kansas City. Both had 183s. Miss Mos, a three-time winner of the Kansas State trapshooting title and a compeitor in both rifle shooting and golf while a student at Wichita U., was favored to give Mrs. Hall a close battle for the State prize but failed to figure on the unexpected showing of Mrs. Elliott. Mrs. J. A. Flury of St. Louis was the fourth to compete in the women's event.

The State competition ends today with zone and non-resident team championships (100 targets), and the Missouri State handicap title event. A high-over-all award will be given for the best aggregate score in Friday's doubles, yesterday's singles and today's handicap event. Henry won last year's all-round title with a 375 total.

Shooters are using the standard 12-gauge shell. Competitors are no longer allowed to use any gauge smaller than 12.

Dr. David L. Penney of St. Louis was elected president of the Missouri State Trapshooting Association, while H. M. Schick of Lees Summit was named vice-president. Pete Sahm of St. Louis was the only new director elected. The 1940 shoot will go to Kansas City.

OUTDOORS

A Break for Duck Hunters.

AS A result of inquiries by the Missouri Duck Hunters' Association, the right of hunters to take migratory waterfowl in marsh or water areas where Japanese millet has been planted has been clarified.

A letter to members of the association from Secretary P. A. Noble reads:

"During the past 90 days we have written quite a few letters and sent several wires to the Biological Survey in regard to their classification of wild millet. We are enclosing a letter from Ira N. Gabrielson, chief of the Biological Survey, changing the previous ruling made on Japanese millet and their present interpretation is that it will not be contrary to the present Migratory Bird Treaty Act regulations to take migratory waterfowl during the open season in marsh or water areas where Japanese millet has been planted."

Members were informed that the scarcity of ducks last year in this area was partly due to lack of foods.

"We cannot stress too strongly the importance that all members who have duck shooting property and clubs plant wild food to offset this condition," the letter concludes.

Dr. Gabrielson's bulletin, dated April 26, 1939, and addressed to "Waterfowl Sportsmen and Dealers in Duck Foods," is in part as follows:

"Sportsmen and seed dealers are finding it difficult to distinguish between Japanese millet and native wild millet. This fact has become increasingly evident in recent weeks and it has also become apparent that many are uncertain as to the legality of hunting waterfowl in areas where this foreign millet has been planted.

"Japanese millet, though Asiatic in origin are closely related to the American species . . . and both are often included under the same common name, wild millet. . . .

"For this reason it is the present interpretation of the Biological Survey that it will not be contrary to the present Migratory Bird Treaty Act regulations to take migratory waterfowl during the open season on or in marsh or water areas where Japanese millet has been planted."

IRA N. GABRIELSON.

On the Right Foot

Nearly 150 of the finest shotgun marksmen and women in the Middle West are drawing beads on clay pigeons in the annual Missouri State Trapshoot Meet now under way at the Creve Coeur Gun Club. Of that number an even dozen shot scores of 95 or better the first day while David G. Henry of Kansas City broke 100 in his first 100 tries.

Oscar B. Franz, former champion, broke 98 out of 100 to lead the St. Louis contestants. Several local entries scored 96.

Although we are very happy to have a large percentage of shooters marking up high scores it reminds us that not so long ago a bulletin was received from the A. T. A., Vandalia, O., commenting on this very thing.

According to the bulletin, "that some changes in scoring in our trapshooting tournaments must be made is inevitable. Too frequently perfect scores are recorded while in some of our major meets following the listed number of rounds there are often 15 to 20 contestants tied for second or third place."

"To meet this situation tournaments are being arranged on a handicap basis. The better the shooter, the farther back from the line he stands."

Handicap events are always stimulative to novices or to the veterans who can't quite make the highest grade.

Missouri Channel Catfish.

Closed since midnight June 1, the season on channel catfish will not be reopened until 12:01 a. m., July 15, the interval being set aside for the complete protection of this game fish during its spawning season. All other species are eligible for the creel now.

Whether you fish the sparkling mountain streams for bass or the murky tributaries of the Missouri and Mississippi, you will eventually flip a channel cat into your creel. But hardly ever is it the sole intended victim of a game fishing trip.

Missouri is one of the four states doing experimental work in the artificial propagation of channel catfish. Nearly 200,000 of them were produced and distributed from the Chesapeake State hatchery, last year.

This fish, of which there are three known varieties in Missouri, are all true catfishes. Some specimens weighing as much as 15 to 20 pounds have been taken, but the channel cat seldom grows heavier than five pounds. Food is generally vegetable matter, insects and some fish, snails and clams.

Law-Abiding Fishermen

The Missouri Conservation Commission announced last week that fine co-operation is being shown by fishermen. Since opening day of the big league fishing season here in Missouri very few rule violations have been recorded.

Decoration day found one agent at the Lake of the Ozarks checking on 462 anglers, including 175 women, and found all to be observing the creel and license regulations.

Licenses Galore

Fred A. Renick, License Collector for St. Louis, prepared a very interesting report on fishing and hunting. It shows that 21,584 St. Louis sportsmen have already taken out licenses to either hunt or fish. Of these, 10,816 secured the combination hunting and fishing license, which costs $2.50, and 10,768 paid $1 each for the privilege of State-wide fishing. These figures represent only the local sportsmen who purchased licenses here. Hundreds sent direct to the Missouri Conservation Commission, saving to that body the commission allowed to county clerks and others who sell the permits.

It also does not include the thousands who buy licenses away from the city, usually in the county where the fishing trip is staged.

These figures, up to and including June 1, show why it is that St. Louis sportsmen lead in support of wildlife in the State.

E. C. Lowell of the Niangua Bridge Docks on the lake states: "Water and fishing conditions on the Niangua arm of the lake have improved considerably since opening day. The past week saw one of the largest crowds of anglers ever witnessed on this part of the lake. Crappie, silver bass and jack salmon were liberally taken. The water is in fine shape for artificial baits."

Today nights, holidays and Sundays still furnish the best local sports opportunities. The best average attendance recorded by any local paid admission sport last season was midget auto racing, according to figures supplied by Earl Reflow. The competitions are held at night.

At Fairmount Jockey Club last week an official told this writer that the play there on Saturdays and holidays was fine, but that because of the falling off in attendance and money handled in midweek, the current meeting would probably finish "in the red."

"We realize that St. Louis and vicinity is made up of workers who, in these times, are unwilling to jeopardize their jobs by laying off in the afternoon," he said.

"The result is we have a large feminine attendance, but a smaller proportion of men and a much smaller handle. At night, with many more persons at leisure, I believe sports here would prosper better."

How about reviving night racing?

"That, of course, is not possible in Illinois, which has a law declaring that mutuel betting is illegal after sunset. That was aimed at the dogs, but it effectually prevents consideration of night horse racing. While the dogs were tolerated, they made big money by night operations."

Some day the Browns and Cardinals will take the hint and turn on the flood lights. They seem to be missing something by the delay.

They Can Take It.

FAIRMOUNT, despite a red ink past, is going in for more racing. The fall meeting beginning Sept. 2 will be carried out as planned.

The promoters have been hoping against hope that the public would revive its one-time keen interest in racing, but without much reward. Meeting after meeting has barely survived and one failed to do even that. Depression, cheap fields, lack of an outstanding racing attraction like the old Fairmount Derby, and a scarcity of spending money operates against any important uplift in fan interest.

Fairmount is not the only racing plant that has trouble in making both ends meet. In New Orleans and other centers where transient or tourist money helps out, the promoters accumulate some profit. Some of the secondary tracks, however, are lucky to open their gates annually.

Only in the regions overflowing with quick-rich and tourist money is there an assured profit of considerable proportion awaiting the race promoter.

CENTURY ROAD CLUB RIDE TO VALLEY PARK

The Century Road Club will leave in a body from the Grand avenue entrance to Tower Grove Park and ride to Valley Park. The bicycle trip is scheduled to begin at 8 a. m. Sunday morning.

BRITISH NEED VICTORY TO STAY IN POLO SERIES

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—Needing victory to remain in the running for the coveted Westchester Cup, the finest British polo team since the world war will ride again tomorrow against America's picked quartet at the Meadow Brook Club.

A British triumph would wipe out last Sunday's 11-7 setback and set the stage for the climax of the first post-war three-game Anglo-American series. Since regaining the $200 trophy in 1921, the Americans have won every series in two straight games.

For the United States, Mike Phipps will be at No. 1, Tommy Hitchcock Jr., a 10-goal player for 17 years, at No. 2, Stewart Iglehart at No. 3 and Winston Guest at back. Phipps and Iglehart also are handicapped at 10 goals and Guest at seven.

Bob Skene, youthful Australian, will be at No. 1 for the British with Aidan Roark, Gerald Balding and Eric Tyrell-Martin back of him.

St. Louis Woman Archer Retains National Title

TROY, Mo., June 10 (AP).—Mrs. F. P. McNalley of St. Louis, defending champion, won the women's national round as the Missouri State archery tournament got under way here today.

Mrs. McNalley's score for the 48 arrows at 60 yards and 24 at 50 yards was 239. Mrs. Lucille Smith of Independence was second with 232, Mrs. P. O. Weston of St. Louis, runner-up in 1938, was third with 192 and Mrs. L. E. Piper of Kansas City fourth with 189.

Howard Wilson of Springfield won the junior American round—30 arrows each at 30-yard, 40-yard and 50-yard targets—with a 600 total. Wilson won last year with 386, but needed his high score as Bob Meyer of Maywood shot a 527 for second and Paul Roberts of Independence shot 460 for third.

Mrs. Weston won the women's archery-golf with a low score of 40, trailed by Mrs. Piper, who had a 44, and Mrs. Lee Gamber of St. Louis with a 45.

Earl Hoyte and Paul Jeffries, both of St. Louis, tied with 22 shots each for the nine holes of the men's archery-golf and will shoot off the match tomorrow.

With 72 arrows of the 100-yard section of the York round fired, Lee Gamber of St. Louis led with a 199 and R. M. McQuitty of St. Louis was second with 175.

The round will be completed tomorrow with 48 arrows at 80 yards and 48 at 60 yards.

Other 72-arrow scores included: Bob Wilson, Springfield, 149; Dr. C. G. Wright, St. Louis, 131; Harold Dimouch, Independence, 114, and Vic Loudon, Kansas City, 113.

13 CALIFORNIA TENNIS PLAYERS IN TRIPLE A MEET

By Davison Obear

Thirteen California players will play in the Triple A invitation tennis tournament which will open this afternoon, weather permitting. The draw in the men's singles had to be revised following the late entry of three top-ranking Californians, George Tolley, Ronald Lubins and Jim Everett, all from Los Angeles.

Gene Mako, Los Angeles, heads the California contingent and will be a heavy favorite to capture a leg on the Sidney Smith singles trophy. Frankie Parker, Beverly Hills entrant, is another strong contender for the title. Parker was a member of the United States Davis Cup team in 1937 and was listed No. 8 in the national ranking list for 1938.

The Northern California group is led by Edward Alloo, Berkeley, who played here last year. The other players, all from the University of California, are Dan Roberts, William Hoogs, Douglas Imhoff, Tate Coulthard, Robert Peacock, Ronald Edwards and Robert Harman.

Rain prevented the playing of four matches among local players yesterday afternoon. Herbert Markwort, referee, scheduled six matches for play this afternoon and the all-weather courts will be used if the clay courts are not dry enough.

At 1:30 o'clock Ray Weise is scheduled to meet Oliver Langenberg while Walter Pearson Jr. from Muskogee, Ok., who is Principia College tennis captain, will oppose Bud Sandpearl, local entrant. In matches at 2:30 p. m. Mike Carpenter will play Teddy Eggmann and Howard V. Stephens Jr. will meet Archer Sargent. Karl Hodge will oppose Norman Dean in one 3:30 o'clock contest while McLeod Stephens will play George Hendry in the other.

Wagner-Rogers Bill to Admit 20,000 Refugee Children to U. S. Facing Hard Fight in Congress

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 10.

THE plight of Europe's refugees with all its stark, awful tragedy, has been repeatedly reflected in the news, but never so forcibly, perhaps, as when the steamer St. Louis made its aimless Odyssey about Cuban and Floridan waters with some 900 emigres who could find no country to receive them.

To return to Germany, they felt, meant to go back to a living death. Suicide, as the captain of the St. Louis realized, was preferable to that. While sympathetic organizations tried to negotiate with the Cuban Government, the exiles waited between hope and despair, only to be finally headed back for Hamburg and what might await them there.

It is to relieve in some small degree the desperate refugee situation that the Wagner-Rogers bill to admit 20,000 German children is being backed by a number of national organizations, Catholic, Jewish and Protestant. The children would be carefully selected by representatives of the American Friends' Service Committee, the organization of Quakers that did such remarkable work in feeding German children after the World War. Homes already have been assured for them and the entire cost of bringing them to this country would be met by private donations.

Non-Partisan, Non-Sectarian.

From the beginning every effort has been made to keep this a non-partisan move. Senator Wagner is a Democrat. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers is a Republican. A non-sectarian committee is headed by Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago and includes Marshall Field, President Hutchins of the University of Chicago, William Allen White, Dean Helen Taft Manning of Bryn Mawr College and others equally distinguished in a variety of fields.

Sponsors of the bill have emphasized that the refugee problem is not a Jewish or a Catholic problem. Testifying for the measure on his return from a stay in Germany, former Gov. Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin told a Senate committee that the entire German population was affected. He testified that the Nazi tyranny is so deeply resented that, in his belief, if really secret elections could be held at least 75 per cent of the people would vote against the present regime.

About half of the 20,000 children would be Jewish, the rest divided between Catholics and Protestants, according to the present plan. The homes in which they are placed would reproduce, insofar as possible, the children's religious and racial background. Witness after witness pointed to the extraordinary fact that German mothers and fathers were willing to surrender their children if they could know that they were to find homes in a less oppressive environment. There were only a few witnesses in opposition, representatives of super-patriotic groups with an anti-alien bias.

Nevertheless It May Not Pass

Yet despite all this careful organization and the real support the measure has from organizations representing a wide range of public opinion there is a strong possibility that it will not pass. It is possible it will never get out of committee. The real opposition is centered in certain Southern members of Congress and particularly in Senator Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina. Reynolds, who claims thousands of adherents for his new national organization, "The Vindicators," has introduced bills that would bar all immigration. Moreover, Reynolds has threatened to filibuster against the Wagner-Rogers bill if and when it comes before the Senate. His threat has caused sponsors of the measure serious concern.

Politically ambitious, Reynolds has exploited the anti-alien, antiism cry for the past year. In his speeches and in his paper, "The American Vindicator," he skirts close to open anti-Semitism. Other Southerners, sincerely concerned over the low economic level at which the mass of the people in the South live, demand that something be done for Americans before any more foreigners are admitted to the country.

The whole issue is, of course, actually highly charged with emotionalism. The facts are simple enough. Immigration to the United States has been all but stopped during the past 10 years. Under the national origins law of 1924, amended in 1929, only 153,774 immigrants are allowed to come to this country annually and this quota in recent years has not been even half filled for reasons that will be explained later. Actually more Europeans have gone back to their native homes in the depression years than were admitted to this country.

The figures for the six-year period from July 1, 1932, through July 1, 1938, show a total of 241,962 immigrants admitted into the United States for permanent residence. During the same period 246,449 immigrants previously admitted for permanent residence moved away. Thus, as the American Friends Service Committee points out, 4487 more aliens left the country than came in during the period of Hitler's rule.

Why a Special Bill?

While only 241,962 came in in six years, the total number who could have been legally admitted was 922,644. The question naturally occurs: Why, if so few come, is it necessary to pass a special bill to bring in 10,000 German children each year for two years? The answer lies in the quota law in which it is prescribed that 83,574 of the 153,774 immigrants allowed in each year shall come from Great Britain and Ireland. But in the year ending June 30, 1938, only 4551 British and Irish immigrants came to this country. And under the law the difference between 4557 and 83,574 cannot be made up by immigration from other countries.

Under the present quota law only 27,370 immigrants may be admitted annually from Germany and Austria. Not until the severest Nazi pressure on "unwanted" elements of the German population has this quota been filled. From Germany, for example, in the year 1932-33 only 1919 immigrants entered the United States. In the following year the number was 4392, the next year 5201, then 6346, 10,895 in 1936-37 and 17,199 in 1937-38. This makes a total of 45,952 German refugees admitted to the country since Hitler came into power. Taking the present year which ends July 1 and assuming the full number, 27,370, will be admitted from Greater Germany, the total is still under 75,000.

It has been estimated that the immigration into the country for the last six months of 1938 represented less than 4-100 per cent of the population of the United States. Compared, of course, to the stream of immigration before the quota law of 1924 this is nothing. Compared even with the number coming under the quota before the onset of the depression it is small.

More Jobless or Fewer.

What disturbs many Americans is the fear that any immigrants admitted will merely swell the ranks of the jobless or displace American workers. But the American Friends' Service Committee points out that immigrants also make jobs. Every immigrant coming to America is a consumer whose wants must be supplied by American factories and stores. In the past—when there was still a West to be settled—it was the President's Appointees to the U. S. Supreme Court Win for Him the 'Horse and Buggy Age' Fight of 1937—Decisions Show Victory for Flexible Theory of the Nation's Basic Law.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 10.

IN the term ended this week, the United States Supreme Court continued the reinterpretation of the Constitution it began in the spring of 1937 after President Roosevelt had demanded power to reconstruct the court's membership.

With the death of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Mr. Roosevelt lost the battle for his ingenious and drastic plan to infuse "new blood" into the court to make it function "in accord with modern necessities." A review of the decisions of the court during the term just ended demonstrates, however, that he has won the war against the conservatively minded Justices who, he said, had relegated this country back to the "horse and buggy days" by their judgments on early New Deal laws. Although the President was denied the power he demanded of Congress to make additional court appointments, the natural course of events allowed him to attain his objective.

'New Blood' Re-examination of the 'Established Principles'

Four Justices appointed by the President were sitting with the court when it recessed Monday. At the extreme right end of the bench were Justices Black and Frankfurter; on the left end were Justices Reed and Douglas. In the center of the bench was the chair of Chief Justice Hughes, vacant because of illness. Also vacant was the chair on the right, that of Justice McReynolds, who started his holiday before the final day of the term. To the left of the Chief Justice's chair sat Justice Butler, presiding. Sitting next to the New Dealers were Justice Stone, a Coolidge appointee, on the right, and Justice Roberts, a Hoover appointee, on the left.

The "new blood" was responsible for the re-examinations of the so-called "established principles" of constitutional law and challenges to the doctrine of stare decisis. Justice Frankfurter announced in his first opinion that "the ultimate touchstone is the Constitution itself and not what we have said about it." This new legal approach was followed by the other New Deal members, several times with the concurrence of the Chief Justice and Justices Stone and Roberts. Justices McReynolds and Butler remained adamant against the modern interpretations and in their dissents repeatedly declared that the very foundations of the Republic were being seriously impaired by the current rulings.

Two patterns stand out in the decisions of the past terms—judicial approval of the enlargement of Federal powers at the expense of the States, the judicial reluctance—at times a refusal—to encroach on the executive and legislative departments of the Government.

Another innovation, or rather a return to the practices of the earliest days of the court, was the handing down of a variety of individual opinions, sometimes concurring, sometimes dissenting, and sometimes dissenting in part and concurring in part. Usually these were essays revealing the legal philosophies of the individual Justices as applied to the instant cases. A crusading note often sounded throughout these literary exhibits by the possessors of the most subtle legal minds in this country.

Many Important Changes With New Men on the Bench

The change in court personnel was responsible for the invalidation of the 120-year-old precedent regarding inter-governmental immunity of taxes and for reconciling approval of later New Deal laws with the invalidation of the National Industrial Recovery Act, the Agricultural Adjustment Act and the Guffey Coal Act, by the old court. In the places of Justices Van Devanter and Sutherland were Justices Black and Reed, while Justices Frankfurter and Douglas had taken the places created by the retirement of the venerable Justice Brandeis and the death of the scholarly Justice Cardozo. The two latter Justices had been classed as "liberals" but their successors have already demonstrated that their approaches to the Constitution and their interpretations will not hinge so much on precedent as on the social and economic conditions in the country as they see them.

The New Deal scored many notable victories during the past term, due to more exact drafting of legislation, less arbitrary administration of laws and more effective arguments in the lower and higher courts before judges appointed during the Roosevelt administration.

Perhaps the most far-reaching decisions related to interpretations of the "commerce" clause to affirm Federal subsidies to farmers and to extend the National Labor Relations Act to plants heretofore regarded as doing a solely intrastate business. In sustaining the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1937 and the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1938 and the Tobacco Inspection Act, the court implied that it would look with favor on the newer Wages and Hours law and its child labor provisions.

In the celebrated Tennessee Valley Authority cases, the court, while not passing directly on the constitutionality of the law, actually limited its own powers when it decided that the complaining private power companies had no standing in court because they had no legal right to be free from competition. In the Ashwander case, the old court heard a stockholder suit attacking the constitutionality of the TVA, but the court was divided 5 to 4 on the permissibility of such a suit, and it is possible, indeed almost probable, that the changed court would accept Justice Brandeis' dissenting opinion which contended that the stockholders had no legal court standing in that case. Joining in this dissent were Justices Stone and Roberts and the late Justice Cardozo.

Division of Decisions on Six Labor Disputes

Of the six labor disputes cases heard by the court, the Labor Relations Board was wholly successful in two, partly successful in two and in part reversed and in part sustained in two.

The most spectacular case was that of the Board against the Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation, which involved the legality of the sit-down strike. Chief Justice Hughes, speaking for the majority, used his strongest language in denouncing the sit-down strike as an unlawful mode of industrial warfare, "a high-handed procedure for unfair labor practices." He declared:

"The employes had the right to strike but they had no license to commit acts of violence or to seize their employer's plant. . . . The seizure and the holding of the buildings was itself a wrong apart from any acts of sabotage. But in its legal aspect the ousting of the owner from lawful possession is not essentially different from an assault upon the officers of an employing company, or the seizure and conversion of its goods, or the despoiling of its property or other unlawful acts in order to force compliance with demands. To justify such conduct because of the existence of a labor dispute or of an unfair practice would be to put a premium on resort to force instead of legal remedies and to subvert the principles of law and order which lie at the foundations of society."

But in this case, the court accepted the Board's findings that the corporation had been guilty of unfair labor practices when it issued anti-union statements and employed "labor spies." It upheld the Board's order directing the corporation to desist from interfering by such methods with the employes' right to self-organization and to rehire the men not connected with the sit-down strike.

Justices Reed and Black dissented in part, asserting that the sit-down strikers were immune from discharge because the corporation had been guilty of unfair labor practices before the start of the sit-down.

Extension of U. S. Power in the Fainblatt Judgment

Although the court rejected the Board's conclusions regarding sit-down strikers, it approved greatly expanded authority of the Board by decisions in the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York and the Fainblatt cases. The Consolidated had contended that it was a purely intrastate concern and as such exempt from the operation of the Labor Relations Act. The court found, however, that it supplied electric energy to interstate railroads and telegraph companies, to steamship companies engaged in foreign commerce and to other interstate consumers. A labor dispute in the Consolidated company, the court held, would burden interstate commerce. In this same case, however, the court held that the Board was without authority to direct the company affirmatively to cancel its contract with an A. F. of L. union when a rival CIO union was campaigning among the employes for members.

Extension of Federal authority was similarly approved by the court in the Fainblatt case when it held the Labor Act applicable to employers "not themselves engaged in interstate commerce" but who "are engaged in a relatively small business of processing materials which are transmitted to them by the owners through the channels of interstate commerce and which after processing are distributed through those channels."

Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented from the majority opinion, declaring that "the resulting curtailment of the independence reserved to the States and the tremendous enlargement of Federal power denote the serious impairment of the very foundations of our federated system."

A similar majority view on the scope of the interstate commerce clause was expressed in Mulford v. Smith upholding the 1938 Agricultural Adjustment Act passed after the court had invalidated the original AAA, which was based on the power of Congress to tax for the "general welfare." Justice Roberts, who wrote the opinion invalidating the 1933 AAA, spoke for the majority in the Mulford case. In the original case the majority had declared that agriculture was a "local" industry and hence not subject to Federal control. In the Mulford case, Justice Roberts asserted that the later statute did not purport to control production.

Dissenters Cite Roberts' Previous Ruling on AAA

"It purports," he said, "to be solely a regulation of interstate commerce, which it reaches and affects at the throat where the tobacco

Gestapo, Unable to Fix on Him Any Charge of Embezzlement, Harries Him Daily to "Confess."

By HANS SCHMIDT
From the Living Age; reprinted from the Paris-Soir, Paris liberal daily.

FOR a year, ex-Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg has been imprisoned in a Viennese hotel. No one has come near him. No official news of his welfare has penetrated the walls of his prison. Only one communique from German authorities has been published during this year of detention. It read: "Schuschnigg still lives. Chancellor Hitler has announced before the Reichstag that he has granted him his life. The Fuehrer deems it just, in order that Schuschnigg should not become a victim of a judicial error, to begin an investigation of his activities while in office."

After that, complete silence.

But well guarded as he is, we have been able to learn some of the details of the physical and moral martyrdom that has now brought the unfortunate ex-Chancellor to the brink of insanity. As is known, directly after the Anschluss, Schuschnigg was kept a few days in his Belvedere villa. At the outset, even the most fanatical Nazis were impressed by Schuschnigg's refusal to flee from Vienna by plane, as the German legions marched into Austria. He had courageously determined to share his country's fate.

Papers Seized by Gestapo.

Accordingly, there were short-lived hopes that Schuschnigg's villa would enjoy some degree of extraterritoriality. Obviously, during these first few days, the Nazis were uncertain about what to do with Schuschnigg—whether to keep him under guard in his home, or to send him to a concentration camp.

Meanwhile, all the documents found in Schuschnigg's apartment, his private as well as his public letters, were seized and sent to the Gestapo's Austrian headquarters at the Hotel Metropole, where they were sorted with great care. The Nazis hoped that among these documents would be found papers compromising him: documents, for example, indicating that he had misappropriated State funds while in office. In this, the investigators were disappointed.

Indeed, Chancellor Schuschnigg had lived an almost ascetic life. His personal expenses were found to have been minimal, and it was found that for three months he had not even drawn his salary as a Chancellor. The only charge that they could bring against him was that he had ordered the release of Prince Starhemberg's bank account, which at one time had been attached by the State. There was, however, an explanation for this move. Prince Starhemberg, who had founded the Heimwehr Army, and supported it for years, had placed it at Schuschnigg's disposal on condition that he be paid by the State for the extensive sums he had advanced. This seemed insufficient to warrant Schuschnigg's indictment for embezzlement of State funds.

Letters to Mussolini.

In the course of the Gestapo inquiry, the investigators came across additional political and personal papers, his correspondence with the Duce, as well as with foreign officials of other Western Powers. It was then that Schuschnigg's Calvary began. One morning he was taken to Gestapo headquarters to explain certain passages in some of the letters. Schuschnigg left the Belvedere without taking anything except the suit he was wearing. He expected to be brought back after a brief questioning. But he never came back to the Belvedere.

Schuschnigg's prison consists of a suite of three rooms on the second floor of Hotel Metropole. Actually, he has to himself only the bedroom, with its adjoining bathroom. The little drawing-room serves as a sort of guard-house, and is occupied day and night by Storm Troopers. The third room is an office, where his daily catechism is held. It is in that room that Schuschnigg, once the master of a great country, now sits for hours subjected to a cross-fire of questioning. His questioners are changed. Sometimes a reporter from the Foreign Office harasses him about his correspondence with the Duce; sometimes an examining magistrate questions him about the details of the execution of Planetta, the murder of Dollfuss; on other occasions a member of the Gestapo wants to know the identity of the person who informed the outside world of his Berchtesgaden interview with Hitler. All this takes place in one day, and no matter how late the hour, there are always four or five more waiting to torture the ex-Chancellor with questions. The number of documents placed before him is appalling, and Schuschnigg must go through all of them, for he is required to account for the smallest event which took place during the last four years. The investigation was launched months ago, and his "third degree" will doubtless continue for months more, unless he collapses.

Not Allowed to Smoke.

Schuschnigg's life in the Hotel Metropole is subject to German prison discipline. Though an inveterate smoker, he has not been allowed one cigarette since his arrest. Yet, during the questioning, which at times endures until the small hours of the morning, he is compelled to watch his persecutors smoking incessantly. German prison rules forbid the prisoner to ask his guards what is happening outside the walls. From the day Schuschnigg went to the Hotel Metropole, he was hermetically sealed from political life anywhere. He cannot learn anything save through chance remarks of his jailers. But the chief cause of Schuschnigg's suffering has been that he knew nothing of the fate of his 14-year-old son, his aged father, an ex-general, his brother, and the woman whom he expected to marry.

It is hard to believe, and yet it is true, that all that time that the unfortunate ex-Chancellor was spending sleepless nights, wondering over the fate of the Countess Vera Czernine, and begging his torturers for word of his betrothed and his son—at that very time, the Countess Czernine was already his wife. A few months before the Anschluss, Schuschnigg had asked the ecclesiastic authorities for permission to marry the Countess Vera, who had been separated from her husband, Baron Fugger. The Catholic church does not allow remarriage, save in exceptional cases, and authorization from the Holy See had not arrived in Vienna before the Anschluss. During the first days of his imprisonment in Belvedere, when he was not yet completely isolated, Schuschnigg obtained permission to have Fr. Hollnsteiner, his friend and confessor for many years, come and visit him. Empowered to act for the ex-Chancellor, Hollnsteiner made pressing demands upon the Holy See. The permission finally arrived at the time when Schuschnigg was detained at the Hotel Metropole, and of course he has not been allowed to leave on any pretext.

Marriage by Proxy.

Hollnsteiner, making use of the powers given to him by Schuschnigg, was able to marry him to Countess Czernine (by proxy, an entirely legal procedure. His brother, Arthur, took the place of the groom in the ceremony. At the time when Schuschnigg was suffering mental tortures because he was not able to marry Countess Czernine and so provide a mother for his orphan son, he was unknowingly already married to her. Why didn't the officials of the Gestapo inform the ex-Chancellor of that fact? It was not mere

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Chicago Teachers and Health Security.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

BECAUSE of the current national interest in the question of health security, you may be interested to learn of the latest development.

The Chicago Teachers' Union, largest teachers' local in the world and second largest union in Chicago, has signed an agreement with the Civic Medical Center which enables prepaid complete medical, surgical and preventive care, on a voluntary basis, for union teachers, at the rate of $30 per year for a family, or $18 per year for a single teacher.

To our knowledge, this agreement is a unique document. It assures mutual policy determination and administration as between a producers'-medical co-operative and a lay organization.

The agreement points a way to a sound solution of the health security problem for middle-income groups and strengthens the cause of those who believe a national program can be successfully worked out for the lower- and no-income groups. Both the teachers' union and the medical center have taken an active part in the struggle to make adequate medical care more widely available.

It is important to the health security movement that an organization with the cultural prestige of the teachers' union indorses the progressive principle of the group practice of medicine on a risk-sharing prepayment basis. This is the very principle which is at the heart of the present controversy.

The Civic Medical Center of Chicago (a partnership of physicians representing internal medicine and the specialties) has been engaged for some years in a struggle analogous to that of the Group Health Association, Inc., of Washington, D. C., and, in spite of the difficulties imposed, has firmly established itself. Through Dr. Charles R. Wiley, its medical director, Civic Medical Center assisted in setting up Group Health Association, Inc., and other centers. Dr. Wiley testified before the special grand jury which indicted the American Medical Association for practices in restraint of trade.

In my opinion, the union leadership—Kermit Eby, executive secretary; John Fewkes, president, and M. C. Crew, plan administrator, are to be highly commended on the outstanding position the union has taken. Their names swell the roster of the already notable roll—Dr. Hugh Cabot, I. S. Falk, Dr. Thomas Parran, Josephine Roche, etc., in the vanguard of the struggle to establish health security, adequate medical care for everyone, as an integral part of our democracy.

The Slaughter in Spain.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE purge in Spain, just begun, undoubtedly will reach appalling proportions before enough blood has been spilled to satiate the Franco regime. Official reports on the number of death penalties imposed are known to be only a small part of the actual killings. Now, in order that the supply may be continuously augmented, the general public has been invited by the military authorities to denounce neighbors suspected of "criminal acts"—a vicious piece of terrorism adopted from Fascist tactics, that bodes no good for Spain.

The Franco regime exhibits a brutal stupidity in assuming that the wholesale persecution and slaughter of its opponents slays, at the same time, such dangerous ideas as liberty, equality and self-government, and in forgetting that a policy of unbridled revenge taught to its citizens now may react in sanguinary and retributive fashion in the days that are to come.

More Enlightenment on Frog-Hunting.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WITHOUT wishing to dampen Mr. Jobson's enthusiasm over communion with nature while frogging, may I remark that he is a sissy? Bilge water, snags, shadows cast by the light—these he calls menaces to happy navigation! But with such a viewpoint, might one not just as well take his froglegs on toast at six bits per plate, thereby escaping any physical inconvenience whatsoever?

Discomforts are the spice of frog-hunting; the more hardships, the more fun. Permit me to describe the more adventurous Ozark foothillbilly method of capturing rana catesbiana, that slimy green-backed delicacy of the river.

Take a wild sluggish river; the Bourbeuse will do very well. Into a boat place your equipment, consisting of a flashlight and a gunny sack; then with a companion row off into the night.

As you glide along, scan the shoreline with a beam of light. When two bright reflections shine back at you, slowly and quietly row in their direction, keeping the light upon your prey. As the boat is about to touch the bank, the hunter in front leans forward with the light in his left hand until it is about six inches from the victim's eyes. With the right hand he then executes a swift grab and squeeze.

If at this time he notices that his captive is a snake, he immediately drops it, since the fad of eating snake flesh has not yet reached Missouri. If he has a bullfrog in his hand, he holds it tightly until it can be slipped into the gunnysack. Then the boat moves along in search of more frogs and adventure.

I should like to add that, although we have no closed season on bullfrogs, they are at present spawning and ought not be taken in the next few weeks.

THE "NEW" SUPREME COURT.

The Supreme Court term which closed last Monday is being widely appraised, as indeed it should be. What is said most frequently is, in essence, that a new court has come into being with President Roosevelt's appointments and that this new court is re-interpreting the Constitution—reversing established decisions, rejecting old doctrines, opening the way for further regulation of commerce and industry by Congress.

Descriptions are relative and so it is with "new" here. Four Justices do sit by appointment of Mr. Roosevelt; one more and he will have named a majority. Yet the current re-interpretation dates back before the first of the Roosevelt appointees took his seat, nearly two years ago. Justices Van Devanter and Sutherland, two of the old strict-construction majority, were still on the bench when the court broke with its earlier anti-New Deal decisions to uphold the Wagner Act. The court which outlawed NRA and AAA was intact when the first of the outright reversals, that on minimum wage statutes, come down. Not one of the so-called liberals, but Justice Sutherland, wrote the significant decision upholding PWA grants for public power plants in competition with privately owned utilities.

But this is not to say that changes in personnel have not made a deep impress. Just the contrary. The sands have run far. When Mr. Hughes returned as Chief Justice in 1930, he was often in the Holmes-Brandeis-Stone minority. Later he and Justice Roberts became the balance of power. Decisions usually went the way they voted. Last Monday they joined Justices McReynolds and Butler in the New York milk marketing case and the contrary view prevailed. The Roosevelt appointees, together with Justice Stone, make a new majority.

What does this new majority believe? It believes essentially that the Constitution states (as Justice Cardozo once put it) not rules for the passing hour, but principles for an expanding future. This new majority is not going to require use of the amending process when re-examination of past rulings will suffice. It prefers to bring decisions in line with experience and new findings.

This majority knows judicial history. It knows that the record of the court is a series of alternating swings—one way under Marshall, another under Taney, and so on through nearly 150 years. It knows that Judges have come and gone, that ideas about what is urgent and necessary—yes, and constitutional—have risen, ruled their day and died out as time and circumstance have wrought changes. If the court now speaks its views in many individual opinions, after an early custom, it only takes the citizen to the door of the conference room to listen to the divergent talk which must always have been heard there. What is lost in the force of unanimity is more than gained in the demonstration of the court as a group of eminent minds, thinking their way through hard problems—problems social and economic as well as legal.

The judicial self-restraint about which Justice Stone spoke so movingly in his AAA dissent is the rule. The court has allowed Congress to do more in the name of regulating interstate commerce than ever before. A decision declaring that the child labor amendment had been before the country too long would have been consistent with the Dillon decision which spoke of a "reasonable time" for ratification of an amendment. Yet the court would not assume the authority of determination; that is the responsibility, and we add, the duty, of Congress.

As for the individual members, the term is notable for the further emergence of Justice Black as an influential thinker and craftsman, for the addition of Justice Frankfurter's scholarship and healthy appreciation of democracy, for the replacement of the great Brandeis with the young and vigorous Douglas. Far from weakening the confidence of the American people in their Supreme Court, the term now closed should make that faith the stronger.

THE POET HAS HIS DAY.

Up one side of the street and down the other, poets don't count for much these days. They wander about with their eyes on the stars, and the men who make the wheels go round pass them by without a glance. Not much different is the lot of the librarians. They do go to the same place each morning, and they do receive regular if brief visits from the comptroller—a recognition not to be ignored—but they, too, are a bookish folk, and bookish folk are dreamers in a day when the doers get the plaudits and the palms.

And yet who are the leading characters in the latest controversy over a Roosevelt appointment? None other than a poet and the librarians. Newspapers are literally ringing with the battle over Archibald MacLeish's fitness to be head of the Library of Congress. The Baltimore Sun, Boston Evening Transcript, Chicago Times and Christian Science Monitor are enthusiastic. The Washington Post and the Philadelphia Inquirer are dubious, while the New York Herald Tribune frankly calls it "a shocking nomination." The more our eminent Republican contemporary studies the appointment, "the more deplorable" it becomes. The Kansas City Star is opposed.

We had our unexcited say yesterday, and to that we want to add just this: It is as refreshing as one of these rain-washed June nights to have a poet and his kind at the center of a public rumpus in this clattering Machine Age of 1939!

GOOD WORK IN CONFERENCE.

Sound judgment has been exercised by the Missouri Senate and House conferees with reference to funds for essential State activities in the omnibus appropriations bill.

The Senate's reinstatement of $119,500 for the State Purchasing Agent, cut out by the House, was approved in conference, thus making possible continuation of the economy and efficiency brought by centralized purchasing. The Governor's fund for special audits was restored to $25,000 (it had been halved by the Senate), so the work of checking up on dishonesty and slackness in State offices can go on unimpaired. The restoration of $50,000 to the Cancer Hospital maintenance appropriation averts the danger of crippling this useful institution at its very inception. And a just debt is paid by reversing the Senate's decision not to reimburse Assistant Attorney-General Lennon for $7500 expenses, paid from his own pocket in collecting some $250,000 in delinquent taxes.

These changes do increase total expenditures, but most of them mean far greater savings than the amount of the outlay. Sacrifice of the items would have been false economy. This is the aspect the Legislature should keep in mind in the final vote on the bill.

THE PEOPLE HAVE WON.

The people have won.

The Governor's anti-crime police bill has, in effect, been passed. Except for the formality of final legislative action and the executive's signature, that bill is now the law.

Yes, Senator Casey fights on. He hasn't a chance to win. He was beaten from the start. He has been beaten at every turn. For a minute he may have seen a gleam in a negligible error. Instead of dividing the supporting Senators, the incident solidified their ranks. With that test surmounted, it was all over for Casey.

Casey may continue the battle. He may take foolish pride in his reputation of never knowing when he is licked. Could there be a bit of vain-glorying, too, in holding the center of the stage? In being the star of the show?

Well, this show will not end when the curtain drops in the closing senatorial scene. Casey has deliberately chosen to make a public nuisance of himself by an exhibition of his personal power. It is, let us concede, a disquieting spectacle when one man can defy the people of Missouri—can hold up the enactment of a law demanded by the State—can impose severe mental strain and trying physical discomforts on fellow-Senators resolved to carry out the people's will—can exact humiliating loyalty from his shabby handful of followers who tag along at his heels as though on leash.

A spectacle, but it is more than spectacular. In this affront to public sentiment, Casey, whether he realizes it or not, has at last impressed himself upon the public mind as a real public problem.

The question is, what is the solution?

The opportunity for finding the solution will come when Casey again appears as a candidate.

As he is now performing, Casey reveals himself as precisely the kind of Senator the Pendergast machine needs at Jefferson City. Is he the kind of Senator the people of Kansas City want? That will presently be determined. For the people of Kansas City will be voting, when Casey again seeks office, and their ballots will be counted as cast. It will be an honest election, not a Pendergast-machine steal. There will be no night-riders to stuff the ballot boxes, no judges and clerks to "fix" the returns and move on, later, to the penitentiary. There will be no ghosts to pile up the preposterous "Jackson County majorities." There will be no murderous gangsters to sweep the polls with machine guns.

And all Missouri will be watching that contest when Mike Casey asks for another term in the State Senate. All Missouri will be watching other contests. The people of Missouri will be curious to know what St. Louis will do with its Joe Brogan. They will be wondering what the country districts will do to the faithful Caseyites.

Missouri will show Missourians.

Casey, Brogan and those out-State Senators who have enlisted under the Pendergast colors are marching to political extinction.

A SELF-ADMITTED AUTHORITY.

The Post-Dispatch has been flattered with a piece of mimeographed publicity from Senator Truman, including a mat for publishing his picture. From this modest release, we learn that the Senator is regarded as "an Authority on transportation, whether on land or water or in the air." Although the release does not go into detail, we understand that the Senator's intimate acquaintance with air transport derives from the hectic airplane trips he made between Kansas City and Washington when he was interested in halting the prosecution of Boss Pendergast. Senator Truman's specialty in water transportation, of course, is "sinking ships."

GOV. STARK INTERCEDES FOR THE BLIND.

The welfare of Missouri's blind dependents has been a football in the current Legislature, and this unfortunate group is compelled to look into the future with grave misgivings. Because funds are exhausted and no new appropriation has been provided, the State-supported shops in St. Louis have closed, and 115 blind persons have lost their means of livelihood. At the same time, the 24 staff members here of the State Commission for the Blind are out of employment, and most of this essential agency's work must be discontinued.

Gov. Stark has now come to the fore with a sensible plan for averting distress among the blind. He urges immediate action to revive the bills, killed several weeks ago by the Legislature, which make the State eligible to receive Government funds of $1,000,000 a year for this purpose, merely by meeting Federal standards and placing administration with the Social Security Commission.

It was partly because of pressure by persons whose State jobs were at stake, and by a group of blind persons, that this move was defeated. Certainly the influence of patronage and politics should not be allowed to prevail over the needs of the blind dependents. It would, indeed, as Gov. Stark says, "be a very sad thing for the blind people of Missouri if this misleading propaganda should deprive them of nearly $2,000,000 in badly needed Federal funds during the next biennium."

It is late in the legislative session, but the situation can still be saved by prompt action. Senator McReynolds is preparing to revive the defeated legislation. Certainly, whatever mistakes have been made, the Legislature should recognize Missouri's responsibility toward the blind, and act to redeem the rejected Federal fund before it is too late.

A DIES COMMITTEE IN ILLINOIS.

The Illinois House of Representatives, by a vote of 85 to 8, has approved a bill to create a 10-member legislative committee with $5000 to spend in investigating "un-American activities" within the State.

Now, $5000 assuredly isn't a large sum, and yet why waste it? Illinois had a legislative inquiry into "subversive teachings" only four years ago, as a result of Charles R. Walgreen's sensational charges about "radicalism" at the University of Chicago. It was as complete a fizzle as ever fizzed. As Representative James Weber Linn said in opposing the present bill, Mr. Walgreen later made amends by giving the University of Chicago $600,000.

ON THE ROPES.

Role of Business in a Depression

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Governmental action in time of economic crisis is inevitable, noted economist says, and business is urged to co-operate all it can; negative or hostile attitude is viewed as disastrous; suggests advance planning by industry, and co-ordination with official direction.

Sir Arthur Salter, British Economist, in the Rotarian.

IS it possible for the leaders of business to do anything themselves to prevent or mitigate trade depressions? Obviously, governments cannot remain inactive at such a time, or they will be replaced by an indignant public. There are some things which they can very usefully do. If the leaders of business make no contribution themselves, and if they are not co-operating with the Government and are suspicious of and hostile to what it is doing, no governmental measures can substantially relieve the situation and at the same time avoid serious after-effects.

Directly unemployment rises substantially, there will be an irresistible demand that the Government should take energetic measures to cure it and to relieve the attendant distress. It can put in hand necessary public works deliberately postponed when, during a period of boom, the national resources of capital and labor were fully utilized by private enterprise. It can be sure that money is plentiful and cheap. It can find where special relief is needed, and give it.

If, however, the business world, at such a time, adopts a merely negative and hostile attitude, doing nothing active itself and looking suspiciously at what the Government is doing, such measures will be quite ineffective. They will be more than offset by the effect of pessimism expressed and exaggerated through the stock exchange.

As the general distress becomes worse, the Government is likely to be forced on to more doubtful and ultimately much more dangerous measures. It will extend public works with less and less consideration of their utility or their cost. With every such extension, the burdens upon private enterprise will be increased, the confidence without which private enterprise will not undertake any new expansion will be diminished. And as the area of active private enterprise is thus restricted, the state will be forced to extend its own.

The process may proceed to the point at which the resumption of private enterprise as the principal part of the country economic system will be scarcely possible. The country will have become nationalized by an involuntary and especially uneconomic (because unplanned and undesigned) process; and the Government will have assumed an increase of responsibility which may be inconsistent both with efficiency and, in the end perhaps, with free institutions.

If, on the other hand, the Government remains inactive and allows the depression to run its natural course till it finds its own cure, the public dissatisfaction is likely to generate most dangerous forces which, finding their expression by various methods—strikes and rioting, or the support of candidates or parties of the extreme Left at the next elections, or by active revolution—will, in the end, lead to the same result of destroying both the existing economic system and the existing system of government.

These are, in brief, the reasons why the leaders of business should act, if they can.

Their action should be regarded as a supplement to government action, not as an alternative to it. It is hopeless to expect that they can, without action also by the Government, prevent depressions. And if there are active hostility and competition between the actions of government and the business world, the efforts of both will be nullified.

The first condition of success is a reasonable working understanding between them. For this the responsibility, of course, does not rest solely with business leaders, but it is shared by them. The first counsel is that they should do their best to co-operate with the Government and to arrive at some kind of working arrangement as the means of co-ordinating their respective activities.

The next observation required is that no action, by either the Government or the business world, will suffice if it is confined to the period of depression. Some measures require to be taken during periods of boom, and it is during these periods that the measures to be applied in depression need to be prepared.

A good deal can be done by business to keep economic activity going. It is, of course, useless to exhort manufacturers to lay in stocks of materials when all the signs point to falling prices, or to expand, or even maintain, their output when there is every reason to believe that the demand for their goods is about to decline. But there are, after all, many enterprises which can properly take a longer view and plan their capital expansion with a view to the probably long-term demand. Public utilities, and railways, for example, could, to a considerable extent, restrict capital expenditure during booms and expand it during depressions.

They can well, if in a reasonably strong financial position, look beyond a merely temporary falling off of receipts. And if some loss of interest is occasionally involved by making an extension a little before it is imperatively needed, this may well be offset by lower costs which tend to prevail in depression.

The essential point I wish to emphasize is the collective responsibility which properly attaches to the leaders of business as a result of the large-scale organization through which they now conduct their affairs. While there was unrestricted competition between universal small-scale private enterprises, the old laissez-faire principles did operate to effect economic adjustments with surprising efficiency. But the principal industries are now organized upon such a scale, though not constituting monopolies, that the old system does not work in the same way. A relatively restricted number of leaders have the power either to impede or to assist the adjustment that all forms of economic change are constantly requiring.

Some form of collective regulation and direction, supplementing, though not replacing, the automatic adjustments of competition and varying prices, is essential. It may be provided by the Government, which in any case must take an important part; but if the responsibility is left wholly with the Government, the results are likely to be destructive to the proper progress of private enterprise and may be fatal to its continuance. Collective responsibility by the leaders of industry needs recognition and expression in collective action partly independent of government, but co-ordinated with it.

Leaders of business now, for the first time, have the power to co-operate with decisive effect in the situation of the world's central problem. And to have the power is to have the responsibility.

TWO great historians, Charles A. Beard and Mary R. Beard, complete their monumental work, "The Rise of American Civilization," with its third volume, covering the 1928-38 period. It would be inexact, however, to say that "America in Midpassage" (Macmillan Co., New York) is devoted wholly to those 10 years, for, as always, these thoughtful writers dig out the historical roots of the events they treat, and so give them proper evaluation. So the present volume, while complete in itself, is an integral part of what has gone before, just as was the epoch itself.

The book opens with the "golden glow," the high plateau of supposedly permanent peace and prosperity, when Coolidge reigned in Washington and all was well with the world. "Notes of jubilee drowned the plaintive cries of farmers and the queasy doubts of querulous critics."

But the whole gaudy structure was built on quicksand, and the critics were proved only too correct by the events after Oct. 29, 1929. The Beards are at their best in tracing the sordid story of the forces that wrought the collapse, and the efforts to restore the shattered economy.

With Roosevelt's aims they have the greatest sympathy. They admire the swift energy and the broad program of "reformation and salvation" that followed his inaugural. They deny that this was revolution; instead, "behind each statute of the New Deal legislation lay a long series of agitations, numerous changes in the thought and economy of American society, and permanent enactments."

Of Rooseveltian performance, they are critical. There was no dominant plan of concerted and defensible unity. There was no scheme of tested thought to mold the program, no body of trained public servants to administer it. So "bustle and improvisation characterized political action." The administration's devices began to disintegrate, and acquisitive instincts at last overcame the nation's "spontaneous spiritual uprising" of March, 1933.

In their treatment of foreign policy, the writers go far afield in expressing fears of the President's trend toward foreign entanglements and war. But in the final chapter, a stimulating treatise on America's democratic tradition, they give unstinted praise to the courage and range he has displayed in support of humanistic democracy, by setting forth the challenge of basic human and economic problems and thus stirring the thought of the nation.

All this is only to skim the surface of the detailed and penetrating book. The Supreme Court controversy, the interplay of the three governmental branches, the many forces that had a hand in molding the epoch, are brought into the writers' broad picture. There are comprehensive chapters on labor, on social thought, on letters, esthetics, science. All these forces must be employed, they conclude, to bring America through its stormy midpassage, to fulfillment of the promise of its heritage and aspirations.

STUART CHASE'S 'FIRST AID' USE OF ECONOMIC TERMS

Prepared for S E C Examiners in Economic Committee's Investment Banking Hearing.

NEW DEAL'S 'GOOD' AND 'BAD' WORDS

By RICHARD L. STOKES
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Words that are "good" and words that are "bad"—chiefly from the point of view of the New Deal—are held up for praise or censure, in a nine-page memorandum of verbal stage directions which Stuart Chase, impresario of the Temporary National Economic Committee's recent study of investment banking, concocted for the guidance of those staff members of the Securities and Exchange Commission who had charge of the investigation. Chase is author of 'The Tyranny of Words," which added to America's vocabulary the term "semantics," or the science of accurate definition.

According to the official account attorneys and examiners concerned with the hearing found that they were getting "mixed up" in their economic terminology, whereupon Chase, as an expert in the field, volunteered to prepare a lexicon. Less than a dozen copies were typewritten, it is said, and distribution was confined mostly to the staff of Peter R. Hehemkis Jr., SEC counsel in the study. The writer, who attended the hearing, does not remember that Chase's dictionary had any discernible effect upon the phraseology employed.

Chase himself appears to use in an un-semantic way the terms "good" and "bad," which imply moral judgment. Partly he intends to say "advantageous" and "disadvantageous." Partly also the meaning is "precise" and "loose." In the latter aspect, his memorandum may prove of general profit through its suggestion of tight-fitting economic phrases as substitutes for present loose-hanging ones.

"Our Economic System."

Words which the great semasiologist pronounces to be "good" include "savings," "investment"—which is declared also to be "slippery"—and "self-liquidating investment." Words characterized as "bad" include "hoarding," "debt," "monopoly," "competition" — these so on account of their "emotional content"—"capitalism" and "profit system." "Capitalism" is declared to be "a fighting word," and the advice is: "Avoid it!" Instead of "profit system," one should say "our economy" or "our economic system."

"'Spending' is a 'bad' word," the lexicon proceeds. "Avoid it like a copperhead. Talk about 'Government running expenses' and 'Government plant.' Talk about putting the Government budget on a 'business basis,' rather than about 'triple budgets' or 'capital budgets.' If spending must be discussed, always remember that every dollar spent by the Government is usually a dollar of sales on the books of some business man. Keep 'spending' firmly associated with 'sales,' 'wages,' 'purchasing power'—all 'good' words."

As to "monopoly" and "competition," the counsel is 'to avoid these terms as much as possible in this particular set of hearings. Don't call even investment bankers 'monopolists' directly."

In connection with spending, the author says, there will be talk of "economy." This is "a beautiful word," he goes on; "visions of thrifty Uncle Abner, rolling balls of waste string. 'Economy,' however, means a 'loss' to somebody else — loss of 'sales' or 'wages.' Keep 'economy' and 'loss' firmly associated. You want to economize when unemployment is high? Good. Cut a billion off WPA. That means a billion loss of sales to grocers, meat markets, drug stores and Ford dealers."

"As a Relative Good."

Chase admits, however, that economy may be a wise policy at certain times, and points out with the discrimination of Dr. Samuel Johnson that "the act of economy should not be regarded as an absolute but only as a relative good."

"I have only the haziest notion," says Chase, "of how 'risk capital' or 'adventure money' differs from 'savings seeking investment.'" A tyro would object that savings may seek investment in long-proved enterprises or Government bonds. But then the author adds an explanation that sounds like a startling admission. "Any investment," he declares, "is pretty adventurous these days."

"It is important," he states, "to keep 'debt' and 'investment' closely associated throughout these hearings. Otherwise you are going to get stump speeches on the horrors of Government debt and the sublimities of private investment. It is equally in order to talk about the virtues of Government investment and the dangers of private debt. It is even better to say that Government investment equals debt and that private investment also equals debt, with allowances for common stocks.

"'Debt' is a very 'bad' word in the folkways. Yet few people realize that, if there were no debts there would be no investments, and nothing to be called capitalism." The word "credit" is to be avoided as much as possible, as a "diaphanous term." Instead, one should speak of securities, deposits, investments, loans and debts.

Kicking and Crumpling.

The word "securities" is a particularly loose one, it is declared. They may represent plant and physical investment—"stuff you can kick with your foot," like the new Ford steel factory; or financial investment—"stuff you crumple in your hand." Securities often represent only "hot air." They may cover "plant expansions or betterments, and so make jobs. Or they may cover reorganizations, mergers, refunding and blue-sky operations, and so make no jobs, or only a few."

"Always remember," it is advised, "that the benefactor of industry idea pleases the layman, while the miser idea distresses him."

Terms which are reprehended as loose or ambiguous include "productive enterprise," "capital goods," "producers' goods," "capital outlays," "capital formation," "wealth," "assets," "capital formation" and "portfolio investment." Instead of contrasting an "expanding" with a "mature economy" it would be more precise to speak of a "rapidly expanding" and a "slowly expanding" economy, because "mature" means the end of growth, "if not indeed senility." In the place of "administered prices," which almost nobody understands, Chase suggests "sticky versus flexible prices."

In speaking of "savings," he urges, differentiation should be made between investments and hoardings. He recommends that an arbitrary quantitative line be drawn between big and small business—the former having sales, for instance, above $2,000,000 a year, and the latter sales below that figure.

The memorandum bears the title "Investment Banking Study," and the subtitle, "Preliminary Suggestions for Standardizing Terminology; or, First Aid to the Layman."

Cave, 5623 Cabanne avenue, received a slightly larger scholarship from the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia. He will study sculpture, his companion will study painting.

Fisher is 24 years old, Cave 22.

sadism. They had a good pretext not to disclose the marriage. They believed that Schuschnigg was kept from collapse only by the hope that if he would "confess" and answer all questions docilely, he would eventually be permitted to marry. It was feared, too, that his nerves, already greatly strained, would completely give way before the shock.

Visited by His Proxy Bride.

That is precisely what happened. A little before Christmas, Countess Vera, who has borne for more than a month the name Mme. von Schuschnigg, was allowed to visit her husband before witnesses. A dramatic scene took place on the second floor of the hotel. Schuschnigg learned that his father had died, that his son was in Karlsbad in a Jesuit college and that his brother, who had taken his place during the marriage ceremony, was in a concentration camp.

Officials who were present at the interview had received instructions to forbid the Countess to talk with her husband about anything except family matters. But Schuschnigg, on seeing a human being other than his torturers after nine months of isolation, could not repress the question, "What is going on in the world of the living?" Immediately, the Gestapo intervened to forbid Mme. von Schuschnigg to answer.

It was then that the tragic scene took place, whose only witnesses were the wife of the ex-Chancellor and his guards, but reports of which were somehow carried beyond the walls to the whole world. It was whispered that Schuschnigg had gone mad. Indeed, at that moment he behaved himself in such a manner that not only his wife but also the Gestapo men were certain that Schuschnigg had taken leave of his senses. A famous Viennese alienist was brought to the hotel and at last succeeded in calming down the tortured man.

Still Weak, on Crutches.

Schuschnigg has not yet recovered from his breakdown. He had to remain in bed for months, and today is so weak that he must use crutches to go to the "office" where he is questioned. Officially, his state is attributed to a nervous indigestion. The truth is that his nerves are completely gone and his stomach can no longer accept food; he is in a pitiful state of emaciation and his blond hair has turned completely white. If his present state continues, he is irremediably lost.

What fate awaits him? It is certain that the trial for treason against his country, originally envisaged, is out of the question. It has been dropped upon Mussolini's express demand, inasmuch as it would have been impossible to keep reference to the Duce's actions out of the proceedings. But why does not Hitler give liberty to a man, against whom he cannot even bring charges? Or, at least, why not let him live in peace, under strict surveillance, somewhere in the country, with his wife and his son, for the days remaining to him? The answer is simple. Germany still needs Schuschnigg. Extraordinary as it may seem, during the year of his imprisonment, the ex-Chancellor of Austria has been of considerable use to the Reich. If Schuschnigg were not a prisoner in the Hotel Metropole, that crucial conversation last March between Hitler and Hacha, the ex-President of Czecho-Slovakia, would have taken a different turn. For the fate of Schuschnigg was a forceful argument in forcing Hacha to bow down to the Fuehrer's will..

HULL'S TRADE PACTS ISSUE AFTER 5 YEARS

60 Pct. of Foreign Commerce Carried on This Way; Two Sides of Argument.

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).—Secretary Hull's trade-agreements program, cornerstone of President Roosevelt's foreign policy, will complete five years of activity Monday with debate still continuing as to whether it has helped, or harmed, the nation's commerce.

The State Department can produce impressive figures to show a growth of foreign trade. But opponents argue that the United States' international commerce would have been even larger without the agreements.

It is an issue that has every indication of growing in intensity in the next 12 months, for next year the Trade Agreements Act will come up for renewal in Congress. It was renewed for three years in 1937 by a large majority.

In the five years since the Trade-Agreements Act entered into effect —June 12, 1934—20 nations have embraced the American Government's new experiment in international economics, and accords with a half-dozen other nations are under negotiation.

60 Per Cent by Agreement.

Within the framework of trade agreements 60 per cent of the total United States foreign commerce is now carried on. Tariff reductions have been made on over 1000 classifications of products.

Secretary Hull points out American exports to 17 countries with trade agreements in the 1937-1938 period rose 61 per cent compared with 1934-1935. Under the same comparison American exports to non-agreement countries increased only 38 per cent.

In that time imports from the agreement countries increased 35 per cent compared with an increase from non-agreement countries of 37 per cent.

An even larger percentage of trade will be conducted under agreements this year, since that with Great Britain and the British colonies, embracing 20 per cent of the total United States foreign trade, went into effect last Jan. 1.

Tariffs and Peace.

Secretary Hull regards the agreements not only as a method of increasing commerce through the lowering of trade barriers, but also as a means of augmenting the chances of peace through giving all nations greater access to raw materials. He has said repeatedly, too, that the United States must buy in order to sell, and that imports as well as exports create employment and profits.

Opponents of the agreements argue that:

They let in foreign manufactures and raw materials and thereby injure American producers. Although the quantity may be small the imports weaken domestic prices.

The agreements are negotiated without consulting American interests.

The agreements are not constitutional because they are treaties which should be consented to by the Senate.

$6038 FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN FROM SALE OF EASTER SEALS

Further Returns Likely, President of St. Louis Society Says in Report.

St. Louis Society for Crippled Children, which had 150 handicapped boys and girls under its care last year, has received $6038 from penny Easter seals mailed out last April in "Crippled Children's week," Dr. Archer O'Reilly, president, announced yesterday in his annual report.

He added that further returns are expected this month at the society headquarters, 3534 Washington avenue.

Appliances, camp outings and home instruction were provided for 47 children, reported Mrs. George D. Stout, Case Committee chairman. The second annual outdoor camp gave 35 children an outing last summer at Sherwood Forest Camp, near Troy, Lincoln County. A Visitation Committee, headed by Mrs. Walter E. Bryan, was formed in October to make friendly contact with crippled children away from home for treatment in local hospitals.

Holt said 185 liquidations remain to be completed.

EXPORT OF U. S. FARM PRODUCTS DECLINING

21 Per Cent Lower in Value for 10 Months of Current Fiscal Year.

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).—A curtailed foreign market for their products confronts American farmers as they move well into a new crop season with prospects of production considerably in excess of domestic needs. ....

The Agriculture Department's foreign service reported today that exports of agricultural commodities during the first 10 months of the current fiscal year were 21 per cent lower in value than in the comparable period a year ago.

The exports were valued at $612,778,000, compared with $777,264,000 a year ago.

The decline was due largely, the service said, to a fall in shipments of cotton, the major item of trade. Exports of cotton dropped 44 per cent in value and 39 per cent in quantity, while total exports of all other farm products decreased by 8 per cent in value.

Factors in Decline.

Factors contributing to this loss in foreign sales were said to include sharper competition, political and economic uncertainty in Europe and the Orient, and higher prices of some American products, particularly cotton, which has been held above world levels by th Government price-pegging loan program.

Federal foreign trade experts expressed the opinion that the United States would have to put forth what they called "special efforts" to re-establish exports at the 1938 level, which in itself was below that of the 1920s.

In this connection, President Roosevelt and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace have proposed that this country pay a bounty on cotton sold abroad so exporters can meet the price of competing countries

Officials said foreign sales of wheat this season would have been reduced materially had not the Government paid exporters a bounty. Exports of wheat during the first 10 months of the current season totaled 69,937,000 bushels compared with 65,638,000 in the comparable period a year ago.

The export subsidy program is expected to be continued on the new crop, which starts moving to market next month.

Should Congress provide sufficient funds, the Government also may subsidize export of some dairy products, lard and other pork products.

Imports Also Lower.

Imports of farm products into the United States during the 10-month period were 19 per cent lower than a year ago, the foreign service reported. The imports were valued at 775,820,000 compared with $949,033,000 a year ago.

The value of exports by classes during the 10-month period of this season and last, respectively, included:

Cotton, $164,607,000 and $291,858,000; wheat, $47,067,000 and $70,679,000; other grains, $51,000,000 and $62,000,000; tobacco, $136,487,000 and $140,446,000; fats and oils, $16,491,000 and $17,226,000.

Roosevelt's Four Justices Streamlining Constitution

enters the stream of commerce—the marketing warehouse . . . In markets where tobacco is sold to both interstate and intrastate purchasers it is not known, when the grower places his tobacco on the warehouse floor for sale, whether it is destined for interstate or intrastate commerce. Regulation to be effective, must, and therefore may constitutionally, apply to all sales."

Justice Butler with the concurrence of Justice McReynolds flaunted before Justice Roberts his majority opinion in the original AAA case, saying that regardless of the declared policy of the statute, it operated to control the quantity raised by each farmer.

"It is wholly fallacious," declared the minority opinion, "to say that the penalty is not imposed on production. The farmer raises tobacco only for sale. Punishment for selling is the exact equivalent of punishment for raising the tobacco."

Justice Roberts Joins Minority.

At last Monday's session, Justice Roberts seemingly reversed himself again on agricultural relief when he joined with the minority against the 1937 Agricultural Marketing Act, as applied to milk. In the New York milk case he declared the order issued by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace had violated the fifth amendment in that it deprived the appellees of property without due process of law, and in the Boston case that the act unconstitutionally delegated legislative power to the secretary. The majority in these cases held that under the commerce clause the Federal Government had the power to fix prices in the milk industry.

In the recent gold clause cases, the court further strengthened the New Deal monetary policy by holding that even if private bonds contained a "multiple currency" provision granting holders an option to elect payment in money of the United States or in foreign currency, the obligation could be liquidated in American dollars of present value. Although some of the bonds are now held by foreign corporations, who thought they had the option to receive dollars, guilders, pounds, francs or marks, the majority declared that "these distinctions do not remove foreign holders from the operation of joint resolution" of June 5, 1933.

Justice Roberts joined with the New Deal Justices to make up the majority. Justice Stone, who is often with the Roosevelt appointees, wrote the dissent, which had the concurrence of the Chief Justice and two other usual dissenters, Justices McReynolds and Butler.

New Deal Defeats.

The New Deal defeats were on less significant issues. In the Bankhead Cotton Control Act cases the decision was that cotton growers could recover from the Government taxes they had paid under the statute. The taxes were assessed against the ginners but were paid by the growers on the refusal of the ginners to deliver their cotton to them otherwise Government counsel contended that the growers had voluntarily paid in the taxes and accordingly could not recover. The court ruled against this argument, stating that the growers had paid under "duress."

In another New Deal case, the court ruled that the Federal Housing Administrator did not have a prior claim on a note insured by the FHA when the administrator acquired the note after a filing of a petition in bankruptcy.

Technically the Government lost the Strecker case, but the court's decision did not give the view expected from the court on the power of the Federal Government to deport alien Communists. The decision turned on the fact that Strecker had joined the Communist party after his entry into the United States but had ceased to be a member before his arrest. It was held that he was not subject to deportation under existing laws. Strecker's counsel privately complained that Solicitor-General Jackson made the strongest possible argument for the Government but many of New Dealers hailed the decision as another victory for civil liberty.

Less Significant Victories.

The Government's less significant victories were in the National Firearms case where it was argued that the act usurped the police power reserved to the states and deprived people of the constitutional right to bear arms; in the motion picture monopoly suit involving a conspiracy of exhibiters and proprietors of "first-run" theaters to impose restrictions on proprietors of "second-run" theaters; in the "hot oil" case in which the argument was made that law as applied was an ex post facto measure, and in one of the many Morgan-Kansas City stockyards cases in which the court held that funds could be impounded until the court had passed on the validity of an order by Secretary Wallace.

Decisions involving the powers of states were about equally divided as to the extension and limitations of state authority. In Graves vs. People of New York, the court held that Federal salaries were not immune from state income taxes. Conversely the decision implied the right of the Federal Government to tax the income of state employes. This decision was interpreted to indicate that the court would uphold a "short and simple statute" advocated by President Roosevelt for the reciprocal taxation of income from Federal, state and local bonds. Justice McReynolds and Butler dissented in the Graves case, the latter stating that "safely it may be said that presently marked for destruction is the doctrine of reciprocal immunity that by recent decisions here has been so much impaired."

The Court upheld the Missouri and Michigan "retaliation" acts designed to penalize states which discriminated against liquor manufactured in each of the two states. The court in effect held that the twenty-first amendment had divested liquor of the protection of the commerce clause. But the court voided a Florida statute levying an inspection fee of 15 cents a hundredweight on cement imported from other states into Florida. The court declared the tax was unconstitutional under the commerce clause because of discriminations against foreign products in favor of those of the State.

There was a sharp division about the jurisdiction of the pending child labor amendment. Justices Roberts, Black, Frankfurter and Douglas argued that the amending process was a "political" question and hence non-justiciable. The majority, in an opinion by Chief Justice Hughes, held the instant cases justiciable, but conceded that the "reasonable period" for ratification was a "political" question for Congress and not the courts. The effect of the decisions in the Kansas and Kentucky cases before the court was a victory for the advocates of the amendment. By its own "self-restraint" the court refused to say whether 15 years was an "unreasonable period" for ratification.

The same "self-restraint" was noted when the majority of the court held that Federal Judges appointed after June 6, 1932, were subject to a Federal income tax. This decision indicated that the court would welcome a test as to whether all Federal Judges were subject to taxes imposed on all other citizens.

Decision on Mayor Hague.

The Mayor Frank Hague-Jersey City civil rights decision attracted as much, if not more attention, than the court's condemnation of the sit-down strike in the Fansteel case. Although only seven members of the court participated in the decision, there were five separate opinions. Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented outright and the other five members agreed to the invalidity of the Jersey City ordinance regulating the holding of public meetings and the distribution of literature but differed as to reason for sustaining the jurisdiction of the Federal Court to issue an injunction against enforcement of the ordinance. Specifically the decision was a victory for the CIO and a direct blow to Mayor Hague's strictly and roughly enforced embargo against union organizers and Socialist speakers.

In many respects the term just ended was one of the most important in the court's long history. The concept of a rigid, steel-bound Constitution has been replaced by doctrine of flexibility. Ancient decisions have been repudiated and new principles have been established. This term was notable for the extremely high proportion of cases in which the lower courts were reversed. In fact, reversal was the rule and affirmance the exception in cases coming from Federal Circuit Courts of Appeals, where many of the older Judges are still sitting.

The spring of 1937 saw the beginning of the turn. The 1938-39 term proved that Mr. Roosevelt has made a definite mark on the judicial system, one that will remain long after he has departed from the White House.

IMPROVEMENTS URGED FOR PUBLIC LIBRARY

Survey Accompanying Report to Mayor Cites Need for More Funds.

In the first survey of the Public Library since its establishment in 1865, reported to the Mayor yesterday as part of the Library Board's annual statement, Librarian Charles H. Compton listed a wide variety of desirable improvements in the service and operation of the agency, including greatly augmented sources of income.

While the American Library Association sets $1 per capita as a fairly adequate income for a public library, the income here was given as 58 cents per capita. For the 15 cities exceeding 500,000 in population, the average expenditure is 77 cents per capita and the maximum, in Cleveland, $1.98.

Income of the St. Louis Library in 1938 was $443,818 from tax sources and $29,628 from miscellaneous sources, a total of $473,446. Compton declared it was not likely the annual income would be much larger for some time to come. From tax sources the income rose from $277,495 in 1914 to a peak of $557,540 in 1927, the decline from the peak in the last 12 years having exceeded $100,000. The property tax of 4 cents on the $100 valuation, set aside by vote of the people, is the library's chief source of revenue.

Tax Increase Impracticable.

Increase of the property tax rate for the library was put aside by Compton as impracticable. If the Legislature, acting under a Supreme Court of Missouri decision recognizing the library as an educational institution, would appropriate $500,000 a year of the State school fund for libraries, St. Louis would receive more than $100,000 on a per capita basis, he pointed out. He called attention to the possibility, under the Constitution, of a State constitutional convention in 1942, at which more adequate provision might be made for libraries.

If the city should find its income augmented from nex tax sources, the library should be considered for a share of this money, the report declared. This also was one of the suggestions for the public schools in a recent survey. Compton also proposed that well-to-do citizens make the library the recipient of gifts and bequests and disclosed that a committee of the board was considering ways of interesting persons in this.

Principal Findings of Survey.

Principal findings of the library survey, besides those on finances, summarized, were as follows:

Staff salaries, generally low everywhere, are especially low in St. Louis, but there is an inevitable limit to the payment of inadequate salaries, with few, if any, increases.

It is imperative to find a means of retiring superannuated employes; three of the 120 members of the professional staff have served more than 40 years and 13 others more than 30 years.

Complete new lighting systems are badly needed in the delivery hall and reading rooms of Central Library.

The book and magazine fund, $50,000 this year, was about $90,000 a decade ago and even then was inadequate. After buying periodicals and such continuing publications as the City Directory, only $13.73 is left for purchase each week of five adult books and four juvenile books at, for example, the Benton branch, one of 20 branches.

Valuable Newspaper Files.

Nearly complete files of St. Louis newspapers since 1851 are doubtless the most valuable collection of local material, but those issued since about 1878, on wood pulp paper, are disintegrating Reproduction of these files on microfilm would cost $20,000 to $35,000.

Value of the library for self-education through reading often is unrecognized.

To serve the city adequately, placing library branches within convenient reach of all citizens, 40 additional branches would be required.

St. Louis might in the future serve as the center of a publicly supported regional library, serving five nearby counties.

An organization of friends of the library, such as exist elsewhere, would be helpful in support of the St. Louis agency.

On an accepted method of rating libraries, the library here scored 67, while 75 was the minimum for average service and 100 perfection, Compton said. Asserting that the character of the library was mirrored in the characteristics of the city, he describde St. Louis thus: "Mellowed by age, tolerant in its disposition, varied in its industries, slow in its movements, frendly in its attitude, rich in cultural qualities."

SOCIAL PLANNING COMMITTEE FOR JUVENILE COURT CHANGES

Indorsement of the recent grand jury's recommendations for revision of the Juvenile Court was made last night in a radio speech on the Community Forum period2by Ben L. Shifrin, chairman of the Social Planning Council's Juvenile Court committee.

The grand jury proposed that the court be reorganized with a permanent Judge in charge.

"Since it will require some years to bring about these changes," Shifrin said, "our committee believes that the present circuit bench can achieve to a substantial degree the essential improvement in Juvenile Court procedure by designating one of its number to serve for a six-year term."

Shifrin also made a plea for an adequate and well-trained staff.

Moderate Stock Market Price Rise During Week Is Featured by Investment Buying in "Blue Chips"

Bonds Move Ahead With Shares as Several Influences Are Stressed—Average Up .91 of a Point.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—Gains in the big steel and motor industries this week were ascribed partly to a rebound in activity from Memorial day curtailment in the previous week. But on various fronts business observers noted signs of a rally from the spring let-down. Wall Street security markets remained quiet but bonds and stocks crept ahead as demand spilled over from the gilt-edged security class to lower-rated grades.

Business, it seemed, was benefitting from its "rest cure." The muffler remained on the war alarms which upset the market place in March and April.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at 48.5 was 1.2 points higher for the week. For the day there was no change. The Dow-Jones average of 65 stocks at 46.79 was .91 of a point higher for the week, but .04 of a point under the preceding day. Saturday's stock sales were 254,930 shares, compared with 175,740 last Saturday. The week's volume amounted to 2,932,940, against 2,438,150 the preceding week.

The British took New York today and with it the stock market. Traders deserted the exchange floor and boardrooms in large numbers after the opening in order to welcome King George and Queen Elizabeth.

The result was that dealings slowed to a crawl near the close and final plus and minus signs, mostly fractional, were about evenly divided.

How Market Moved.

In the day's price shifts 184 stocks were up, 177 down and 162 unchanged. Transfers for the two hours amounted to 254,930 shares.

While speculative interest was dimmed appreciably by interest in the royal guests, market sentiment, on the whole, continued fairly optimistic.

Peace hopes were strengthened by unconfirmed reports from Paris that Hitler was preparing to approach England, France and the United States on the settlement of problems which have been causing world war fears.

Steels eased a trifle although production schedules next week were expected to hold up fairly well. Opinions differed as to whether there would be a gain or decrease in the operating rate.

Motors were off only slightly. Satisfactory sales of new cars were offset to some extent by fears of union labor difficulties in Michigan.

Among Day's Gainers.

Merchandising issues continued resistant as consumer spending appeared to be broadening. The Federal Reserve Board estimated department store sales for the week ended June 3, up 9 per cent over the comparable 1938 period.

American Air Lines, coming over to the "big board" today from the Curb, pushed up a point at 31. Patino Mines was an isolated weak spot, dropping 1⅞ points to 7⅞, a new year's low, following word the Bolivian Government had decreed restrictions on exchange for mineral exports. Principal Patino properties are in that country.

Among the day's gainers were Cluett Peabody, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, American Telephone, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Eastman Kodak, J. C. Penney and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Down a trifle were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Anaconda, Consolidated Edison, Great Northern and Douglas Aircraft.

Industrial Index Up.

Influenced mainly by the increased automobile and steel operations, the Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity rose to 84.5 from 83.3 the preceding week. Since mid-May it has recovered from 81.8. The improvement has coincided with resumption of soft-coal mining after a six weeks stoppage but most analysts said other factors had combined to bring about the lift, including the waning of war fear.

The Associated Press index, with component groups based on latest figures, calculated on 1929-30 levels as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest Week.	Previous Week.	Year Ago.
Composite index	84.5	83.3	66.7
Automobile output	58.8	40.7	36.3
Steel mill activity	72.7	70.1	37.2
Cotton mfg.	110.2	111.0	80.8
Electric power use	114.2	114.4	103.9
Residential bldg.	91.4	90.8	55.3
Total carloadings	63.7	64.4	56.5

Large Municipal Issues.

Assembly lines turned out 65,265 cars and trucks against 32,445 the week before and 42,175 in the 1938 period, according to trade estimates. The jump was attributed partly to the settlement of the strike in the Briggs body plants at Detroit.

The steel industry boosted operations to 54.2 per cent of capacity, highest in two months. Steel makers, it appeared, had repaired the rift in operations caused by dwindling fuel supply during the coal dispute.

In the seven-day period ended Thursday, new financing in Wall street approximated $223,000,000, largest for any comparable period since February, 1937.

Two large municipal issues, including $71,000,000 in California toll bridge bonds bought by an underwriting syndicate from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for public offering, comprised the bulk of business. But corporate financing also increased and registration of new issues with the SEC, including a $25,000,000 Bethlehem Steel loan pointed to a fairly brisk mid-year run of flotations.

Nearing "Priming" Peak.

With Federal "pump-priming" spending nearing the peak of the present wave, a sprightly flow of dollars across the nation's retail counters was indicated in trade reports from many communities. Wholesale markets, caught in slack buying waters most of the spring, sprouted signs of increasing activity. Cotton textile buying was broad enough to eat into stocks mills accumulated during the slow spring.

Opportune rains for growing crops in some regions were offset, as far as the farmer's purse was concerned, by a slow recession in average farm prices. Livestock quotations on the average were the lowest in five years.

Concerned over Government spending, business regulations and taxes, the business commodity eagerly watched the preliminary fencing for the 1940 presidential campaign, the lining up of candidates and soundings of political sentiment. Some business leaders professed to see a change in their favor.

COMMODITY INDEX IS LOWER FOR WEEK

Steel Scrap, Cotton and Other Basic Raw Materials, However, Climb.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP). — Steel scrap, cotton and a number of other basic raw materials climbed higher this week in cash markets, despite declining trends elsewhere among commodities for immediate delivery.

Scrap moved up sharply in a series of 25-cent-per-ton advances, reflecting faster operations at the nation's steel mills, where activity has been rising steadily for three weeks.

Spot cotton touched a new high for the year under continued demand for desriable grades of the staple.

Also up among industrial raw materials were rubber, turpentine and linseed oil. Tin and burlap, however, sold lower.

The Associated Press index of 35 weighted spot wholesale commodity prices, with 1926 as 100, declined to 66.89 from 66.95 in the preceding week and compared with 64.80 a year ago. It was the second consecutive week-to-week decline of the measure.

Contributing to the easing of the index was weakness in the livestock division, where hogs, cattle and lambs sold downward. Hog prices were the lowest in five years. The livestock component of the commodity index touched a new bottom for 1939.

Among the grains, oats were higher, but wheat and rye both declined as crop weather in the grain belt was reported mostly favorable and export demand remained low.

Silk, selling recently at 8-year highs, was up in the textile division again, but wool prices shaded lower.

Butter advanced among market basket items, but less costly were sugar, cocoa, flour and lard.

	June 9 Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.

RAIL EQUIPMENT ORDERS

Purchases of Equipment and Materials for 5 Months 50 Per Cent Above Year Ago.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP). — Purchases of equipment and materials by the railroad industry, one of the nation's largest consumers, increased 50 per cent during the first five months over the corresponding period a year ago, "Railway Age" estimated today.

Purchases of equipment were about three times as great as a year ago while commitments for materials were approximately a third larger.

Railway buying, which has always followed railroad earnings closely has varied during the past three years as follows:

SHANGHAI DOLLAR BREAK JOLTS LIST

Action of Chinese-British Stabilization Fund Perplexes New York Market.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—Foreign exchange markets were jolted this week by a sudden break in the Shanghai dollar.

The Chinese-British stabilization fund, which has supplied foreign exchange to buyers and kept the Shanghai money close to 16 cents in terms of the American dollar in recent weeks, unexpectedly refused to supply any more foreign currencies.

In other words, they declined to buy the Chinese dollar at a set rate.

Consequently the money broke more than 3 cents by the close of business Friday.

At the same time, the Stabilization Commission maintained official silence—aside from stating the fund's resources were ample—over failure to support the currency.

Some money experts saw in the withdrawal of support a possible thrust at Japanese money management. The Japanese yen, they pointed out, has a tendency to follow the Shanghai dollar outside of Japan, where it is maintained around 27 cents. A fall in the Chinese dollar, consequently, might be more embarrassing to Japanese interests than to Chinese.

Another possibility, foreign exchange men said, might be a desire to improve Chinese trade balances.

The Netherland guilder leveled off after previous setbacks. There was evidence of official control support following criticism of financial authorities in allowing the guilder to fluctuate over the wide range of recent weeks.

The Swiss franc was under mild pressure. The British pound and French franc continued to move on an even keel.

Evidence that Europe is looking a little more closely at peace plans was found in further slacking of the flow of gold headed for American vaults. Gold engagements for the week through Friday totaled $9,994,000, compared with $17,234,000 in the similar period last week.

The Netherlands guilder came out of a morning decline of as much as .06 of a cent to close .02 of a cent lower in terms of the dollar today.

Operations of the official control (absence of which has been noted since the guilder was allowed to fluctuate over a wide range) were believed rsponsible for the rally by foreign exchange men.

The Shanghai dollar, meanwhile, leveled off only 1-10 of a cent below Friday's close. A break of over 3 cents during the week was apparently checked for the time being, although the Chinese-British stabilization commission still had nothing to say on future policy bearing on the Chinese money, bankers said.

Sterling and the belga were unchanged while the French franc and Swiss franc were narrowly lower.

The Federal Reserve Bank reported engagement of $4,612,000 gold in England and $1,688,000 in Holland for shipment here.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—Foreign exchange closing rates follow: Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain, 4.68 5-16; 60-day bills, 4.67 7-16; Canada Montreal in N. LONDON, June 10 (AP).—The United States dollar finished unchanged at 4.68⅜ to the pound in foreign exchange today, compared with sterling at $4.68 5-16 in New York over night.

French francs were unaltered at 176.7 to the pound.

COTTON MARKET IS SLOW, PRICES DOWN AT CLOSE

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—Cotton futures slowly stepped down a few rungs in the price ladder today, showing losses of 1 to 5 points at the finish.

For the most part, however, brokers kept their hands in pocket waiting fresh news from Washington, where a joint House-Senate committee was considering the agricultural appropriation bill and the Smith proposal that funds from the appropriation not be used for export subsidy payments.

Southern liquidation and a little hedging in new crop deliveries represented most of the pressure. Bombay was predominantly a seller of March and May.

Foreign support appeared in small volume and there was trade price-fixing and buying by southern spot houses, but demand on the whole was apathetic.

Weather reports indicated cloudy and showery conditions over most of the cotton belt next week.

Exports today dropped to only 76 bales; season so far 3,337,360. Port receipts 3589, port stocks 1,969,840.

Spot nominal; middling 9.98.

WHEAT MARKET ACTIVE; LITTLE CHANGE AT CLOSE

Mixture of Trade Factors, With Conflicting Effect on Price Trends, Unsettles List.

CHICAGO, June 10 (AP).—A mixture of trade factors that had conflicting effect on price trends unsettled the wheat market today and resulted in little or no net change in quotations after an active session.

Prices dipped as much as ⅝ cent early in the day due to good rains over much of the grain belt, particularly in spring wheat territory where moisture is most beneficial, but then rallied about a cent. Later evening-up selling accounted for a reaction and at the close quotations were unchanged to ¼ lower compared with yesterday's finish, with July 74¾@⅝, September 75¼@⅛.

Establishment of the lowest quotations at Liverpool, Europe's principal import market, in eight years had a bearish effect, but offsetting this was the slightly bullish interpretation placed by some dealers on that portion of the Goverment crop report pertaining to spring wheat. Scattered reports of black rust infestation in parts of the Southwest also attracted attention, but experts who checked these said only insignificant infestations could be found in Kansas, although, they pointed out, the disease may spread. Much rust resistant wheat has been sown in the spring wheat belt.

The Government crop report late yesterday estimated winter wheat production at 523,431,000 bushels, or more than 7,000,000 larger than the average of six private estimates released a week ago, but data contained in the report indicating a probable spring wheat harvest of 145,000,000 to 170,000,000 bushels compared with an average of 184,000,000 bushels issued by private statisticians. Total indicated harvest, therefore, was less than the 700,000,000 bushels prospect forecast by the Chicago experts.

Losses of 1 to 1¼ cents at Liverpool was due to good Canadian crop prospects and cheaper offers of Southern Hemisphere wheat.

However, the Government issued a special weather report pointing out that rains late in May and early this month greatly benefited crops west of the Mississippi River but further moisture will be needed.

Corn prices were higher with wheat and oats and rye also advanced, the latter moving up more than a cent bushel due to the distinctly bullish Government estimate indicating a crop of 35,000,000 bushels, barely equal to average annual domestic requirements and 20,000,000 smaller than harvested last year.

Condition of oats is the lowest for June since 1933.

Lard was about steady.

BOND PRICES IMPROVE IN WEEK'S TRADING

Rail Group Advances Most Sharply—Utility Index Best in 2 Years.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—The bond market edged higher this week with heavier demand for medium-priced issues.

Railroad loans as a group advanced the most sharply, and utility bonds, as measured by the Associated Press average of 10 representative issues, touched the highest levels since September, 1937. Industrials also moved ahead.

United States Government securities, which has been selling at the highest prices in history, moved unevenly with many maturities tending to taper in the latter part of the week.

Foreign dollar bonds joined in the general corporate advance.

Demand for corporate issues remained fairly steady throughout the period, and buying on Tuesday was at the fastest pace since May 25, last.

There was little fresh news concerning either the short-term or long-term business outlook, and buying got its momentum largely from the heavy stores of idle cash in Wall Street seeking investment.

Offerings of new securities for the period totaled $222,957,760, the biggest for any week since February, 1937. Of the aggregate, $187,401,000 were State and municipal issues, $25,300,000 public utility, $10,000,000 industrial and $256,000 stocks.

Noted especially was that 82 per cent of the week's offerings were to raise "new money" for bridges and highways, or for such corporate purposes as plant construction, expansion or rehabilitation. For some months refunding issues had been in the majority.

U. S. Treasury issues sagged in a quiet and mixed bond market today.

A few corporate loans continued to move ahead on the slow recovery trend visible lately but dealings generally were too small to make much impression on prices.

The arrival of the British King and Queen helped divert Wall street attention from the security markets. Also there was a disposition, brokers said, to make commitments cautiously until business demonstrates more recovery power.

The decline in Treasury loans this week accompanied increased activity in new municipal and corporate financing, providing more outlet for idle investment funds. Losses today ranged to 9-32 of a point in the most active direct and indirect Federal obligations.

Ending fractionally to about a point higher were Commonwealth Edison 3½s, International Paper 5s, Loew's 3½s, Walworth 4s and Pacific Gas 3¾s. Small losses were recorded for American & Foreign Power 5s, Great Northern 4s, International Telephone 5s and Southern Railway 4s.

Poland 8s broke nearly 3 points in an uneven market for foreign loans. Abitibi Paper & Power 5s picked up a gain of 1½ points.

Transactions totaled $2,566,500, face value, against $2,589,750 a week ago. The Associated Press average price of 10 utility bonds touched a new top for the year at 96.7, the highest since September, 1937.

BROADER DEMAND FOR COPPER DURING WEEK

Comes From All Types of Copper and Brass Mills.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP).—Substantial orders kept the domestic copper market busy this week.

Demand for the red metal was broader than in previous buying flurries, coming from all types of copper and brass mills. Some trade observers estimated June sales will be the best of the year if the current buying keeps up.

Prices held firm at 10 cents a pound (with the exception of Phelps Dodge, who still listed 10½ cents) and most quarters agreed there was little chance of a price recession for the present at least.

Buyers of export copper displayed a little reluctance when the price got up to 10.25 cents, and the high level was not maintained. Sales late in the week were made at 10.14 cents.

Lead producers again had to dig into reserves to supply demand. Analysts said the statistical position of the lead industry was quite favorable, and with any encouragement from abroad, prices could easily move ahead. Quotations, meanwhile, were unchanged at 4.75 cents a pound.

Zinc moved at a routine clip and the price held firm at 4.50 cents, East St. Louis.

Steel ingot production moved up another notch, a reflection of rolling of orders at low prices in flat rolled products as well as increased rail and structural steel requirements.

TOY YACHTS BATTLE WIND ON PARK LAKE

Gusts and Showers Mark Public School Regatta—Gundlach Winner.

Drenched by intermittent showers as their boats battled heavy weather on Jefferson Lake in Forest Park, skippers representing Gundlach Industrial Arts Center rolled up 53 points yesterday to win the eighth annual public school model yacht regatta.

The wind that whipped up waves on Jefferson Lake was the worst experienced since the contests for models made in elementary industrial arts classes were started, it was said by G. H. Hargitt, supervisor.

One boat was dismasted by the gusts that swept the lake. Stays were broken and sails were ripped on others. Six capsized.

Dewey Center was second with 46 points awarded for collective skill in sailing, and Fanning was third with 31. Points gained by others were: Hodgen, 24; Madison, 17; Mason, 12; Mullanphy, 10, and Dozier, 5. In some instances several schools are represented in each center. There were 564 entries.

Winners of first place in each of the four classes will receive silver yacht models. Ribbons will be given others who placed.

$24,234 ADDED TAX APPEALED BY JOHN W. FRISTOE ESTATE

Statute of Limitations Invoked on Income Levy, Error by Revenue Bureau Charged.

An appeal against additional income taxes of $24,234 assessed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue against the estate of John W. Fristoe, St. Louisan who died in 1932, was filed with the Board of Tax Appeals at Washington yesterday.

The appeal was filed by the St. Louis Union Trust Co., co-executor of the estate and trustee of part of it, and the two principal beneficiaries, Fristoe's wife, Mrs. Frances G. Fristoe, and daughter, Mrs. Frances R. Titzell. They contended the estate already had paid an additional tax on the 1934 income and that the statute of limitations barred further collections. It also was asserted that the bureau erred in placing income of the estate at $129,252 for 1934 and $36,161 for 1935, instead of the $74,875 and $31,361 reported for the respective years by the estate.

Fristoe was chairman of the board of the T. J. Moss Tie Co. An inventory filed shortly after his death placed the value of his estate at $843,756.

His father, the late Julius Hoerner, was manager of the bottle plant at the brewery, and a brother, the late Alfred Hoerner, was a salesman for the firm. Hoerner is married and lives at 4012 Juniata street.

great waves of immigration that lifted the country out of the trough of a depression.

What is more, the committee points out in propaganda for the bill, a number of refugees who have been admitted to England have started new industries that have actually created employment. The "London Spectator" recently described in considerable detail how refugees had created industries that had made employment in Britain. The whole of the valuable Leipzig fur trade has been transferred to England, according to the "Spectator." A new leather bag business in Lancashire employs more than 750 British subjects.

In many instances German refugees have transferred their exporting businesses to England, manufacturing and selling for their former customers in various parts of the world, but with British instead of German workers. On a small scale this has already begun to happen in this country, the Quaker organization reports. And the possibility is held out that American workers can be trained to make products that have hitherto come almost exclusively from Germany and Czecho-Slovakia.

Pressure Naturally Great.

With the German quota as small as it is the pressure is naturally very great. Approved applicants, with their papers all in order, have filled the lists four or five years in advance. And still others are anxious to get on the approved list even though they know they must wait years to come in.

According to the best estimates available, the American Friends Service Committee reports, there are about 400,000 Jews by religion still in Germany and about 300,000 non-Aryan Christians, which means Christians with some percentage of Jewish blood. Up to the present, the committee reports, German refugees arriving in this country have been divided in the proportion of approximately five Jews by religion to two Christians, but this proportion is explained by the fact that the Jewish committees were the first in the field and have had more time to secure affidavits and financial support for their co-religionists.

Under German law, of course, anyone is a Jew who has as little as 25 per cent Jewish blood in his veins, no matter what his religion. Many so-called Jews have no Jewish blood, being classed that way because they are married to Jews. Besides the racial refugees there is a somewhat smaller group of former Social Democrats, Liberals, moderate Socialists, pacifists, journalists, Catholic priests and Protestant pastors who are desirous of leaving Germany.

Spain and Elsewhere.

Nor is Germany the only European country in which a refugee problem exists. Nearly half a million Spanish refugees are in France. They consist of soldiers, Government officials, journalists, literary men, liberals, radicals who fled before Franco's triumph. Although they are living in squalid camps, it nevertheless costs the French Government considerable to feed them and great pressure is being brought upon their leaders to find other countries that will receive them. Former Prime Minister Juan Negrin recently was in Washington on his way to Mexico where the Government has agreed to take 30,000 Spaniards from the French camps. Negrin is in search of other havens for his desperate fellow countrymen since the French have intimated that they must go back to Spain if some solution is not quickly found.

Before the enormousness of this problem, the 10,000 children to be admitted beyond the quota for each of two years seems small enough. Moreover, the children are to be selected for health and brains, the first time that anything like selective immigration ever has been considered.

The proposal is modest because those who have sponsored it realize the prejudices they must come up against. Prejudices grow out of the insecurity that comes with mass unemployment. And out of fear and prejudice come whispering campaigns and all the rumor and superstition of which race hatred is made.

Realizing all this, the sponsoring groups have worked intensively to put over the child refugee bill, but they know the nature of the opposition. The bill still is in committee and a drive is on to end the session. They are not too optimistic.

Photographs of Jewish refugees aboard the Hamburg-American liner St. Louis appear on Page 11 of PICTURES in this issue.

FIVE MEN OF U. S. CRUISER CREW WED FRENCH WOMEN

Overcome Legal Obstacles; Warship Will Sail for Home Within a Week.

VILLEFRANCHE, France, June 10 (AP).—Five United States sailors who found romance in Southern France have been married to French women within a week from the time they were scheduled to sail for home.

One pair was married last night and four today, all of them overcoming legal obstacles which had threatened their plans.

The bridegrooms were: R. Malcolm Collier of Poulan, Ga.; Carroll A. Walsh of San Francisco; Stanley L. Brothers of Wenatchee, Wash.; George W. Wiggs of Princeton, N. C., and James Garfield Helwig of Columbia, Pa. All are members of the crew of the U. S. cruiser Omaha.

About 20 sailors had asked French officials for permission to marry French women before the sailing of the cruiser June 17 for the United States. The usual requirements are that a pair must reside for a year in France before marriage.

PARTIES IN RACE BETTING ALTERCATION DROP CHARGES

Both Sides Decline to Prosecute; Bookmakers Accused Group of Using Short-Wave Radio.

A dispute between Irving and Patrick Lee, bookmakers, and a group of persons whom they accused of "taking" them for $3000 to $5000 by obtaining race results by short-wave radio, ended yesterday with the dismissal of cross-charges of peace disturbance.

The charges were filed by the Lee brothers against Ellsworth T. Caverly of Anaheim, Cal., and by Caverly against the Lees, after a fight June 2 in front of a handbook at 2802 North Grand boulevard, one of six operated by the Lees. Caverly, who had been driven out of the shop when the Lees became suspicious of last-minute winning bets, suffered bruises which necessitated treatment at City Hospital.

When all parties to the dispute declined to prosecute, the charges were dismissed by Police Judge Frank E. Mathews. A Federal investigation of the theory short-wave radio equipment had been used in a scheme to obtain race results before handbooks received them previously had been dropped.

IS IT WORTH RAISING?
CURTIS WOODWORK SILENTITE Pre-Fit THE "INSULATED" WINDOW
Old-style windows can't help binding, sticking, and rattling. Cold drafts blow into the home, requiring extra fuel and imperiling family health. Dust filters thru. Snow and rain ruin draperies. Weights jam. Sash cords break. Constant repair bills are necessary.
Contrast all that grief with the efficiency of the Curtis Silentite Window. It cannot bind or rattle. It lifts and lowers so smoothly that a child can handle it easily. And this new window is Insulated—draftproof—dustproof—saving fuel instead of wasting it. Gone, too, are the troublesome weights and cords. Come in and see this modern window.

DON'T FORCE YOUR BUILDER TO USE CHEAP Lumber!
There are many ways to gainfully cut costs on a home. But lumber is not one of them. To the contrary, cheap, wet lumber actually costs you more because expensive repairs will inevitably result.
So when it comes to materials that really count, foremost among which is lumber, make clear to your builder and architect that you want Goodfellow pre-shrunk, stabilized lumber. It costs no more in construction, and saves you money and worry thereafter.

PROPERTY ON LINDELL, EAST OF GRAND, BOUGHT

Jeweler Buys 98 Feet on North Side of Boulevard — Olive-Locust and Pine Street Deals.

By Berry Moore

Reflecting a belated demand, negotiations are on an aggressive basis, according to realtors, for property on Lindell boulevard and Olive street, east of Grand, as well as on Pine and Locust streets.

A feature of the week was the purchase of an unimproved parcel of 98-foot frontage on the north side of Lindell boulevard, east of Grand, by Ruben Sawyer, jeweler. It was owned by the Pasadena Corporation, a holding company for undivided interests.

The site has a depth on its east line of 44 feet 8 inches and on its west line of 72 feet 4 inches. It was formerly occupied by old buildings, which were razed with

H. A. DAILEY INC. ACQUIRES GROUND ON HODIAMONT AVENUE

H. A. Dailey, Inc., has purchased a tract, 112 by 200 feet on the north side of Hodiamont avenue, just north of Cates avenue.

The buildings now occupying the site will be converted for offices and warehouse purposes. The site is virtually at the intersection of the proposed over-pass of the Wabash Railroad.

The sale was made by Duke-Young, Inc., for Jane Landau, the seller.

A. E. SCHMIDT CO. BUYS BUILDING AT 1606 PINE

Acquires Two-Story Structure From Frank A. Ruf Estate to Provide for Expansion.

The two-story building at 1606-08 Pine street has been purchased by the A. E. Schmidt Co., manufacturer of bowling, bar and billiard supplies, represented by Arthur S. Martin & Son, realtors, in the negotiation. It occupies a lot 40x109 feet.

The purchaser will occupy the building as an addition to its main quarters, housed in a large structure at 1809 Olive street, which is inadequate to requirements. The Pine street building will be altered and remodeled.

The concern, of which Adolph Kliefoth is president and Edward Schmidt is secretary and treasurer, was established at 328 Market street in 1850.

The property was owned by the Frank A. Ruf estate, of which the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. is trustee. The bank was represented by J. H. Farish-Knapp & Co. in the transaction. The purchase price was not disclosed.

CHIROPRACTIC COLLEGE BUYS BUILDING ON LAFAYETTE AV.

The three-story building at 3117 Lafayette avenue has been purchased by the Missouri Chiropractic College, which has occupied the structure for the past five years. The Mullin-Walters Realty Co. handled the sale. The consideration was not disclosed.

The building comprises approximately 15 rooms. It is of brick and stone construction, set off with a mansard roof.

The site has a frontage of 100 feet on Lafayette avenue, by a depth of 200 feet, extending through the block to Henrietta street.

There is a two-story building in the rear of the premises fronting on Henrietta street.

JENNINGS ROAD TRACT OF 60 ACRES BOUGHT BY BUILDERS

The Schuermann Realty and Building Co. has acquired a 60-acre tract at the southwest corner of Florissant and Jennings roads from the Sisters of St. Ann. The tract has a frontage of 1600 feet on Florissant road by a depth of 1400 feet on Jennings road.

Plans contemplate the erection of 300 or more houses, principally of the bungalow type. Construction is scheduled to start June 15. The new development will be known as Flordell Hills.

The tract is on the Public Service Bus Line and is convenient to schools and churches. It is in the new Jennings sewer districts.

The purchase price was not disclosed.

The Schuermann company has been a factor in building operations in the residential fields for several years.

DR. VAL B. SATTERFIELD BUYS WESTMINSTER PLACE HOME

Dr. Val B. Satterfield has purchased the residence at 4426 Westminster place, owned by Mrs. Winfield Pope Hawkins. Edward L. Bakewell, realtor, made the sale.

The first floor consists of entrance hall, living room, library, dining room, kitchen, lavatory and pantry. There are four master bedrooms, with dressing rooms, three baths and sleeping porch on the second floor. The third floor has five rooms and two baths.

Bakewell recently effected the sale of the residence at 1118 Hampton Park drive in Hampton Park to Wilford Boss, president of the Walk-Easy Foot Rest Manufacturing Co.

the widening of the thoroughfare between Grand boulevard and Channing avenue. The depth of the property along the boulevard was reduced as a result of the widening.

Situated approximately 150 feet east of Grand boulevard, the ground has attracted the attention of both speculators and business interests. The purchase was made ostensibly as an investment. There are no plans for the improvement of the site, which is now used for parking purposes.

Speculative Purchases.

Speculative purchases in this block were a feature of the real estate market in 1930, preceding the widening of the street, which was expected to have an elixir effect on values in this section. Not a few purchases were made predicted on the assumption that substantial damage awards would be made to property owners. Inspired by the possibilities of this part of the city, a group of professional operators acquired a 99-year lease on the southeast corner of Grand and Lindell boulevards, occupied by a two-story automobile building. The lease was terminated during the depression period. Many attractive offers were also forthcoming in the pre-depression era for the northeast corner of Grand and Lindell boulevards, 150 by 150 feet, owned by the Sambusetti estate. The site is occupied by a two-story business building erected by the late Louis Sambucetti in 1912, at the instance of C. M. McDonald, a past president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

The northeast corner of Lindell boulevard and Theresa avenue, on the wedge created by the widening of Lindell, has withstood many attractive offers. It is occupied by a two-story building with a frontage of 50 feet on Theresa and of 70 feet on both Lindell and Olive street, or a total frontage of 190 feet. The site dominates both Lindell boulevard and Olive street.

The 18-room residence at 3756 Lindell boulevard, with lot 40 by 213 feet, was recently purchased by Miss Elizabeth George, an attorney, with plans for a club for business and professional women. It was an asset of the Savings Trust Co., now in process of liquidation. W. J. Brooks, salesman for A. M. & F. J. Cornwell, Inc., effected the sale.

Olive Street Deal.

Abutting buildings at 3413-27 Olive street and at 3410-18 Locust street were recently purchased by E. A. Stanford of the City Janitor Supply and Brush Co., from the Hutchinson estate, through Cornet & Zeibig, Inc. Extending through the block, the property has a frontage of 103 feet on Olive and 100 feet on Locust. It is just east of the Locust street cut-off.

The Hornet Mantel Co. has leased quarters at 2833 Olive street and 314 North Euclid avenue, in the same building, through the C. M. McDonald Real Estate Co.

This section has displayed renewed buoyancy since the Canada Dry Bottling Co. of St. Louis leased extensive quarters at 3029 Olive street for a modern plant on a comprehensive scale. Remodeled and equipped at a reported cost of $100,000, the building has a frontage on Olive of 168 feet by a depth of 148. It is owned by a client of Cornet & Zeibig, Inc., which negotiated the lease.

SHOPS BUILDING FOR MARYLAND AT KINGSHIGHWAY

There will be a circular drive around the building, with parking space in the rear, reserved for the exclusive use of the clientele of the tenants.

The present project was inspired by the success of the Chase Shops and Office Building, a three-story fireproof structure at the southwest corner of Maryland avenue and York drive. The new building will be similar in design to the Chase Building.

Erected by Ulman, the Chase Building was purchased in March, 1936 by O. R. Burkhart, president of the Burkart Manufacturing Co., for $235,000, as indicated from the revenue stamps on the warranty deed, through the Henry R. Weisels Co. It occupies a lot with a frontage of 160 feet on Maryland avenue and of 94 feet 10 inches on York.

The sites of both projects are just east of the Park Plaza Hotel, built for Sam Koplar. They are also in the same city block with the Chase Hotel at the northeast corner of Lindell boulevard and Kingshighway, and the Chester and Chase apartments adjoining on Lindell, eight-story buildings, erected by Ulman in 1922. Ulman disposed of his interest in these buildings a number of years ago.

WEBSTER GROVES HOME BOUGHT BY LOUIS H. KRONIG

Methudy Heads Sales Staff.

Eugene R. Methudy has joined Meier, Comfort, Bergs and Judge Real Estate Co. as manager of its sales and loan departments. He has been active in the real estate field in St. Louis County for a number of years, specializing in the sale of Clayton business properties.

NOW! A NEW LOAN PLAN

Pick your own monthly repayment

You can borrow from $20 to $300 without asking others to sign with you. Decide on the amount of cash you need, then choose the payment which suits your budget. You may repay in 2 to 20 months, as your income permits. Below is a table showing sample repayment schedules. Other amounts and other plans are available. Note how you may repay your loan in a very few months to keep the cost to a minimum. Note, also, what small payments can be made if you wish.

Amounts of monthly payments, including all charges for the following periods.

Cash You Get	2 mos.	4 mos.	6 mos.	8 mos.	10 mos.	12 mos.	16 mos.	20 mos.
$50	$25.94	$13.29	$ 9.08	$ 6.97	$ 5.71	$ 4.87
100	51.88	26.58	18.15	13.95	11.43	9.75	$ 7.66	$ 6.41
150	77.82	39.87	27.23	20.92	17.14	14.62	11.49	9.62
200	103.77	53.16	36.31	27.89	22.85	19.50	15.32	12.83
300	155.65	79.75	54.46	41.84	34.28	29.25	22.98	19.24

This table is based on prompt repayment. Larger payments can be made at any time or in advance of the due date to reduce the cost. Tardiness will increase the cost of the final payment. Payments are calculated at Household's rate of 2½% per month on unpaid balances.

Rebekah West Is Married to Dickson Pierce

Mid-day Ceremony and Reception at Westmoreland Place Home of Bride's Parents.

ATTIRED in the satin and rose point lace wedding gown of her mother, for whom she was named, Miss Rebekah Semple West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Tarwater West, was married at her parents' home, 48 Westmoreland place, at noon yesterday, to Dickson Walsh Pierce.

The white drawing room, its windows draped in deep red, was candle-lit and decorated with all white flowers. A flower altar, built at the fireplace at the east end, was flanked to the side walls by tall vases of white larkspur set between seven-branched candle standards, the entire base covered by lemon foliage and woodwardia fern. Dozens of Easter lilies filled the fireplace itself, and before it stood the prie dieu on which the couple knelt for the blessing.

The balustrade of the stairway down which the bridal party walked was concealed under greenery, and a great cluster of larkspur adorned the newel post. The bride and her father, who gave her in marriage, were preceded by Mrs. Clinton Levering Whittemore Jr., her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. Landon Thorne of Bayside, L. I., was Mr. Pierce's best man.

Only the families, grouped informally about the room, witnessed the ceremony. Mrs. West wore a street-length model of gray crepe, the entire gown shirred horizontally, and gray accessories. To her V neck bodice she fastened a cluster of white orchids. Her hat, a small gray hairbraid turban, was banded in white violets and trimmed with gray veiling. Nearby stood Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murray Pierce, the bridegroom's parents, Mrs. Pierce in royal blue sheer, with a matching picture hat crowned with water lilies, and a white orchid corsage.

The bride's gown, the entire bodice and short sleeves of old English rose point, was ivory satin from the fitted empire waist line to the long, flaring train held out by narrow chiffon dust ruffles. An elaborate rose point shawl, point inverted, was set on to cover the train. Her simple tulle veil was arranged from a bandeau of pearls. She carried lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Whittemore wore powder blue lace patterned in horizontal bands, made with short sleeves, wide at the shoulder, square neck drawn down with front shirring and a long full skirt. A narrow sash of matching blue velvet was tied into streamers in back. With her gown she wore a broad brimmed blue hairbraid hat banded in lace. Her flowers were African daisies in tones of yellow and orange.

After the service, read by the Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor, additional friends arrived for an informal reception and buffet luncheon. White china bowls were filled with gardenias and valley lilies to decorate the buffet table, and the wedding cake was surrounded by gardenias.

Small tables were set up on the terrace and in the high-walled gardens at the back of the house.

After a wedding trip Mr. Pierce and his bride will occupy Mr. and Mrs. West's home during the absence of the West family in Santa Barbara, Cal., where they will be at the Santa Barbara Biltmore for the summer. They plan to leave here about June 24.

Out-of-town guests for the ceremony included Mrs. John Hylan Heminway of New York, the former Miss Jane Johnson, in whose wedding yesterday's bride was maid of honor; Mr. and Mrs. George X. McLanahan, also of New York; Alexander Byers of Pittsburgh and Miss Kate Shinkle of Cincinnati.

The bride attended John Burroughs School and was graduated from Fermata School, Aiken, S. C. She made her debut at the St. Louis Country Club a few seasons ago. She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. West and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Semple of Minneapolis. Mr. Pierce is an alumnus of Country Day School and of Yale. His clubs include the St. Louis Country and Racquet.

Dinner Party For St. Louisans In New York

Mrs. Edward J. Walsh Sails For English Garden Tour —Many in East for World's Fair.

NEW YORK, June 10.

TODAY, when King George and Queen Elizabeth were viewing the fair, which is now blooming with phlox, petunias and heliotrope, a group of 30 Americans were sailing for England on the Georgic for a two-week tour of English gardens. The tour is sponsored by the Garden Club of America. Mrs. Edward J. Walsh of St. Louis is among those who will spend five days in London, at Dorchester House, while visiting Hampton Court Palace and various private gardens such as that of the Dean of Westminster Abbey—which is not open to the public—and the Kew and Chelsea gardens. After leaving London, the tour will take them to Surrey, Kent and Sussex, where they will see famous private estates such as Sutton Place, the home of the Duke of Sutherland in Surrey, Sir Thomas Colyer-Fergusson's Ightham Mote in Kent, and Lord Glendyne's Herontye, in Sussex.

At the conclusion of the garden tour, Mrs. Walsh will take a short motor trip through the English countryside, before returning home about July 15. Mrs. Robert Corley and Mrs. Charles Lamy, Mrs. Walsh's daughters, who came East with her Tuesday, and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Walsh Jr., were all at the pier to see her off when the Georgic sailed today. Mrs. Corley and Mrs. Lamy are leaving tonight for Washington where they will visit their aunt and uncle, Col. and Mrs. Ned Rehkopf, before returning to St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Walsh Jr., who have been here all week, and spending a good deal of their time at the fair, will leave the Biltmore tonight for St. Louis.

One of the coolest spots in town these warm nights is the Pierre Roof, 42 floors up and surrounded with balconies overlooking Central Park, the East and Hudson rivers, Radio City and the distant trylon, over at the fair. Up here, where the blue walls are trimmed in chalk white, Miss Edwina Crunden, daughter of Mrs. Gerard H. Cox of New York and Walter Crunden of St. Louis, gave a dinner last Saturday, after driving back from Philadelphia, where she attended the wedding of Miss Louise Vauclain and Joseph Pulitzer Jr. Among the guests at Miss Crunden's table, with its large centerpiece of pale roses and baby's breath, surrounded by miniature white porcelain French figures, were Miss Martha Love, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Love; William Julius Polk Jr. and Max Putzel, all just returned from the wedding; Edmond Thomas, a former St. Louisan now living in New York, and Fitzhugh Armstrong, the landscape architect.

Miss Clarissa Dana of Cincinnati and her brother, Marshall Dana, were at a table adjoining Miss Crunden's with a large party of friends. Miss Clarissa Dana has often visited Miss Judith Gamble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gamble of St. Louis, and will be maid of honor at Miss Gamble's wedding to Arthur Shepley Jr., June 30. The Danas have been going to Biddeford Pool, Me., for many years and they are well known to the St. Louisans who spend their summers there.

After spending the week end at the St. Regis, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Rauh went to Philadelphia Tuesday for their daughter Jean's graduation from Bryn Mawr on June 7. While in New York, the Rauhs were frequent visitors at the fair, and Thursday, the day they arrived here, they were guests of honor at a dinner given at the Terrace Club by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ittleson, former St. Louisans who have lived in New York for many years and have an apartment at Hampshire House, Central Park South. The Terrace Club, the smart private club at the fair, is right next to Billy Rose's Aquacade and on Fountain Lake. Here tables overlooking the water and the open air dance floor, afford one of the vantage spots for watching the fireworks displayed every night out on the water.

Mrs. Clarence L. Arnold of Pasadena, Cal., the former Ellanore Scott, daughter of Mrs. Charles Wiggins of St. Louis, returned to St. Louis Tuesday, after a brief stay at the Biltmore. She was in Boston last week, visiting her son, John Van Riper, and while there lunched with Mrs. Charles Falvey, the former Margaret Wright of St. Louis and Mrs. Bruce Pirnie of Concord, the former Helen Leroy Lane of St. Louis. John Van Riper sailed from New York Friday on the Staatendam for a tour of the Scandinavian countries, with a group of Massachusetts Institute of Technology students. At

New England Shore Abounds in These—Antiques and Sea Food Likewise Famous.

The New England shore line is coming in for its share of attention, what with thousands of travelers from all parts of the country journeying East for the World's Fair.

Cape Cod, land of ancient colonial villages, antiques, beaches and famed New England sea food is a travel attraction for many who have never visited it.

From Buzzards Bay to the artists' colony at Provincetown far on the end of the Cape, progress along this colorful peninsula is a succession of delightful scenes. Tree-shaded streets with their typical "Cape Cod Cottages" two and three hundred years old are found in the small seashore towns, and farmhouses, set in flowering walks, dot the rural horizon. Lighthouses rising on lonely points, and wind-swept sand dunes, delight artists and visitors alike along the shores of bays and ocean.

The Cape offers sailing in her bays which are sheltered from the open ocean but always windy, providing thrilling sport. A fertile topsoil provides fine greens for golf courses which abound on the Cape, and swimming is possible in the clear waters of Vineyard Sound, Nantucket Sound and Cape Cod Bay. For residents of the South and West, it is worth the whole trip to Cape Cod to eat some of the famous lobster dishes made from the Cape lobsters—which are unlike any found in waters to the north.

Nantucket, one of the most picturesque New England spots, had perhaps a worse time during the American Revolution than any other part of the country. Far out at sea off the Massachusetts coast, she was ably blockaded by the British Navy, and supplies, run through the blockade from the mainland, became so scarce that many inhabitants starved or froze to death. Her fishing and whaling industries, due to the blockade of her markets, were at a standstill.

A striking feature of the homes of old Nantucket Island is the "Widow's Walk" which surrounds the chimney, and often the whole roof of these old houses. Here the wives of the sailors and captains of the whaling ships which put out of Nantucket in the days of her greatness used to walk, high above the breakers, to watch for the sails of their husband's ships returning.

FIVE MILLION FAIR VISITORS

Capacity crowds have been visiting the New York World's Fair, according to a check made in all the fields from transportation to food and health. The million mark has already been passed by some and in a number of cases it has been necessary to speed up various shows, to keep traffic moving faster and to improve accommodations in order to care for the visitors. As the Fair passed the five million mark exhibitors said that Sunday was a record day in most cases. The theme exhibit in the Perisphere was viewed by 56,000 on Sunday. It was expected that the million mark for this exhibit would be reached by Tuesday.

CALIFORNIA MISSION BEING RESTORED AT SANTA BARBARA

Evidence of an Indian barracks building perhaps 550 feet long, as a part of the La Purisima Mission, undergoing restoration near Santa Barbara, Cal., was reported today to the National Park Service regional office of the Interior Department.

The site of the old building, in use when the mission was in its heyday 125 years ago, was located when CCC boys were digging a trench for a power cable. Tops of the foundations ranged from 20 to 33 inches below the present grade, with the average thickness of foundation walls about 27 inches. Roof tiles were found in layers just where they had fallen when the barracks roof collapsed many years ago.

Numerous artifacts were found near the one-time floor level, including such articles as iron hinges, locks, keys, knives, axes, broken crockery and other items. The building contained two rows of rooms running north and south. No definite plans are under way for the restoration of the barracks, but the site will be marked and protected.

Another recent discovery is that of a barbecue pit used by Franciscan Fathers. The pit is 12 feet in diameter and 48 inches deep, sufficiently large for two steers. Black layers under the rocks were formed by grease and juices of meat cooked over 100 years ago.

La Purisima Mission has been in the course of restoration since 1935. Restoration of the main buildings is practically completed. The mission is the center of interest in the La Purisima State Historical Monument established to preserve an area important in early California history.

NEW FAST SLEEPER SERVICE ON WABASH TO CALIFORNIA

Reduction in running time of through sleeper service on the Wabash Pacific Coast Limited from St. Louis to San Francisco was recently announced by T. M. Hayes, passenger traffic manager of the Wabash Railway. This train which leaves St. Louis at 1:58 p. m. now operates on a 57-hour and 32-minute schedule, said to be 43 minutes faster than any other through service between these two points.

The Wabash sleeper is carried on the Union Pacific from Kansas City to Denver, arriving at Denver at 7:50 a. m. From Denver the train operates on the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific, arriving at San Francisco at 9:30 p. m. the following day.

Optical Phenomena.

Optical phenomenon is employed to heighten the color effects at the New York World's Fair. Thus, the entrance into the golden zone will be painted blue-violet. As visitors emerge from the entrance, their eyes are "fatigued," for blue-violet and its complimentary color, yellow, will appear even more brilliant than under normal circumstances.

The Chapter in Your Life entitled
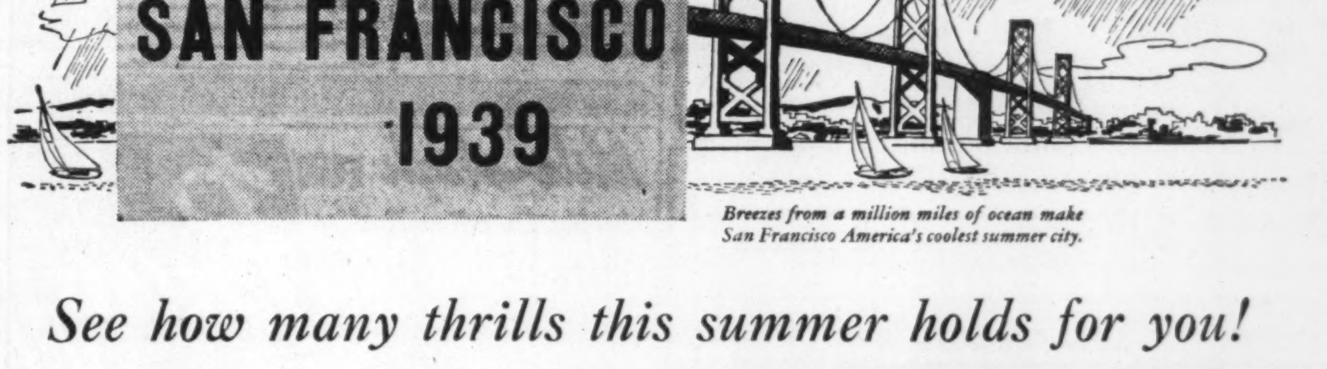
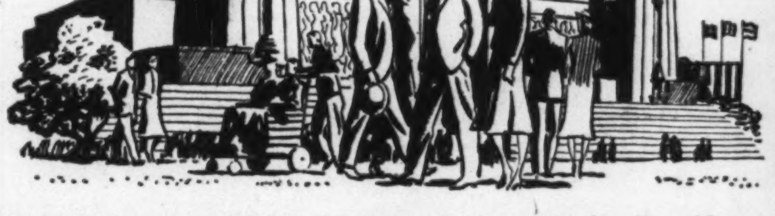
SAN FRANCISCO
1939



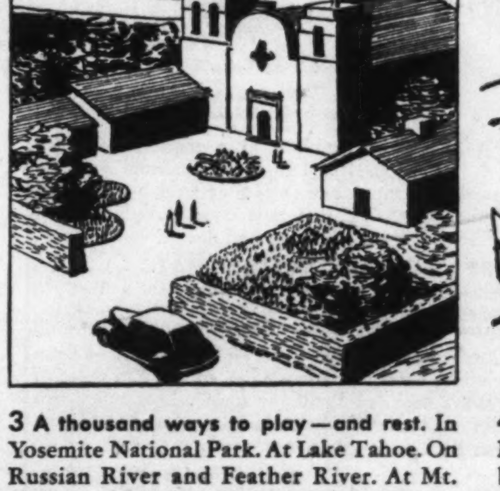
Breezes from a million miles of ocean make San Francisco America's coolest summer city.

See how many thrills this summer holds for you!

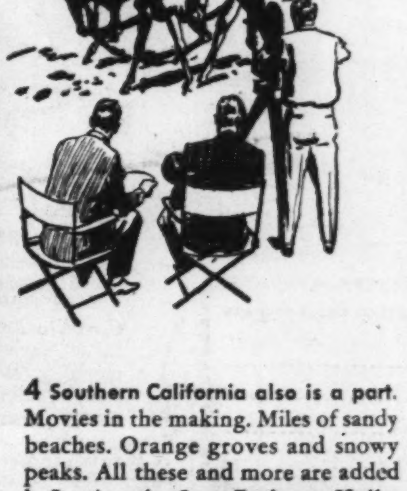


1 The world's most beautiful World's Fair on Treasure Island in the middle of great San Francisco Bay. A never-to-be-forgotten pageant that brings Hawaii, Japan, China, the Philippines . . . Bali, Java, Australia—many another far Pacific country here to you! Countless exhibits from all the Americas. Endless events. Matchless fun.

2 San Francisco's cool, fascinating summer days. Days and nights in famed Golden Gate Park, in Chinatown and on the storied waterfront . . . Riding steep-hill-climbing cable cars. Winging over the world's two highest, longest bridges: to giant, age-old Redwoods, and dozens of other nearby wonders of America's favorite vacationland.



3 A thousand ways to play—and rest. In Yosemite National Park. At Lake Tahoe. On Russian River and Feather River. At Mt. Shasta and Mt. Lassen. On Monterey Bay—at sea-side Santa Cruz, Del Monte, Monterey and Carmel, in the Spanish Mission country.



4 Southern California also is a part. Movies in the making. Miles of sandy beaches. Orange groves and snowy peaks. All these and more are added by Los Angeles, Santa Barbara . . . Hollywood—a day from San Francisco.

TWO WEEKS ARE ENOUGH. COSTS ARE REALLY LOW.

Come quickly by low-fare, air-conditioned train or plane, or over smooth, uncrowded highways. Hotel rates here are from $2.50 minimum, $3.50 average, $6 de luxe, for two people. Average cost for meals (reported by visitors): 40 cents for breakfast, 60 cents for lunch, $1 for a celebrated, full course dinner. And all other costs are moderate.

HOLLAND-AMERICAN LINE ACQUIRES RED STAR SHIPS

According to a cable received from the Rotterdam headquarters, the Holland-American Line has recently acquired the liners Westernland and Pennland together with the good will and the name of the Red Star Line.

Both the Westernland and the Pennland will continue to operate on a fortnightly schedule between New York and Antwerp with a call at Southampton and will carry, as heretofore, tourist class only. In order to provide a weekly express cargo service between the two ports, Holland-American Line freight steamers will sail alternately with the Westernland and the Pennland. Three freight ships of the Bernstein Line have been withdrawn from service. The replacing freight liners "Bilderdyk" and "Blommersdyk" will sail from Antwerp June 3 and from New York June 10.

YEAR-ROUND SERVICE

Air-conditioned Pullman bedroom cars are to be in year-round service on the Northern Pacific's transcontinental train, according to a recent announcement. The "North Coast Limited" also carries standard Pullmans, coaches, diner and observation cars which are air-conditioned and operates between Chicago, the Twin Cities and the Northern Pacific coast.

LOW RATE STEAMSHIP FARE PERIOD EXTENDED

A new extension of the period of low-rate round trip fares to Europe on sailings from the United States and Canadian Atlantic ports to Europe will allow a period of 10 weeks instead of the previous six weeks. Excursion rates are to become effective on Aug. 7 instead of Labor Day, Sept. 4, as originally scheduled, and will continue until Oct. 15. The fares, based on one and one-half times the one-way fares in tourist and third class, afforded a savings of approximately 25 per cent.

Tickets issued at these rates allow a stay of 28 days abroad from the date of arrival of the ship at its terminal port, not counting the day of arrival and departure. According to H. P. Borer, general passenger manager of the Cunard White Star Line, there has been a growing demand for accommodations during this reduced rate period. With the time extension it is expected that many more travelers will be able to take advantage of the rates.

Ancient Razors.

GRAY HAIR at MY age?
Certainly Not, I can't afford it!
CANUTE WATER solves my problem

If you have gray hair, simply wet it with Canute Water and allow to dry. A few applications, (all in one day, if desired) completely re-colors it . . . similar to its former natural shade. Attention only once a month will keep it that way.

Curl your hair or get a permanent, if you wish . . . there's no interference. Neither will sunshine, salt-water or shampooing disturb the color. Your hair remains clean and natural to the touch and looks natural in any light.

SAFE!
No Skin Test Needed
Canute Water is pure, safe, colorless and crystal-clear. It has a remarkable record of 25 years without injury to a single person. It was also tested and proven perfectly harmless by a Noted Scientist in one of America's Greatest Universities.
No Other Product Can Make All These Claims
Is it any wonder that we sell more Canute Water than all other hair coloring preparations combined?

Mrs. Roosevelt's Own Comment

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 10.

THE President and I are looking forward to a different type of day tomorrow with Their Majesties following the numerous activities of the latter part of the week. The Sunday schedule calls for a church service here at Hyde Park, and another event which we hope the King and Queen will like—a "hot dog" picnic.

MRS. ROOSEVELT

In the course of a long life I have seen many important events in Washington, but, looking back today, I can't recall having seen a crowd such as lined the whole route between the Union Station and the White House when we drove through that avenue after the arrival of the royal pair in Washington. It was a gay and happy crowd in spite of sun and heat.

Nothing lovelier than the picture of the Capitol and the plaza could be imagined, and Their Majesties themselves made such a gracious impression, as they drove back with us through the crowds, that you could feel the enthusiasm growing. Cheers greeted them, not only all the way to the White House, but everywhere that they appeared.

—O—O—

● I TRIED to tell the Queen something about the various buildings which we passed, but the noise was so deafening that I finally gave it up and let her devote herself to greeting the crowds. She carried a parasol, not being accustomed to our hot sunshine, and I think the children and grown people lining the road and wearing no hats, must have seemed to her very brave!

—O—O—

Luncheon was a very quiet meal with just the guests in the house and our own family, and for once my boys were subdued to such a degree that the President noticed it, and remarked to the Queen that it was rare when something did not bring about a vociferous argument in our family.

—O—O—

● THE SCHEDULE for a trip of this kind is so carefully arranged that very little time is left to be alone, or to do any personal writing. After driving about in the afternoon and attending the garden party at the British Embassy, the King, who might have liked to swim, was obliged to devote himself to what we would term "the mail." I imagine that any head of state must sign his name to so many documents, whether he is at home or abroad, that a certain amount of time at a desk is part of the daily routine.

—O—O—

As we drove about the city, the crowds who waited in all the streets were not along the road for part of the time, at least, and this gave the whole party an opportunity to enjoy the shade and green of Rock Creek Park without the necessity of watching to respond to gestures of welcome at every turn.

—O—O—

● IT WAS INTERESTING to me to find how understanding and sympathetic was the Queen's attitude toward the social problems faced today by everyone. It is quite evident that no nation is without these problems and that their solution is of world-wide interest. These sovereigns are young, and though the weight of responsibility matures people early, still one does not always find in sovereigns such ability or even desire to comprehend the problems which confront so many people in every country today, and which must be solved before we can feel that the average man and woman can have security and liberty.

—O—O—

I have never seen the state dining room at the White House or the table look lovelier than they did for the dinner in honor of Their Majesties. The masses of pale white orchids with purple hearts, mixed with lilies-of-the-valley, baby's breath and sprays of smaller orchids, were used in decoration. The ladies wore their prettiest gowns and every gentleman who had a decoration put it on. It was a colorful sight and Her Majesty looked the part of the fairy queen which most children dream about.

—O—O—

● THE YOUNG PEOPLE in the Cabinet group have been given the opportunity to meet Their Majesties. Only one very young member, Diana Hopkins, had not had this opportunity, and I told the Queen that I thought Diana envisioned her with a crown and sceptre. With true understanding, she responded that perhaps the child would be more satisfied if she saw her dressed for dinner, as that might be more like her dream, so this was arranged.

At the end of my short press conference, Their Majesties were kind enough to meet the ladies of the press and walked down through the long aisle which they formed on either side of the corridor, bidding them good morning.

THE AMERICAN WAY

By Inez Robb

WASHINGTON, June 10.

IN the emotional turmoil resulting from his meeting Queen Elizabeth, Representative Sirovich so far forgot his debt to the Democratic party and his pledge to the sanctity of the American home as to commit what is at best lese majeste in England and probable treason in America.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful," gasped the smitten Sirovich, "if Her Majesty and President Roosevelt were a team! She has the same infectious, wonderful smile as the President."

Just what are Representative Sirovich's plans for His Majesty and Mrs. Roosevelt no one thought to ask.

—O—O—

TO SENATOR ROBERT R. REYNOLDS (Dem.), North Carolina, the King and Queen were "charming"—but they're not registered voters in his home state, so he didn't attend the White House musicale. Reynolds explained that "two North Carolinians" and their wives were in Washington, and he had dinner with them, adding jokingly:

"My friends from North Carolina can vote."

—O—O—

SEVERAL ORNAMENTS of the lower House shattered all protocol by speaking to the King before he spoke to them. Congressman John J. Cochran of St. Louis, in blue coat and white flannels, set an example of good manners with his respectful inclination before the King and his deep, gallant bow over the Queen's hand.

KING and QUEEN Recapture WASHINGTON

George VI Is the Important Historical Figure, but Queen Elizabeth Steals the Show

By Richard L. Stokes

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 10.

THE great, great, great, great-grandson of George III, whose bag and baggage were tossed out of the United States a little more than 150 years ago, returned to the capital of his rebel subjects and recaptured the town, amid tumultuous scenes of welcome. And while the King was undoubtedly the most important figure in this politically and historically significant visit, it was his Queen who took first place in the eyes of the thousands of pushing Americans who swarmed into the city and tonight—with the King and Queen guests at Hyde Park—she was the subject of conversation in the households of all Washington.

Comments ranged from the feminine exclamation of one word: "Delectable," to the professional appraisal of Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota who said: "I think she would make a mighty good politician."

The Queen is about 5 feet 4 inches tall, slender and graceful. A cloud of dark hair contrasted with blue eyes and the fabulous peaches and cream complexion. The facial expression was singularly alert, vivid and winsome; the figure's bearing was eager and vigorous; the features are exquisitely carved. She seemed to possess unshakable poise, and charm to a degree of magic.

The King, three or four inches taller than she, was on the contrary prone to nervousness. His brother, the Duke of Windsor, has a habit of twitching his necktie. King George is afflicted with restless hands, and on occasion was seen to bite his fingernails. His eyelids already show beginnings of the puffiness characteristic of the House of Windsor—formerly the dynasty of Hanover. The mouth is taut, the chin tense. The somewhat narrow forehead is contorted with what appears to be some fixed inner uncertainty and strain. But the general effect is that of a modest, serious, friendly and wholesome young man.

Someone had perhaps warned the King that the Red Coat of Field Marshal might arouse unpleasant reflections in Washington, which was sacked nearly 130 years ago by British soldiers. At any rate, he wore the inoffensive uniform of an Admiral, laden with pounds of gold braid and orders, and surmounted by a fore-and-aft hat with plumes. The Queen, by donning a frock of sheer gray lavender, stole a march on Mrs. Roosevelt. They were both, on meeting, to wear woolen dresses made of materials supplied to the Queen by American manufacturers, and to the First Lady by British weavers. Mrs. Roosevelt alone held to the bargain.

HISTORY will appraise the political significance of the first handshake which, in the presidential room at the Union Station, was exchanged between the rulers of the two great Anglo-Saxon empires. The account is that Secretary Hull began with a sonorous, "Mr. President, I have the honor to present—" and that Mr. Roosevelt, his famous smile turned on at full voltage, broke in with the informal phrase: "Well, at last I greet you." To which the King replied: "Mr. President, it is indeed a pleasure for Her Majesty and me to meet you." Noteworthy was the stature by which the President and his even taller wife towered above the royal couple. The rumor is that after the party had entered their automobiles, and while a military salute of 21 guns was booming, the monarch turned to the President and said: "Call me George, Mr. President."

Characteristic of "these unpredictable Roosevelts" was the fact that Mrs. Roosevelt was present not only as mistress of the White House, but as a columnist reporting the event to scores of thousands of readers. In the reception party also was her son, Elliott, who had been advertised in broadcasting journals as the only radio commentator in a position to describe the royal visit "from the inside."

According to some female eyes, the Queen had armored her complexion against the sun with a coat of liquid powder. Anyway, she bore a parasol, to the discontent of spectators above the street level, from whom her features were hidden. She and Mrs. Roosevelt took turns in holding the sunshade during the drive to the White House.

Next on the agenda was a reception in the east room of the White House, at which the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, presented the chiefs of diplomatic missions and their wives to the King, and Lady Lindsay presented them to the Queen. When these ceremonies were finished, the King hastened to his apartment on the second floor of the White House and changed his sultry uniform for a lightweight blue suit. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt then entertained the sovereigns and a few of their retinue at luncheon, including Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada. Present also were Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt and Mr. and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.

Next the visitors were whirled off with President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt for an hour's motor sightseeing trip through Potomac and Rock Creek Parks, including the Lincoln Memorial. At his press conference on Friday the President said that he got mentally lost in Rock Creek Park, and that he had no idea it contained so many roadways. He told the King, he said, that Washington is the only capitol in the world specifically built for that purpose, though the new capital of Australia, Canberra, is now in process of construction. "They are very, very delightful people," added the President in compliment to his guests.

After the sovereigns had returned to the White House for another change of costume, there followed the garden party for 1400 guests at the British Embassy which, in Sir Ronald Lindsay's famous phrase, was "like heaven," in that "some were chosen and many left." This function had excited furious heartburnings in official and social Washington, threatened to disrupt senatorial and congressional households and created all in all an outburst of caste rivalry not a little scandalous in a democratic capital.

Among sidelights recounted after the fete were that Vice-President "Cactus Jack" Garner slapped His Majesty on the back, and that an elderly gentleman was presented to the King as "Senator Smith of South Carolina," whereupon the Monarch promptly asked: "Cotton Ed Smith?" Later, the statesman went about proudly boasting: "I tell you, that nickname has gone around the world."

SOME strange diplomatic mix-ups occurred. Japanese Ambassador Horinouchi and Chinese Ambassador Hu Shi found themselves stationed side by side. The same occurred with Soviet Ambassador Oumanski and Ambassador de Cardenas of Loyalist Spain. The Italian Ambassador was compelled to endure the presence on equal terms of the Minister from Albania, and Herr Hans Thomsen, Charge d'Affaires of the German Embassy, rubbed shoulders with Vladimir Hurban, still recognized as Minister from Czecho-Slovakia.

It was noted that although it is the English custom for the King to go first, George permitted the Queen to precede him on the portico of the Embassy, and that Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt was conspicuous among the few American who, on being presented to Their Majesties, performed a curtsy to each. The State Department's protocol for this event prescribed "formal dress," and most of the men complied. Among the few who defied convention and made themselves comfortable in flannels were Senators Vandenberg of Michigan, Davis of Pennsylvania and Barbour of New Jersey. Other Senators whose starched collars wilted to limp bands which clung damply about their necks observed with emotion that the King had donned a soft collar with his afternoon tails. Americans garbed rigorously in British garden party style included J. P. Morgan and James Roosevelt.

As dusk fell, there was a spatter of drops of rain and a rainbow arched across the Southeastern sky. Since King George was trained as a sailor, the adage was passed about: "Rainbow at night—sailor's delight."

Whether intentionally or not, the state dinner, reception and musicale at the White House Thursday night enabled Mrs. Roosevelt to deliver a final and crashing broadside in her battle with the Daughters of the American Revolution over their recent refusal to permit Marian Anderson, Negro contralto, to sing at Constitution Hall in this city. Who but Miss Anderson herself was invited to sing before the King and Queen and afterwards to be presented to them? Mrs. Roosevelt designed a program to exhibit the "three distinct living idioms" of American music—folk, popular and art. The first was represented by Miss Anderson and Alan Lomax, singer of cowboy ballads; the second by Kate Smith, exponent of radio swing, and the third by Lawrence Tibbett, Metropolitan Opera baritone. In addition, there were choruses to offer spirituals and hillbilly lyrics.

The dinner, one of the most lavish affairs ever given at the White House, was attended by 78 guests besides the royal visitors and their hosts, and was grouped about the great horseshoe table in the walnut-panelled State dining room. The snowy linen, bordered with satin, was hand woven, and the service was the special Roosevelt china, valued at $9000, which was designed by the President.

Queen Elizabeth was pronounced doubly beautiful with her coronet of diamonds and rubies and long pendant earrings to match, and her gown of white tulle, worked with golden dots. The bouffant skirt was made in three tiers, and a necklace and frock of white net, with lace ruffles flaring from the knees. The guests were confined to members of the royal party, high Government officials, including members of the Cabinet and their wives, members of the Roosevelt family and of the President's personal staff, and high ranking officers of army and navy. The President and King exchanged toasts in champagne.

The menu, described as all-American was in six courses. It consisted of clam cocktails, calf's head soup terrapin, cornbread, boned capon, cranberry sauce, peas, buttered beets, sweet potato cones, frozen cheese and cress salad, maple and almond ice cream, white pound cake and coffee.

After dinner the ladies adjourned to the Green Room, where they had an opportunity to chat with the Queen, while the men lingered over their coffee and conversed with the King. Then about 250 additional guests arrived for the reception and musicale, held in the famous East Room, with its blazing crystal chandeliers.

After the guests had departed soon after midnight, the President and the King had their first opportunity for a cozy and intimate chat, as they sat smoking for more than half an hour in the oval study room. The Queen and Mrs. Roosevelt likewise talked together in the latter's sitting room on the second floor. Soon after 1 a. m. the sovereigns retired, to sleep peacefully in a structure to which English soldiers set fire during the War of 1812.

Their Majesties rose at 9 a. m. yesterday, and a breakfast of fruit juice, bacon, eggs, toast and coffee was served in the Queen's reception room by servants of the royal household who had been installed in the White House for this visit. They motored to the British Embassy, greeted members of the British colony living in this country, including many war veterans, and then hastened to the Capitol at 11 o'clock to be received by the members of the Senate and House. Here the royal couple passed through the grinding ordeal of delivering an individual greeting, smile and handshake to upwards of 500 legislators, a feat which was accomplished in 27 minutes.

There were no women present in the rotunda except Senator Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas and three of the four feminine members of the House. Congressional wives and female guests had to content themselves with seats outdoors, on the Capitol plaza. As the Queen, after the ceremony, came floating down the stairway with her peculiar grace of movement, one woman exclaimed, "Nobody in Hollywood can walk like that."

—o-o—

EVENTS that crowded thick and fast during the rest of the day included a visit to the Washington Navy Yard, Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Fort Hunt, Va.; luncheon and a sail to Mount Vernon on the U. S. Potomac, as guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and a stop before the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery, where the King deposited a wreath. A historic and conclusive chapter to the American Revolution was written at Mount Vernon, where the King in silence laid a wreath on the tomb of George Washington, once ordered hanged by another George of England as "a rebel and a traitor."

The King and Queen were pronounced amazingly informed about American social and economic problems by a group of New Dealers and others who were attending a tea between 4:30 and 6 p. m. at the White House.

Among those present were Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Hopkins and Secretary of Labor Perkins; Stewart McDonald, former St. Louisan and Federal Housing Administrator; Nathan Straus, Chief of the United States Housing authority; Col. Francis Harrington, WPA Administrator; Elmer Andrews, Wage Administrator; Jesse H. Jones, Chief of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; John H. Fahey, head of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board; Aubrey Williams, head of the National Youth Administration; Will W. Alexander of the Farm Security Administration, and Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

Though even the State Department had prescribed informal dress for this occasion, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who arrived in a taxicab, wore a cutaway, striped trousers, silk hat and gray gloves. Over a cup of tea, Green chatted with the King about unemployment, declaring that business is picking up and job-getting along with it.

The visitors' final function was a dinner given last night by Their Majesties, at the British Embassy in honor of President and Mrs. Roosevelt. It was delayed half an hour because both hosts and principal guests were tardy in arriving. The Queen had changed from her familiar white to a Victorian picture frock of deep rose. On her dark brown hair glittered a diamond tiara. Mrs. Roosevelt was gowned in mauve and green chiffon. The group of 36 was strictly official, including Secretary of State and Mrs. Hull, Speaker and Mrs. Bankhead, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and the retiring British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay.

After the President and Mrs. Roosevelt took their leave at about 10:45, Their Majesties chatted for half an hour or so with members of the embassy staff, and then motored to the Union Station, still wearing the garb worn at dinner. Although no ceremonies were scheduled, a crowd estimated at 3000 gathered in and about the station.

Secretary and Mrs. Hull delivered Washington's official good-by, and then the train pulled out, with the King and Queen waving and smiling from the rear platform.

Lewis' Feelings Hurt

WASHINGTON, June 10.

ONE of the strangest reactions reported as to the British Embassy garden party concerns, of all possible men, John L. Lewis. According to his friends, the feelings of the president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations were actually and deeply hurt by his failure to receive one of Lady Lindsay's coveted "commands." So acute was the CIO chieftain's chagrin that he declined an invitation to meet the King and Queen at Mrs. Roosevelt's "New Deal" tea.

Meanwhile, much in evidence at the tea was William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Green turned up in a stiff shirt, a gates-ajar collar, a formal morning coat, striped trousers and a silk hat.

Top-Hat Journalism

WASHINGTON, June 10.

G. WARD PRICE, correspondent of the London Daily Mail, friend of Hitler and Mussolini and author of "I Know These Dictators," offered his American colleagues an object lesson in journalism in the grand style. He appeared in rigorous afternoon attire, including monocle and gray topper, and was attended by an "assistant correspondent" or "leg man" to you. It soon appeared that these properties were useful as well as ornamental. When the King appeared, a telescopic lens was screwed into the monocle and Ward's feverishly scribbled notes were tossed into the hat, which the assistant correspondent worshipfully carried.

THIS NEW YORK

By Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, June 10.

NEW YORK'S celebrated cynicism about its own World's Fair seems, to scramble a simile, to have evaporated with a loud bang. For months before it opened the local urban slickers were loud in their declarations of getting out of Manhattan before the city became inundated with provincials, or, at the very least, of never proposing to go to the show. Everything was going to be just too hideous, with rents up and hair down on every hand, and New York wasn't going to be fit for New Yorkers as long as this carnival lasted. With agreeable perverseness, however, Gotham has decided to take up its own biggest production of the year and have some fun at Flushing. It has discovered that some of the finest dining in the world can be accomplished there; that the most courteous staff of attendants of every sort—police, guides, concessionnaires and managers—ever heard of has been assembled for their pleasure, and that, in general, Grover Whalen has provided a swell place to roar and scream in of an evening. Not that everyone wants to holler and smash glass, but those as thinks falling in the fountains is fun will find a most agreeable staff on duty for the special purpose of pulling them out, and those who fancy themselves masters of the fashionable French language will discover waiter captains at the French Pavilion who will flatteringly converse with them in that idiom instead of crushing their feelings with their own excellent English. There are lunacies and amusements of every variety known to man, and while very little of the architecture on view will bear close scrutiny without acting as an esthetic emetic, the grounds are wonderfully handsome by night, what with lights, fountains, fireworks and all.

● THIS DEPARTMENT'S two favorite spots have turned out to be the Danish and French pavilions. Both are excellently managed mansions, under the supervision of their respective governments, and what one can do in the way of eating and drinking at either is a caution. The Danish house is, as might be expected, considerably the smaller of the two, but, while unpretentious, is one of the most courteously managed showrooms at the entire fair. Its restaurants are delightful wildernesses of hors d'oeuvres, and its tiny bar, presided over by a Dane, curiously named Omar, specializes in a pleasant blond beer and an aquavit that will blow the top of your head off. Quite a number of persons can be observed walking around the premises with the tops of their heads missing.

—O—O—

The French Pavilion's restaurants are just about gastronomic tops. The main terrace eating house features a simple and abbreviated menu, any single item of which is prepared to delight the palate of a Selmer Fougner or a Lois Long. The chaste simplicity of dinner there is in the classic tradition, and the cold boiled lobster, with sauce verte, is nothing short of dream food. After washing it down with a substantial mug of Bellows Armagnac, there is Billy Rose's Aquacade (alliterating pleasantly with the Danish aquavit), or Ed Hungerford's Railroads on Parade, or a hundred or two other agreeable ways of passing the evening. Perhaps you'll gather that this department has been sold on the fair.

● THE BACK-TO-AMERICA movement, so tangibly evident in films, politics, literature and other theoretically enlightened fields of endeavor, has, in its ultimate redaction, sifted through to the professional lads of the boulevards of Manhattan. Time was, in the Dan Moriarity and Mike Romanoff age, the early Ordovician era of speakeasies and Connie Bennett, when the town was awash with titles and single eyeglasses, and every third exquisite at the Plaza Grill or Club de Vingt was Baron Perhaps or Count on the Cuff. The Continental Europeans took over Manhattan the way the British have taken over Palm Beach. All the Hallroom Boys were Percivalo and Ferdinando, instead of straight Percy and Ferdy, and the tailcoats and top hats, which were their living, bore labels from Rio to Krakow and back, but never Roger Kent or Brooks Brothers. Now the vogue in Hallroom Boys has come back to the U. S. A., and the White Russians are fighting another last stand in the lobby of the St. Regis, the American citadel of St. Petersburg.

—O—O—

Not that the business of being Joe Charming (and Joe Mooch) is in abeyance. Far from it. It's New York's greatest industry, but it has gone native, and the professional bridge players, diners out, dancing escorts and first-night ornaments, whose stock in trade is bright talk, nice manners and attractive persons, now wear a union label and the line "Made in the U. S. A." Titles don't rate anything more than the blue-plate special nowadays, while the a la carte menu, with squab at $5 and asparagus at $3.50 a portion, is passed to the bright young men who toil not nor spin and have antecedents in Omaha, Houston or K. C. How this transition has been accomplished isn't immediately apparent, but the fact stands that there aren't more than 50 or 60 titles a day in Maury Paul's columns, an all-time low, and the only completely foreign possession from the Rio Grande to Canada is the English principality of Palm Beach. The Argentines and the Greeks, as far as the Gotham boulevards are concerned, have vanished, and shoppers in minor celebrities and charm are buying American. All very patriotic.

—O—O—

● AROUND THE TOWN: Thyra Samter Winslow remarked about a small-time girl who had achieved a social come-uppance in New York that she "came from a town so small they had to lay railroad tracks through it so she could live on the wrong side of them!"...Questioned as to whom she was describing, Thyra said, "Oh, about three-quarters of my friends" . . . Like the conductors on the New Haven, and Grover Whalen, one of the town's inveterate carnation wearers is Arthur Levy, the theater press agent, who has purchased his morning flower daily for 30 years at the Astor . . . Leonard MacBain, so long a vicar of Sherman Billingsley at the Stork, has changed to the Versailles...Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins is given to haunting Jack White's mansion of merriment at late hours and is the victim, of course, of low witticisms from White and Frankie Hyers as a result . . . One would think he got enough laughs out of Congress.

OVERNIGHT TRIP -:- -:- By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: Would it be improper for a young man and girl, who are engaged, to travel on the train, overnight, to visit his family?

Answer: Under the circumstances, it would in my opinion be quite all right. A train is particularly proper since every passenger on it is a deputy chaperon. In days gone by it would have been considered improper for two young people to travel together this way, but today propriety is rated less by impersonal rule than by actual behavior.

DEAR MRS. POST: Should the sharp edge of the knife be turned toward the plate, or away from it, when the place is set?

Answer: The sharp edge is turned toward the plate.

POOR FISH---On Which End of Line?

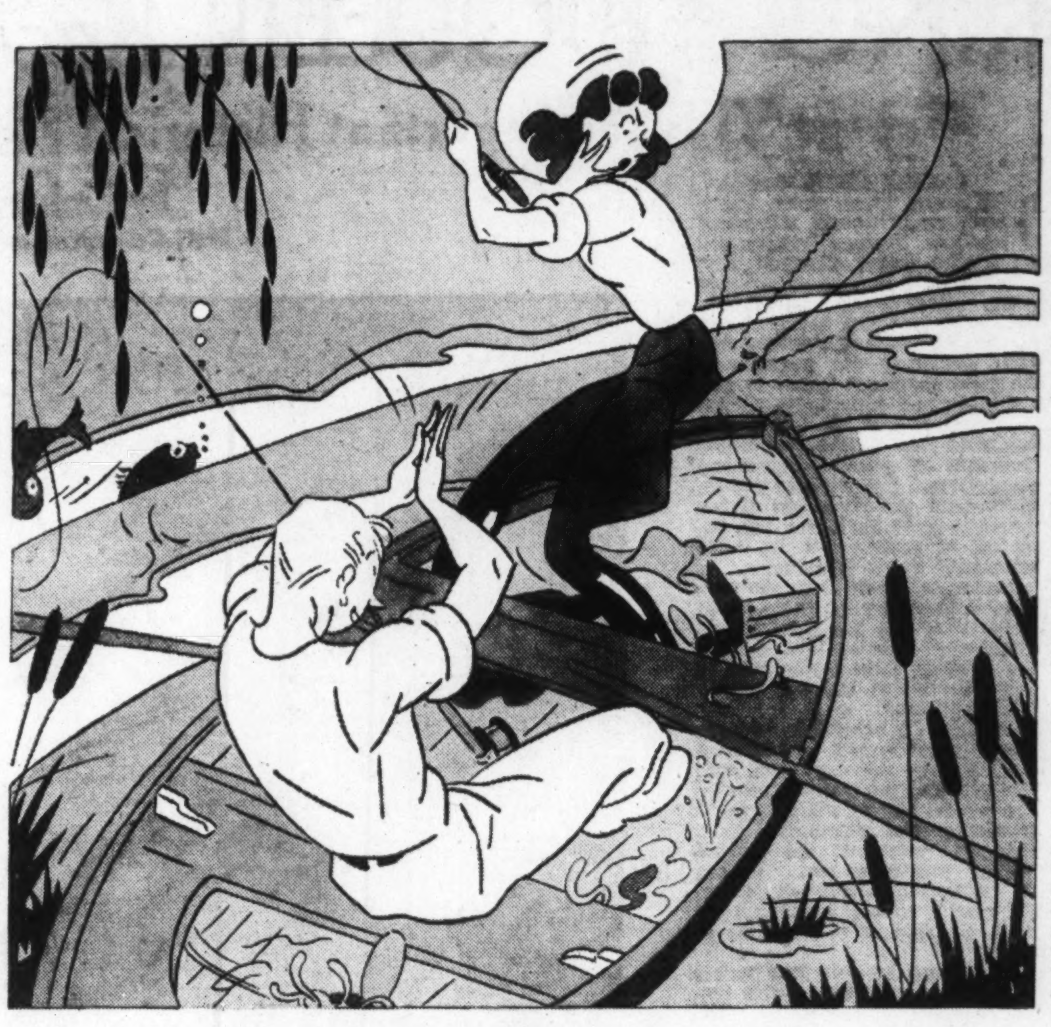
By Clarissa Start

AT a time of the year when seasons—straw hat, baseball, Tom Collins and shadowproof slip—are popping up right and left like dandelions in the tall grass, it is significant that one season is of superior and shaking importance to man, woman and worm. It is the fishing season, as you doubtlessly guessed with a knowing leer, and the Izaac Waltons among you are even now rending the air with much swishing of lines, flies and a rattling of casting rods. In no time you will be hurling yourself in cars, bristling with bamboo sticks, yelping nervously as you swing your arms in imaginative gestures, tugging fiercely at an imaginative bass, and hurrying to lakes, rivers and other scenes of fin fun. All of which makes us practically reel since we must admit we are among the sourpusses who refuse to succumb hook, line and sinker to the pole and pool propaganda, and we are here to warn all women and those men who'll put down The Compleat Angler long enough to listen that fishing is not what the vacation leaflets paint it.

Moreover, we know whereof we sneer, for we have weighed the sport of fishing and found it wanting in all the qualities that go to make good, clean fun or any kind of fun. Our research was done at one of those colorful sparkling Ozark lakes, which they tell us are all a-squirm with fish, plump, unsuspecting fish which have not as yet gone over the dam, but are lying, mouth open, waiting for some stealthy stalker to drop worms and a death warrant down to them. Not that they were totally wrong, there were fish in the lake. We saw them, on the hooks of other vacationists and natives whose boats dot the lake before the opening of the Big Season, in search of legal perch, blue gill and catfish. We saw our fellow fishermen sling back contraband crappie that would have made the game warden roseate with joy. We saw them remove catfish from trout lines and even saw one optimistic fellow leave a catfish for bait. At the cafe we patronized we meekly paid our money and took our choice of fish that had been caught by other people.

We were quite amiable about it, but, looking back, we have concluded that fishing as a sport is suitable only for small boys and somnambulists. We are inclined to view all outdoor sports with the curled lip, but fishing strikes a new low in things to do when you haven't got anything better. It begins, this puny pastime, at dawn when you stumble through wet weeds simultaneously jerking at the snarls in your hair and the snarls in your fishing line. It continues through blistering and breathless hours, but nevertheless an early start is imperative, so while the world is waiting for the sunrise and the 7:30 alarm, you are teetering into a boat, preferably one ankle deep in water and equipped with unpredictably placed old tin cans. At this juncture it is well to dip one of the tin cans into a muddy hollow of water and sprinkle yourself with its clammy contents, since it is only a question of time before your brawny oarsman will accomplish the same effect and the sooner you get used to your moist mien the happier you'll be, if indeed you cherish any illusions about being happy at all.



YOU OPEN YOUR EYES AND PERCEIVE THAT INDEED YOU HAVE CAUGHT SOMETHING.

Quite wet, you will reach the other side of the lake, where the cool depths look inviting indeed. Ignoring these, you will row around into a cove, a nasty shallow inlet of water, where stumps and snags grate against the bottom of the boat with the musical sound of chalk scratching on a blackboard, and low-hanging willows and moss drop unidentifiable insects into your hair. This is to be your setting for the next miserable hours, so you would do well to make the most of it and get around to baiting your hook.

Here you will run into various technical theories. There are those who belong to the bent pin school and hold that the crude means good enough for pappy are better than those new fangled ideas. Minnows, worms and dough bait, plain but honest fare is what they advocate, passing you a gooey tin can and a paper clip. Other contrariwise anglers insist that fish have become sophisticates what with all the publicity given them by collegians. It may not be necessary to go the whole way and learn to speak their language, but their likes and dislikes they would have you know are indicative of a Fish of Tomorrow, a sort of whale by Whalen. Tidbits and delicacies as well as craftily contrived artificial bait are none too good and hooks are custom made.

WE were with one of the down-to-earth fishermen so our bait was the fish worm. The act of putting this hors d'oeuvre on the hook is laughingly called threading it, an obvious understatement and a canard at all needles. In fact, the bulky camel could pass through the eye of a needle, yes and sashay back and forth a couple of times, more quickly than you can ease a worm's svelte shape into a form fitter for a hook. Hitherto you have been told that a worm is the same on both ends, but now you realize this was a base lie—one end wiggles more. If you've an imaginative turn of mind you can almost see the squirmy thing lifting its head in supplication, much like the heroines of show boat drammers and sobbing: "No not that, anything but that." It is a distinctly unnerving experience.

Dropping your bait swiftly and silently into the water is your next problem, one intensified by the tree branches above and below the water which twine lovingly around hook and line. The best way to remain unentangled is to swing the line smartly from the body and drop it noiselessly, you are told. With eyes squeezed tightly shut, you essay this practice, swinging the line twice, thrice, then dropping it. It connects, there is a pull, you have caught something. You open your eyes and perceive that indeed you have caught something. You have hooked what would have been the seat of your pants, only it went through.

Tearing the tooth-edged hook away, you readjust the bait, still heaving with life, and try again. Hook and line sink to the bottom this time and the cork bobbles brightly on the surface. It continues to bobble brightly and you watch it, intently for the first few minutes and with increasing myopia for the next half hour. When you have ceased to focus on the original cork altogether and instead see five or six light bulbs floating, you close your eyes and wait. Finally you rouse yourself and see to your delight the cork is jerking in a frenzy of agitation. Screaming wildly, you pull your line with a whizz, narrowly missing your swearing partner with the remains of the nibbled work which still remains on the hook. Sadly you return the hook to its watery grave and go through this undignified performance three or four times until the worm is gone and you can again thread the hook. Several worms later you are muttering vile imprecations against the creature formerly referred to as the poor little fish.

THEN the unbelievable occurs. You catch the pirate. The tugs at the hook are more bold and the cork disappears altogether. With a lunge, you drag in your prey, only to find it is (a) too small, (b) out of season, (c) an old boot, beer bottle or turtle, or (d) though rather improbable, your partner clinging to his hook and line. The game is over and you are free to unhook your catch and go through the whole nauseating business again.

No, say what you may, fishing is not amusing; those deadly tedious hours of stoic silence would make Heathcliffe look like a gay raconteur. It is not picturesque; the costuming is definitely on the practical side. It is not healthful, unless putting yourself through the self-torture of a Hindoo fakir is healthful, not beautifying, not stimulating. In short, it has nothing to recommend it, except the fish, and if you fail to catch them, you're just up the creek and might as well row back with a vicious swing of paddles and kicking of worm can.

From the sound of this plaint, you would think it came from a green-eyed pouter, a failure in the world of fish, one who had never hooked so much as a mangy minnow. You are wrong. We not only caught a fish among the tortuous willows and lakeweed; we caught one that made a record. You may see it if you journey to our recent habitat and stop at the supply store where they keep a list of record-breakers to buoy up newcomers. Down at the end of the distinguished list you will find our name and after it the legend: "Caught in May, 1939, one perch, 2⅛ inches long; smallest fish ever caught in Lake Taneycomo."

EVERY time we see one of those large and painstakingly accurate collections assembled by someone with no signs of superhuman power other than the patient indefatigable spirit of the born collector, we realize we could do better things with our spare time than day-dreaming of finding and spending, fabulous wealth.

But all self-reproach aside, the collector of the week is Harold C. Stiers, whose 98 model boats on display until Wednesday at a downtown department store, has all amateur salts in a dither. We visited the collection the other morning, conducted by the owner, if you please, and came away with boat lore that would have helped us gleam on Coronet's nautical quiz instead of failing as we did.

—o-o—

MOST OF STIERS' boats, which range in length from two to 54 inches, he built himself, even the ones in bottles, though some were given him by friends. There is a copy of the Ark, made from the accepted picture and old Hebrew records; an Alaskan kiak; a copy of the Viking Godstad, buried in 800 A. D., and unearthed in 1880; Columbus' vessels; boats of the sixteenth century, his favorite nautical period, so ornately built and carved that they seem to involve a staggering amount of work; copies of the Natchez and Robert E. Lee, the Natchez being the better boat according to veteran river men; a model of Fulton's Clermont and John Fitch's predecessor; an early St. Louis ferry; famous battleships and a copy of Stiers' own yacht; even a ship carved of marble and presented him by Captain Menke and the Goldenrod Showboat company in return for his efforts to secure a permit for the showboat to stop here.

"Doing the research work necessary for building the boats is the most strenuous part of my hobby," Stiers explained. "I collect everything pertaining to boats, inside or outside, so the reproductions are faithful. Making them is easy." Which statement we considered professional modesty.

The entire collection is kept in the basement of Stiers' home at 5533 Lindell boulevard, where he and a helper, an elderly German named Meyer, still build boats, accurate and workable to every small detail. The collection was started when Stiers was eight, which makes it a 30-year work, and certainly a worthwhile result.

WE HAVE BEEN twiddling with the idea of writing a certain store to comment on the solicitude of one of their clerks who waited on us last week. We had purchased some drapery material and since the sum spent was small we went to some pains to count out the correct amount, an obsession of ours and a hangover perhaps from years of gazing at street car signs which warn, "Have exact change ready." However, the clerk, instead of realizing the little service we were performing for his own good, became alarmed when he saw us doling out nickels and dimes from the depths of our change purse.

"Are you sure you have enough money?" he asked confidentially. "I can have this sent out."

"Quite sure," we went on blithely, dropping pennies into his hand.

"You're sure you've got carfare? you won't have to walk?"

Nodding we assured him, but after he had delivered our package he returned once more.

"I hope you get home all right," he cautioned. "I wouldn't want you to be stuck."

Delving into our purse we came up triumphant with funds to prove our solvency and our clerk let us go into the clutches of the world. But ever since we have been carefully eyeing our appearance in the mirror, and wondering from what shifty-eyed glance or telltale note of wide-eyed simplicity, we were adjudged one of those impulsive lassies who would spend her last nickel and then trudge wearily home, not even bothering to raise a thumb in her own behalf.

FROM HAMLET to big city woman's universal problem seems to be keeping her husband's social graces in order. A small town matron we met recently told us sorrowfully that she had been forced to banish her mate to canine quarters because of a typical masculine blunder. It seems distant relatives from a nearby state dropped in town to spend a few hours. Since they had not seen her for some time and had never met her husband or small son she was very eager to make an impression. When they arrived late in the afternoon, sonny, well groomed and polite, was dispatched to papa's place of business to tell him that company had arrived and, if free, he should come home. With the click of the front door the woman sat forward to present him in a laughingly gracious introduction but before she could speak a word, the man blurted out in a horribly loud voice, "Say you know that one pair of shoes I had. Well they got wet in the rain and when I tried to put them on this evening, the sides broke out."

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION -::- -::- ::- By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

A FRIEND of mine gave me a pair of riding boots and my problem is whether it is correct to wear them on outings and hikes. I am not in a position to ride a great deal, but I surely do not want these gifts to go unused.

BOOTS.

Some do wear the riding boots on outings, where they can wear riding breeches. The idea is perfectly all right; but for very long hikes the boots are not very comfortable.

—o-o—

Dear Martha Carr:

WHAT WOULD you advise a bride of only a few months to do if she learned that her husband had been corresponding with a former girl friend of his? He denied writing the letters, but when confronted with the answers admitted it, and said it was just an impulse, and he didn't know what made him do it. He swears that he loves his wife, and that the matter is closed and forgotten, and asks forgiveness and says he will not do it again.

Of course at the time of the marriage it was naturally understood that there would be no communication with the other girl any more, so if he broke his word once, how can she believe in him and know that he will not do it again? This girl would like very much to make a success of her marriage, and she truly loves her husband, but it seems now that she is bewildered, and does not know what attitude to take. Of course she is terribly hurt, and surprised that her husband would do such a thing, but is willing to try to forget it if you think that is the proper attitude.

This couple has to live apart at the present time, and we are wondering how she can have any peace of mind now with him away, since she knows he would stoop to such behavior. It seems that the letters said he was now aware of his true feeling for this other girl, whom he could have married had he desired to, and that he feels his marriage is a mistake. However, when confronted with this he denies it, and says that he does not feel that way at all, but wants to do everything he can to make his wife happy, and that she is the only one he loves.

Is there any way to explain this action away, so that the wife may be happy with her husband? What would you advise her to do? Your advice will be greatly appreciated, as it is breaking her heart, and you may be able to guide her along a path which will avert further heartache and a broken marriage.

Thanking you so much, and with best wishes for your continued success, I am, "WIFE'S FRIEND."

Your friend will certainly be obliged to show more stamina than this silly man, if she is willing to overlook such glaring disloyalty in her early married life. If there is such a thing in his make-up as honor, she should ask him to search for it and give her proof that he has a code and will live up to it. She might, if she is generous, overlook this first violation of truth, but at the same time, she should tell him that it will take some time for her to recover from the shock and she will expect him to do everything in his power to heal the breach he has created at the beginning.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM AN UNEMPLOYED GIRL of 25, and would like to know if the United States Government has any service, such as Army, Navy, Red Cross, hospital units or factories where a young woman may enlist to serve her country. I will be looking anxiously for your answer.

UNEMPLOYED BUT PATRIOTIC.

It is possible that you may get all this information at the office of the National Youth Administration, 815 Olive street, or they will direct you.

Ask, too, at the St. Louis Chapter Red Cross, 3723 Olive street.

—o-o—

WHAT TYPE of clothing would you suggest wearing in New York in August? JEAN.

You would wear about the same weight and type as in St. Louis. It is warm there at that time and often there is much humidity. Thin prints and sheers with white accessories you will find comfortable; perhaps a little darker than summer clothes here.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MY HUSBAND and I and another couple are going to the New York World's Fair. Since our car is the newer, we are going in it. The other couple volunteered to pay for one-half of the gasoline, but since my husband has to have two new tires for the car, which he feels he would not need otherwise for many months, he thinks the other couple should pay a little more than for just half of the gasoline. What do you think?

FARMER JANE.

If your friends know the trip to New York will necessitate the two new tires, it would seem that they might be impelled to contribute toward this expense, even if they might think that you are going, anyhow, and of course when you return will have the exclusive use of this new equipment. Perhaps they will try to make this up en route or in invitations to places of entertainment.

Possibly your husband may show a little hesitancy about going on account of this expenditure, when talking to these friends and this might be a reminder.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

SHOULD THE maid of honor be older than the bride? The youngest sister at the wedding is five years younger than this bride. Would she be too young to be maid of honor? SUSIE.

There is no rule that the maid of honor should be any particular age. A child or an elderly person would not, of course, be chosen. But the difference you mention would make no difference at all; the sister would be perfectly eligible to serve.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

IT HAS OCCURRED TO ME that I have never thanked you properly for printing my request for new members for the Nelson Eddy Fan Club. I am sorry I did not write before, but I do want you to know that it was sincerely appreciated and that as a result I was deluged with inquiries. With Mr. Eddy's sanction and approval I was able to form the St. Louis Chapter of

ELEANOR HAGEMANN,

Dear Mrs. Carr:

DO YOU, by any chance know the usual procedure by which one may protect an idea before submitting it to a concern for a consideration? Not the kind of thing that could be patented, but one which might have some commercial value.

READER.

You might copyright the idea, and not go through the process of patenting before you submit it. If you will write the U. S. Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., they will tell you. Otherwise, you will be obliged to think there are still those who respect an original idea.

—o-o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE some very old books, among them an arithmetic 140 years old. Can you tell me where I can dispose of them for a reasonable price?

OLD SUBSCRIBER.

You will have to investigate this at book shops which deal in old books and literature, a list of which you will find in the classified section of the telephone book. You may also find someone at the Main Public Library who is a connoisseur in this line and who may advise you.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

COULD YOU PLEASE tell me the different exercises necessary to have a nice figure?

WONDERING.

If you would like my folder on exercising and reducing, send me self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

YOU HAVE HELPED so many, I am asking, too, for your help with my son who is paralyzed on one side and who cannot use his arm. Do you know where I could get help for him? I have no money to pay as I have one boy on the WPA. My husband is sick. I have another boy, so there is no money to get medical aid. I have talked to our relief lady and she promised, but she has postponed it for some time. Our doctor said he can be cured. I would be so grateful.

A MOTHER.

Ask your doctor to write to the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, 710 South Kingshighway, St. Louis.

—o-o—

NOTE TO "FATHER"—I read your letter carefully and with sympathy and was glad to get your side of the matter. The situation is such, as I think you will agree upon reflection, that no useful purpose would be served at this time in printing your letter. The affair should be settled within the family circle, and I, as an outsider, must ask to withdraw.

MARTHA CARR.

However, the clerk, instead of realizing the little service we were performing for his own good, became alarmed when he saw us doling out nickels and dimes from the depths of our change purse.

"Are you sure you have enough money?" he asked confidentially. "I can have this sent out."

"Quite sure," we went on blithely, dropping pennies into his hand.

"You're sure you've got carfare you won't have to walk?"

Nodding we assured him, but after he had delivered our package he returned once more.

"I hope you get home all right," he cautioned. "I wouldn't want you to be stuck."

Delving into our purse we came up triumphant with funds to prove our solvency and our clerk let us go into the clutches of the world. But ever since we have been carefully eyeing our appearance in the mirror, and wondering from what shifty-eyed glance or telltale note of wide-eyed simplicity, we were adjudged one of those impulsive lassies who would spend her last nickel and then trudge wearily home, not even bothering to raise a thumb in her own behalf.

FROM HAMLET to big city woman's universal problem seems to be keeping her husband's social graces in order. A small town matron we met recently told us sorrowfully that she had been forced to banish her mate to canine quarters because of a typical masculine blunder. It seems distant relatives from a nearby state dropped in town to spend a few hours. Since they had not seen her for some time and had never met her husband or small son she was very eager to make an impression. When they arrived late the afternoon, sonny, well groomed and polite, was dispatched to papa's place of business to tell him that company had arrived and free, he should come home. With the click of the front door the woman sat forward to present him in a laughingly gracious introduction but before she could speak word, the man blurted out in horribly loud voice, "Say you know that one pair of shoes I had. When they got wet in the rain and when I tried to put them on this morning, the sides broke out."

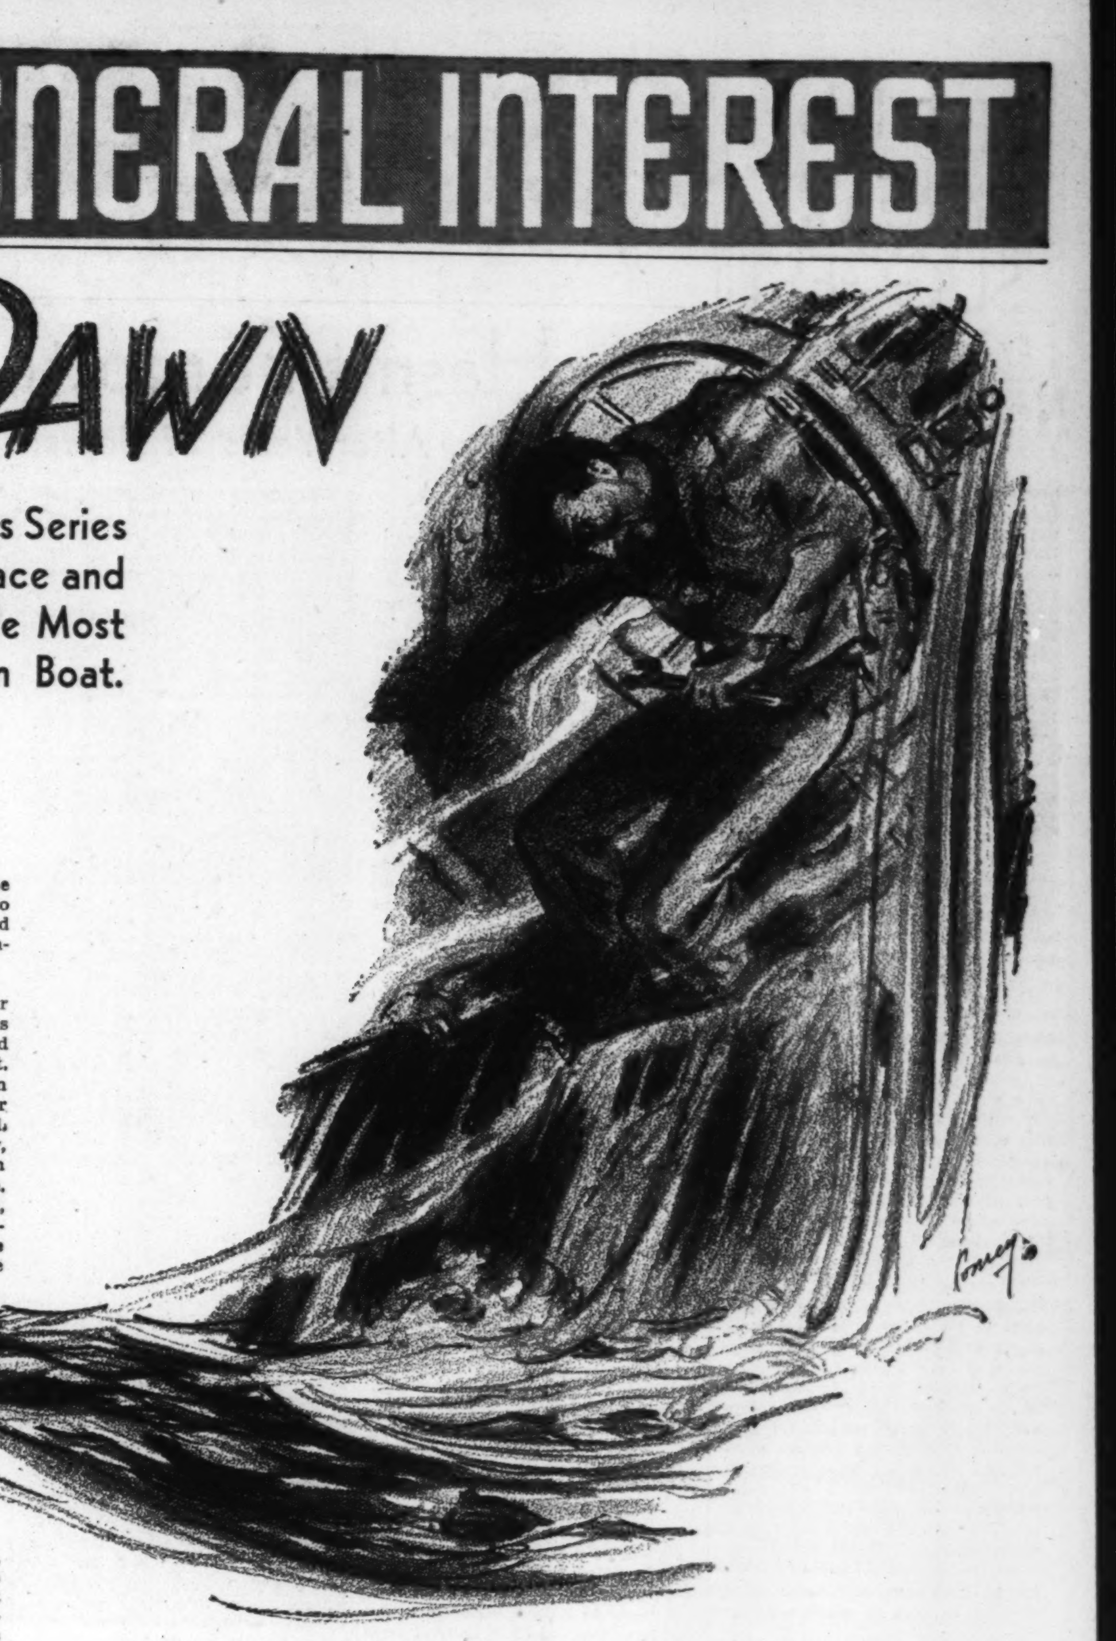
Submarine Commander of World War Days Begins Series of Stirring Stories of Life Below Water Both in Peace and War; Tells How One Man, Now a Gardener, Made Most Miraculous Escape of All Time From a Sunken Boat.

By

LIEUTENANT-COMMANDER KENNETH EDWARDS



DESPERATELY HE PUT HIS SHOULDER TO THE HATCH AND TRIED TO LIFT IT.

IN Worcestershire, England, indulging his hobby for gardening, lives a man who can boast of the most miraculous escape of all time from a sunken submarine. It was during the Great War that it happened, and William Brown was then stoker petty officer of submarine E 41.

E 41 was acting as target submarine giving practice attacks to E 4 off Harwich in August, 1916. E 4 misjudged her distance. Her periscope appeared only 50 yards on the bow, and approaching fast. There was a terrible crash as the two submarines collided, one submerged and the other on the surface. The conning-tower of the submerged submarine was smashed and the hull itself badly holed. She sank like a stone with all hands. The submarine on the surface was holed low down and also began to sink.

Lieut. Voysey, the First Lieutenant of E 41, was in the control-room when water rushed into that compartment from the nine-foot hole in her hull. Seeing that the boat was doomed, he gave the order, "Abandon the boat. All hands up the conning-tower."

When all but six or seven men had gone up, and Voysey was in the conning-tower, E 41 suddenly dipped sharply by the bows and water poured down the conning-tower hatch as the boat sank. Fortunately, the sea pressure slammed the hatch to as she sank. Then the lights went out. Voysey gave the order for the remaining men to remain still and await developments. Voysey's account reads:

"Those men kept perfectly still and quiet, which I can only describe as wonderful.

"By this time the chlorine was getting strong, and one could feel the increasing pressure badly on one's ears. It was impossible to judge length of time, but after a while the boat seemed to settle evenly, presumably having reached the bottom. This seemed to be the end, and I remember experiencing a curious feeling of detachment, as if standing outside oneself and looking on at something appalling, whilst wondering how long it would take. The effects of the chlorine and the frightful pressure on one's ears were being increasingly felt.

"What happened next I have never been able satisfactorily to explain. Either there was a slight battery explosion, or the pressure formed by the boat flooding blew open the upper conning-tower hatch and blew me out at the same time. I can only emphasize the fact that I was definitely blown through the upper hatch, to my intense surprise."

Thus Voysey and some others reached the surface, where they were picked up by H. M. S. Firedrake. There remained two men in the control room, which was almost completely flooded, and Stoker Petty Officer Brown in the engine room, where he had gone to make sure that all the men were out of the after part of the submarine.

The two men in the control room waited a few seconds in a pocket of air near the conning-tower hatch. Then they dived and, swimming under water through the flooded compartment, found the conning-tower hatch and swam up through it. With bursting lungs they swam up through the 65 feet of water which covered the sunken submarine.

Brown shut the water-tight door between the engine room and the midship compartment to keep out the water and gas. Then he set to work to try to open the hatch and escape to the surface. The hatch was the one used for embarking torpedoes for the stern tube. It was very big, and so heavy that it was usually worked through gearing. It was tightly clipped down, and was further secured with a heavy steel "strong-back." Moreover, it was over the engines, which were hot. The engine room, too, was in almost pitch darkness, only a single lamp glowing at half-brilliancy through an "earth" circuit. If Brown was to escape through that hatch it would have to be disconnected from its operating gearing, for that would open the hatch slowly, whereas escape was possible only if it could be thrown open suddenly, allowing Brown to rise with the bubble of air which would be released.

"I then proceeded to disconnect the torpedo hatch from its gearing, which meant the removal of two split pins and two pins from the links. Before the foremost one could be removed, however, I had to unship the strongback."

It sounds easy, but remember that this one man was working away methodically in darkness in a sunken submarine filling up with electrically charged water and chlorine gas. The water and gas were coming through the voice pipes from the midship compartment, which Brown had left open to ease the strain on the bulkhead and water-tight door. And before he could unship the strongback he had to wait while the water rose in the engine room and created enough pressure to ease the hatch off the strongback.

"The heat at this time was excessive," continues Browns' report; "therefore I rested a while and considered the best means of flooding the engine room."

This had to be done in order to create in the engine room a pressure greater than the sea pressure outside the hull. Otherwise it would be impossible to open the hatch against the sea pressure. Imagine the coolness of the man, resting in such circumstances, and calmly thinking out his next step.

Brown's account goes on:

"Eventually I came to the conclusion that the best way was to flood through the stern tube or the weed-trap of the circulating system, or by dropping the exhaust and induction valves and opening the muffler-valve. I tried the stern tube first, but could neither open the stern cap nor rear door. Then I came forward again. While passing the switchboards I received several shocks. I tried to open the weed-trap of the circulating inlet, but it was in an awkward position, and with water coming over the top of me I could not ease back the butterfly nuts. So I proceeded forward again and opened the muffler valve, also the test-cocks on the group exhaust-valves; tried them, and found water was coming in. Then I climbed on top of the engines underneath the torpedo hatch and unshipped the strongback, drawing the pins out of the links with a spanner that I had with me."

No apology is offered for the technical nature of the quotation from Brown's report. The very technicalities show the problems which he had to face, and how he had to think things out in the most terrible circumstances.

—o-o—

WITH the clips and the strongback off the hatch, the next step was to flood the engine room fast to increase the pressure so that the hatch could be opened.

"In order to flood the boat completely I opened the scuttle in the engine room bulkhead. Chlorine gas came in as well as water. I tried three times to lift the torpedo hatch, but each time could only open it halfway, and each time air rushed out through it, and the hatch fell down again."

Every time this happened the pressure inside the boat was lost, and to no purpose. There was only one thing for it—to clip the hatch tight shut while the pressure rose in the engine room, and then knock off the clips, and hope that the hatch would fly wide open. But when Brown had taken off the hatch-clips he had dropped them. They were somewhere on the floor-plates between the engines, under several feet of oily and electrically charged water. Brown dived into this and, after groping about in the pitch darkness under water, found the clips. He then clipped the hatch shut and waited, choking with chlorine, for the pressure to rise. At last he thought the pressure was high enough. He knocked off the clips. The hatch flew open, and another pocket of air rushed out. Desperately he put his shoulder to the hatch and tried to lift it. He lifted it a bit. More air rushed out, and then the sea pressure outside slammed the heavy steel hatch down—on his hand. In agony, he succeeded in lifting the hatch sufficiently to free his hand, which was badly smashed. Then he made one final effort.

"I flooded the boat rapidly through the deadlight till the water came to the level of the coaming. I was then able to raise the hatch and come to the surface."

Thus, in a few simple words, does Brown finish his report. It was an hour and a half after the submarine had sunk that the destroyer standing by on the surface watching the bubbles and oil rising from the wrecks saw a man appear. He had a badly smashed hand and was very exhausted. Small wonder. But Brown had much valuable information for the salvage experts and, thanks to this, the submarine was raised and served again, though under another number.

WHEN C 12 sank in the Humber during the war, two officers went down with the boat and afterwards escaped. C 12 (Lieut. Manley) was under way on the surface in the Humber when her main motors failed. Robbed of her motive power, the submarine was carried down the estuary by the strong ebb tide. She was swept, broadside on, against the sharp bows of a destroyer, and badly holed by the collision. Manley was on the bridge, but his First Lieutenant, Lieut. Sullivan, and most of the crew, were below, striving to get the motors into action again. Manley saw at once that C 12 was sinking, and he ordered all hands on deck. The last man was on deck, and C 12 was on the verge of sinking, when Manley went down the conning-tower with Sullivan, and shut and clipped the conning-tower hatch over his head. Down below Manley and Sullivan investigated the damage—no easy task, since nearly all the lights had gone out, and the sea-water, pouring into the electric batteries, had filled the boat with heavy, chlorine fumes.

Nevertheless, the two officers carried out their inspection thoroughly. They hoped to be able to bring the boat to the surface themselves, but found that the damage was so great that this was out of the question. Only then did they set about saving themselves. C 12 was on the bottom. The depth-gauges told them that.

Manley and Sullivan climbed into the conning-tower and shut the lower hatch after them. Then they flooded the tiny tower in which they were crowded together. When it was flooded and the pressure was more than that of the sea outside, they opened the upper conning-tower hatch and swam to the surface—armed with much valuable information for the salvage experts.

The loss of K 13 when undergoing trials in the Gareloch, near the Clyde, on Jan. 29, 1917, provided an amazing instance of the escape of 47 men after an imprisonment lasting 55 hours. K 13 is also the only British submarine from which life has ever been saved by the salvage, or partial salvage, of the boat.

K 13 was a new submarine—one of the large steam-driven boats. She had gone through most of her trials successfully, and the final tests could be done in one short dive. On the afternoon of Jan. 29, she dived to carry out the final tests before joining the fleet. She had on board a number of representatives of the building firm, and other contractors. Also on board was Commander Goodhart. Goodhart, having returned from the Baltic, where he had done such magnificent work in E 8, was building K 14 on the Clyde. He had gone on K 13's trials with his friend Commander Herbert, who commanded K 13, in order to gain experience of the behavior of this class of super-submarine. Altogether there were 80 men in K 13 when she dived on that fatal afternoon.

It was no sort of a crash dive. When all was ready, Herbert gave orders for the ballast-tanks to be flooded and the motors to go ahead at half speed. But in a few seconds what had started as a dive in "slow time" became a crash dive. There was a terrific rush of hot air from the after-part of the submarine, and a shout of "Tell the captain—come to the surface at once!" The funnels and the 37-inch air-intakes of the boiler-room were open—although the indicator in the control-room stated that they were shut—and the sea was rushing in through these four enormous openings in the hull.

Herbert acted quickly. All water-tight doors were shut, full pressure of compressed air was put on all tanks to blow them as fast as possible, and the operating wheel of the drop-keels was spun round to "drop." This should have released two lead keels, each weighing 10 tons. It was afterwards found that only one of these keels had dropped clear. But the water was coming in much quicker than K 13 could gain bouyancy. Faster and faster she sank, until she settled on the bottom with a slight list to port and an inclination of about four degrees up by the bow, at a depth of 55 feet.

There was no doubt of what happened. Mr. Hepworth, the Admiralty Boiler Overseer, had been in the boiler-room passage when K 13 dived. Through the glass scuttle in the boiler-room bulkhead he had seen water pouring into the boiler-room, and he had been one of the last men to reach the control-room before the water-tight doors were shut. His report was confirmed by the fact that water spurted from the voice-pipes leading from the control-room to the after-compartments. They were shut off, but not before a jet of water from one of them had played on the switchboard, starting a serious electrical fire, which filled the control room with dense smoke. Neither by voice-pipe nor telephone could communication be established with any of the after-compartments. There were 48 men before the foremost boiler-room bulkhead. It seemed that everybody abaft it —another 32 men — was already dead. Actually, some remained alive and were planning escape, but it will never be known how many.

LATE that afternoon, however, Annie MacIntyre, a housemaid, at the Shandon Hydropathic Hotel, was on the shore of the Gareloch. She saw two men swimming in the water. They had shouted, thrown up their hands and disappeared. She reported the fact, but her story was not believed. Yet when K-13 was raised six weeks later and arrangements were made for the burial of the dead she contained, two bodies were found to be missing. They were those of Engineer-Lieutenant Lane of K-13 and John Steel, foreman engineer of the shipyard. Steel's body was never recovered, but Lane's body was found two months after K-13 had sunk. These two had obviously escaped from the afterpart of K-13, and had reached the surface before they succumbed, either to the cold, or because their lungs had burst with the sudden release of pressure.

What of the 48 men imprisoned in the forepart of K-13? Efforts were made to raise the bows by blowing and pumping out all the forward tanks, but to no purpose. The electrical fire in the control-room was got under and finally extinguished. But they were in desperate straits. Much of the oxygen in the air had been used up by the fire, and there were 48 men crowded together and fast using up what remained. One of the civilian experts on board worked out that these 48 men had 12,000 cubic feet of air between them, which would last them only eight hours. K-13 had dived in the afternoon. The early darkness would soon shroud the Gareloch, and then there would be scant chance of her being found, much less succor coming to the imprisoned men, until after daylight next day. That would be about 15 hours from the time of diving—and the air would only support life for about eight hours.

But there was no despair. The best brains of the Submarine Service and of the engineering and shipbuilding industries grappled with the problem of making the air last longer. In the fore torpedo-room there were shut in many more precious cubic feet of air. But the water-tight door leading into that compartment was jammed shut, a clip having fallen down on the far side of it, and there was nobody in the compartment to raise it and free the door.

Patiently and methodically the shipyard engineers who had built K-13 worked away at that door. In two hours they had stripped away the rubber seating sufficiently to be able to get a bent wire between the door and its seating. After anxious minutes of blind "fishing" with the bent wire, the clip was caught and carefully lifted. The door was open. More air was made available. But even this was not enough to keep those 48 men alive very much longer. Breathing was already becoming painful and labored. So other engineers worked at the air compressors and the steel compressed-air "bottles," the air from which is normally used only for blowing tanks. They devised a system whereby some of the foul air was sucked out of the submarine by the air compressors and then replaced from the compressed-air supply.

ALL this, however, seemed only to be putting off inevitable death from hour to hour, and it could not last very long. They knew, of course, that K 13 would be missed. But how long would it take to find her and discover what was wrong? It might take days; and nothing could be done unless the searchers and the salvage party knew the state of K 13. In the hope of making things easier for the searchers, the submarine's wireless masts were raised, although it was known that the depth was too great for them to show above the surface.

One factor, however, was in favor of the imprisoned men. Another submarine—E 50—was also doing trials in the Gareloch on that afternoon. She watched K 13 dive, as one submarine will always watch another when possible. The commanding officer of E 50 (Lieutenant-Commander Michell) was rather worried by the tremendous discharge of air which had accompanied K 13's diving. For such a disturbance on the surface there is no word more descriptive than that coined by the Submarine Service. There was a great "gefuffle" on the surface. E 50 wondered what was wrong. Mitchell had seen something else—the appearance of two black specks just after K 13 had dived. E 50 was then some distance off, and thought they were the tops of K 13's periscopes. It was not until long afterwards that it became clear that the two black specks must have been Lane and Steel, who had escaped from K 13's after-hatch.

Night was falling, and E 50 was now becoming seriously alarmed. There were a lot of bubbles and a little oil coming up from where K 13 had dived. E 50 tested the water for acid, in case this might show that K 13's electric batteries had been flooded, but there was no sign of acid. Mitchell then anchored E 50 close by and, keeping his skiff over the spot where K 13 had sunk, in case anything or any-

"TALE of VALOR...ENDURANCE..."

LIEUTENANT-COMMANDER KENNETH EDWARDS of the Royal Navy offers a wealth of detail never before published in the series of articles, "We Dive at Dawn," starting today in the Post-Dispatch.

In his writings, Lieutenant-Commander Edwards pays tribute to the officers and men of the craft he knows so well—the submarines, and gives a vivid picture of life below water both in peace and in war. Interesting reading at any time, the articles are doubly so at present, coming as they do so shortly after two major submarine disasters—the sinking of United States Squalus and the British Thetis.

Today's article and those which follow contain the stories of dozens of episodes of which little or nothing has ever been heard, but each one of which is an epic of courage and determination in the face of deadly peril.

That Lieutenant-Commander Edwards has handled his material well is indicated by a statement from Sir Roger Keyes, Admiral of the British Fleet, which says: "Lieutenant-Commander Edwards is to be congratulated on having extracted from official records a brave tale of valor, enterprise, endurance and professional skill, of which the navy may well be proud; and which should appeal to all who have the call of the sea in their blood."

LET ME SUGGEST

By Josephine Walters

AT A changing season of the year, when we feel the urge to change many things in our house, is a good moment to speak about pictures. It is a subject that I have been asked about over and over again, for pictures are one of those little items that can add to or detract so much from an entire room, not only because of their subject matter but in the way in which they are handled. And now, at the start of summer seems an excellent time to me to take stock of the pictures on hand, how they might be improved in position or framing and how they may be replaced for the warm months by others which may change the aspect of a room as well as give it a cooler feeling.

Pictures are just beginning to come into their own again, decoratively speaking. After the Victorian era, when most living room walls were so plastered with nondescript pictures in a vast variety of fancy frames strewn helter skelter over the walls, it was no wonder that decorators banned pictures entirely. But people found that totally bare walls were just as hard to live with as the cluttered walls of their parents and they began once more to have a desire to have art within their own homes. And this should be so, for there is no question that a fine picture is a pleasing thing, and even an unimportant picture that fits into the decorative scheme adds to the attractiveness of a room.

Of course, it sounds a little foolish to say that pictures now are back in style, for good art always is in style, but it is true that pictures once again are forming an important part of the decorative scheme. Only now they are being selected with more care both as to size and subject matter and are being used in an orderly manner instead of being strewn about over the walls at random. On the other hand, this does not mean that all pictures must be hung in a perfectly symmetrical manner, but more later about the rules of picture hanging.

● THERE ARE two schools of thought on the subject of picture selecting. There are many people who feel that, unless you can own an old master, you should select your pictures with a definite eye as to their decorative value in the room in which they are to be used. In fact, just recently, a group of New York decorators did some display rooms, with a picture as the decorative center of interest. The entire color scheme of the rooms was taken from the tones in the pictures. As pictures of this type are usually inexpensive, they may be changed with changing decorative schemes, so that a room may seem to be entirely different with a change of pictures and the resulting change in the room itself.

Others feel that only fine pictures, the works of the masters or recognized artists, should be used, in the original if possible. They feel a truly fine picture may be enjoyed for a lifetime and then be passed on, just like a bond. Also, today there are so many excellent methods of reproducing fine paints at very nominal cost that even people with very limited incomes may be able to enjoy the great masters in their own homes.

● HERE ARE a few rules that may help to guide you in the selection and hanging of pictures in your own home:

First of all, most pictures should be hung at eye level and flat to the wall, with no cords or picture wires in sight. If for some reason you feel it necessary to have these latter, be sure to bring one cord straight up from each side to the molding. Never have the cord or wire come together at the top to form an inverted V. Try to use cord that matches the tone of the wall. Discard display lamps hung over a picture, which were so popular about 25 years ago, unless your painting is truly very fine or you have a room more or less given over to pictures.

Try to select a picture in proportion to the piece it is to be hung in relation to, and incidentally, it is almost always better to hang a picture so that it forms a grouping with some piece of furniture, rather than being suspended in midair, all by itself. If you are hanging a picture over a large sofa, see that it is large enough to create a pleasant balance, or hang a grouping of small pictures so that they give a feeling of importance. Do not dwarf a tiny end table by an enormous picture. It is a fairly safe rule to see that the frame of the picture hangs within the edges of the piece it is to hang over. In using a grouping, try to have some relationship as to framing, subject matter and the balance arrangement of the individual pictures.

As a rule, keep family photographs in the more intimate rooms, such as the bedroom or upstairs sitting room. Photos of Sonny, at the age of three, reclining on a bearskin, may cause hilarity in the family, but they may embarrass him before the rest of the world. On the other hand, if pictures are of intrinsic interest, they may be used any place. Just recently, a New York socialite hung all the walls of his study with news photos of his friends and it made an amusing and effective decorative treatment. Fine oil paintings of members of the family are always acceptable in any room of the house.

She Hasn't Forgotten Her Wickedness

Myrna Loy, After Years of Screen Nobility, Returns to Sinful Role.

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, June 10.

LOUIS BROMFIELD says: "Times have certainly changed here in 10 years. The place has grown up. Even the trees look 50 years older while the faces get younger. How come?"

In those 10 years he's written six novels and two plays. And made much more money, had lots more fun than if he'd anchored himself in Hollywood. He moved his wife, three children and two English children who visited them, out of their home near the French border in six hours.

He writes two hours in the morning, works on his farm, then two hours writing before he goes to bed. He's made several trips to India, Java and all over the East and doesn't think writers should be afraid to take a chance.

It cost him $10,000 for his trip to India getting material for "The Rains Came" and another story Warners are doing. But the trip's already netted him a quarter of a million dollars.

He said Myrna Loy had forgotten none of that Oriental wickedness she used to put on the screen. It's all back in waves as Lady Esketh. He'd like to do one picture a year; preferably in the winter time, work spring and summer on his farm and the rest of the year go traveling. Who wouldn't?

As you may know, Bromfield bought the old family farm at Mansfield, O., which is half way between Cleveland and Columbus. He's no pseudo-sophisticated Connecticut farmer, but the real kind who follows a plow.

—o-o—

NOW THAT I'm over on the Twentieth lot, I might as well find out why Myrna Loy changed from the perfect wife to a naughty lady.

Myrna said she was sticky from four years of sweetness and weary of interviewers asking her the 10 best ways to hold a husband. And utterly exhausted from an over-dose of nobility.

"But," said Myrna, "it stunned me for a minute. I hadn't expected to be that bad. But I thought the matter over for a week. Then I came to the conclusion the public must be as tired of my 'perfect wife or sweetheart' role as I was. It wasn't that I didn't revel in playing sophisticated wives, who were true to their husbands—I did. It was just that I played the same part so many times, it was like turning on the same record."

It takes plenty of nerve to change from good to bad at the peak of your career, and become the woman who uses her charm to trap men, and toss them over when she tires of the amours, and as scandalous as they come. That is the kind of a woman she was until she met up with Maj. Safti, who regenerated her with the help of a cloudburst, earthquake, flood and a fire. That, my buddies is what I'd call regeneration!

This is Myrna's second revolt. Her first came seven years ago, when she graduated from vampires. Which proves Myrna's got brains as well as beauty. You all remember her as a wicked gal with a sarong—before Lamour made you so conscious of them. Then they were throwing Myrna to the crocodiles, slitting her throat, kicking her into a chasm.

"It was Director E. H. Griffith who turned the tide by casting me in 'Rebound' starring Ina Claire," she said. "Then followed 'Animal Kingdom' and 'Love Me Tonight.' It took 'Penthouse' and 'Manhattan Melodrama' to prove that I was worthy of 'The Thin Man.' Ironic, isn't it, that after I'd fought to get away from slusky, sunken sirens, I begged to do one?"

—o-o—

MOVIE NOTES: George O'Brien says you can streamline any kind of picture except a Western. The formula's just the same—wild, open spaces where men are men. You can get by with a stagecoach, but they want no part of automobiles. Our Western cycle has kind of let up, while we go into a rash of doctor pictures, which started rolling with "Men in White."

Then "Yellowjack," "Pasteur," "Magnificent Obsession," "Dr. Clitterhouse," gave it a new lease on life. Now we've had "Dark Victory," "The Citadel," "Pacific Liner," "Dr. Kildare," "Uncover Doctor," "Secrets of a Nurse," "Disputed Passage" and "Dr. Erlich." This is truly the Sorbonne era, reeking of disinfectant. And just as hard to figure out when the phase will be over as a brain tumor.

—o-o—

WE'VE BEEN SEEING some of the best air pictures ever made. But just discovered why women aren't going for them. The pappies and kids are crazy about them. Why shouldn't they be? Every youngster is a potential Lindbergh, with his eye on the clouds. But women fear the future and what may happen to their sons. I got this at a luncheon of 12 women the other day. Every mother present was strong in her condemnation of air pictures. A crack-up on the screen makes them cringe. "Test Pilot" was the exception, that portrayed a woman's great love. Funny people, women.

—o-o—

MELVILLE COOPER was laughing about Freddie Bartholomew's precociousness before the screen. They were doing a scene and Freddie suddenly called out to him, "Please, sir, I wouldn't speak now if I were you. You see, you won't be in the camera!"

—o-o—

ANOTHER smart young one. J. M. Kerrigan has smoked a pipe all his life. Jackie Cooper is just starting. On the set the other day Jackie watched Kerrigan tapping the old tobacco out of his pipe, noticed that the bowl was cracked. Jackie showed him how to tap the pipe using his thumb for a shield, in such a way that the bowl wouldn't crack. Now Kerrigan's going around talking to himself—the new method actually works!

—o-o—

GUY KIBBEE told me he'd take the family to the fair but when he went to Sally Rand's for the afternoon, he'd park the children in the nursery. When I asked if he had a touch of spring fever, he just sighed: "No, Hedda. At my age, I'm afraid it's only spring TALK!"

—o-o—

THE ACOUSTICS are just right from the top of a hill on Universal's back lot where the "Bright Victory" company has drilled an oil well, for their voices to be heard over the Lakeside Golf course. Jackie Cooper had lunch with Eddie Quillan at the club. Latter in the afternoon he called on the loud speaker from location: "Quillan, what's your score?" Quillan was so startled he dropped his club. Said he'd heard of miracles—but never thought a voice would boom at him out of a sand trap!

—o-o—

WHAT DID I tell you about tough guys? Just learned that John Garfield writes poetry in his off-moments. And for his vacation, after he finishes "Dust Be My Destiny"* he may do some personal appearances in Mexico City with "Juarez." And it wouldn't be a bad idea to send him to South America, either. He looks so Spanish, they'd probably claim him as their own.

—o-o—

GEORGE CUKOR is trying out a new idea in "The Women." Yes, it take a man to think up a new gag for 'em. They have a giant beauty parlor, with the ladies being pedicured, pummeled and preened. Seventy-five chattering females, demanding exclusive attention.

So George did a dress rehearsal on a circular traveling boom, using only young players, instead of stars. Then will run it off to pick flaws, build up weak spots, before doing it with the star cast. It will save the studio about $100,000 in retakes.

—o-o—

JOHN ARCHER has the right idea. He's playing opposite Ann Shirley in "Career," but still lives with the four boys who pitched in their earnings to help him. I asked when he was going to move. "Not until the gang throws me out," said he. Yes, he's starting the right way.

Real star of that picture is Edward Ellis, who made such a hit in "The Man to Remember." Eddie's one of our really fine actors but not much attention was paid him until he held out for two years for a good part. Now RKO's put him under long term contract. A tip to all you character men: If you can keep from starving, wait. The part will find you, and you'll make 10 times as much, and won't have to work so hard.

—o-o—

I SAW some of Elsa Maxwell's rushes and she's a natural. She ordered 100 individual cocktail shakers to be used at a party sequence in "Hotel for Women."

Says Elsa: "You only invite people for cocktails you don't like well enough for dinner. So give them a souvenir to remember you by."

Smart gal, that Maxwell.

—o-o—

WHAT A RIBBING Frank Morgan has taken from his pals because he was chosen by Walter Yust, editor of the Encyclopedia Brittanica, to write a 4500-word survey of the picture business, plus movie acting, from its beginning in 1900 to 1939. When it's printed the laugh will be on many of his friends. He's omitted some pretty famous names.

WE DIVE AT DAWN -:- -:- -:-

By Lieutenant-Commander Kenneth Edwards

The first salvage ship to arrive was the old gunboat Gossamer. She had a diving suit, but no diver. At 5 a. m. a diver arrived, only to find that the Gossamer's diving suit was leaky and useless. Soon afterwards a trawler and the salvage sloop Thrush reached the scene. At about 7 a. m. the first diver went down. Michell's report states: "As soon as he landed on K 13 we heard tapping on the surface as clearly as if the boat had been a few feet off instead of about 10 fathoms under water." "All well before the engine room bulkhead" was the message, but those in K 13 were unable to read signals from the diver or the surface. The sounds of the diver ceased. They waited, but nothing happened.

Meanwhile something of an altercation was in progress on the surface. Michell wanted to try to lift K 13's bows, and give compressed air to her from E 50 through an armored hose, but the shipbuilders wanted to build a large escape tube to fit the torpedo hatch. They feared that an attempt to lift K 13's bows might break the long vessel in two, but Michell's submarine experience told him that time was all-important. He got his way. H. M. S. Thrush and the trawler swept a 6½-inch wire hawser under K 13's bows and arrangements were made to try to lift her bows on this.

Meanwhile in K 13 Herbert and Goodhart held a conference. It was decided that Goodhart should try to escape through the conning tower. In case he did not reach the surface alive, he was to carry with him a tin, made conspicuous by streamers of bunting. In the tin would be details of their predicament, which would help the salvage party. The queer post-box also contained pathetic notes of farewell to wives from men who had looked at death so long that they had practically lost hope.

Herbert went with Goodhart into the conning tower to speed him on his way. Above the conning tower was the chart room, through which Goodhart would have to pass. In the conning tower they shut the lower hatch beneath them, and then flooded the little compartment until they were up to their necks in icy water, their heads in air at a terrific pressure. They shook hands. Goodhart ducked towards the hatch and disappeared in a tremendous rush of air. Then Herbert set about closing the upper conning-tower hatch; but a rush of air took charge of him and hurled him through it and upwards. He was dashed against the steel roof of the chart-room, but was carried, battered and bruised, through the hatch.

"I have distinct recollections of putting my hands over my face and breathing as I went up," said Herbert afterwards, "and I can liken my condition to that of a pip you see in a lemon squash which rises covered with bubbles to the top. I felt myself brush past the wireless aerial—which would be about 20 feet above the hull—and came to the surface in a tremendous rush of air."

Michell says:

"At 10:30 a. m. the Thrush had just taken the strain of the wire, and the trawler was beginning to heel over a little, when a tremendous amount of air from K 13 came up between the two lifting ships. I first thought that she must have broken in two, but before the upheaval had subsided, the form of a man was observed coming to the surface in an immense bubble. . . . He was at once hauled out of the icy water. His first words were 'Have you seen Goodhart?'

Nobody had seen Goodhart. The rush of air which had so bruised Herbert had been greater in the case of Goodhart. He had been hurled against the roof of the chart-room and killed. As Michell said, there were hundreds of chances against anyone reaching the surface alive when blown from the conning-tower, as the casing outside made a veritable trap. Not even that pathetic post-box had come to the surface. Thus, in an attempt to save them, died a man whose exploits had been an inspiration to the Submarine Service. He was posthumously awarded the Albert Medal for gallantry in saving life at sea.

It seemed that Herbert bore a charmed life. He had been Nasmith's first lieutenant in A 4 when she had been so nearly lost before the War. He had been one of the five survivors when D 5 had struck a mine off Harwich. He had been in the French submarine Archimede during her eventful and almost disastrous trip into the Heligoland Bight. He had left E 22 the day before she was torpedoed and sunk by UB 18, and he had, as captain of the "mystery ship" Baralong, fought that memorable action with U 27.

Herbert, with the knowledge of exactly what was required by the 46 men imprisoned 55 feet below water, set to work at once to assist in the rescue. He knew that time was the vital factor, not only because of the air, but also because there was no knowing how long the boiler-room bulkhead, which was designed to stand 15-pound pressure would hold out against 25 pounds.

There followed hours of work. At last, soon after 1 a. m., when the men in K 13 had been below water for 37 hours, and were almost at their last gasp, an air-hose was connected and air pumped into K 13. From that moment things began to get better in the sunken submarine. After three more hours a four-inch pipe was connected, down which some supplies were passed. Meanwhile, salvage efforts were redoubled, and at last the bows of the submarine showed above the waters of the Gareloch. It was found impossible to raise her sufficiently to get the hatches above water, so a hole was cut in the hull with an oxy-acetylene cutter. There was only three inches to spare, and the tide was rising, but through the hole climbed 46 men, who had been entombed for 55 hours. Then K 13 filled and sank once again.

"Children Need Discipline When They're Young"

"Allowing Them to Disobey and Argue Is to Ruin Them."

By Angelo Patri

"WHAT have you boys been doing now? Just look what you have done. Ruined groceries that I had to pay good money for, messed up the place so it will take me an hour and more, to clean it up. Why do you do such things to me when I am so good to you?

"If you ask for anything from me you get it. Last night, even, I took you to the show when I was so tired with your doings that I needed to go to bed. Only this morning I gave you each a nickel to spend. This is the thanks I get. I'm going to lock each of you in the closet. I have to do something with you."

After a mad scramble the boys, eight, six and five, were locked up. They pounded on the doors and howled, "Let me out! Let me out! I'll be good if you let me out." After a few minutes of this their mother let them out and cautioned them to be good for the rest of the day. They gladly promised and dashed out, colliding in the doorway and knocking the smallest one down. He sat there and lifted his voice to high heaven. His mother dashed at the fleeing brothers, caught up with one and cuffed him, then returned to comfort the wounded one.

"Never mind. I slapped him good for it. Now get up and wash your face. Come. I'll wash you. Then you can go to the corner and get an ice cream." Gladly did the mourner rise. This was exactly what he had hoped for.

—o-o—

THIS POOR MOTHER is worn to death. The children are in trouble from morning to night. The mothers of the neighborhood call their children in when the band appears, and if they seem to want to stop call out, "You children get right along home. Hurry up, now. I don't want you around here." The teacher reports that they sometimes do good work, oftener not, because they do not seem to understand that they have to obey directions.

When this is told their mother she says, "I can't imagine why they are so disobedient. And me so good to them. Why, when I was a child, if I had told my mother that I wouldn't sweep the porch until she gave me a nickel she would have knocked me down. What's gotten into the children of this generation is more than I can see."

The children of this generation, or any other, need discipline and teaching when they are young. If they do not get the experiences they must have at the time they should have them, they are not going to be helpful, intelligent, likeable children but quite the other sort. Allowing children to disobey, to argue, to demand rewards for service for doing their duty is to ruin them.

—o-o—

THERE IS NO GOODNESS about such neglect of children as appears in this disorderly family. It is ignorance and weakness gone to seed. It is late in the day for the teaching the mother should have had before she was married. The sin of her ignorance and weakness is to be laid at society's door. No girl should grow up without having received instruction in home-making and child-rearing. It would surely improve the most heedless and help the most thoughtful. Motherhood is a profession and like any other is promoted by education.

Swedish Pastry

Here is a frivolous bit of pastry that is easy to make and delightful to eat. Called Fattigman Bakelser, it is an old recipe of Swedish origin:

Three eggs, one-fourth cup sugar, one-fourth cup cream, one-eighth teaspoon ground nutmeg, one-eighth teaspoon salt, cake flour (about two cups), lard for deep frying, powdered sugar.

Beat eggs until foamy, add sugar, cream, nutmeg and salt. Then sift in enough flour to make a soft dough which will handle easily. Roll dough very thin on lightly floured board. Cut into triangle shape, measuring two and one-half inches at the base and five inches on the sides. Use a crimping wheel if you have one. In the center of each triangle make a cut one and one-half inches long and pull the point through the cut. Fry in deep hot lard until lightly browned. Drain on unglased paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Powdered cardamon seed may be used in the recipe instead of nutmeg, using about one-half teaspoon, or more if you fancy the flavor.

Features of General Interest

ST. LOUIS Fashion Parade

By Sylvia Stiles

WHILE most of us are worrying about clothes that will keep us cool in July, the designers are concerned about clothes to keep us cool in September. It's the first time on record that the rulers of fashion have bothered their heads over comfort for early autumn and this should be especially good news for St. Louis women. According to a momentous decision at the style centers September and October will be reckoned according to temperature. There'll be a "little season" during which we'll wear ensembles created according to climatic specifications. Now don't think those left-over spring things will do. It won't be that easy because new silhouettes and new textures will be the telltale marks of which "little season" you are observing.

—o-o—

WHILE THE millinery war goes on with arguments flying as to whether those draped turbans or the enormous brimmed models shall top a fashionable ensemble during the next two months, there appears a hat which strikes a happy medium and is heralded as a forerunner of the autumn mode. Dache is responsible for this interesting creation on display in St. Louis. It is designated as a profile hat which means the brim sweeps up at the side to show the face. Incidentally the crown is shaped so that it follows the contour of the head. The current mode is made of very lightweight Shantung straw to complement black sheer frocks but I've been told that Dache's fall version will have Persian lamb facing to frame the profile while black antelope forms the crown.

—o-o—

Queen Elizabeth's modest skirt lengths look conspicuous in contrast to the high marks reached by the summer skirts in America, but wait until the autumn! According to the rumors, skirts are due for a drop. Paris mid-season collections hinted at this by adding several inches over the previous indorsements. There's the bustle theme as an influence, too. Can you visualize a bustle skirt that has a knee-cap hemline?

—o-o—

● IT BEGINS TO LOOK as if there is some truth in that old adage that women are slaves of fashion. The theory was bound up with corset strings and when these were discarded, emancipation loomed as a certainty. Now we're back where we started. Stays and strings rather than 14-day diets are moulding our figures: Wasp waists are in vogue and no amount of exercise or dieting can achieve a tiny waistline half so effectively as a tug at the corset strings.

—o-o—

Heads and feet are wrapped up in gay stripes this summer and if you're clever you can get your color schemes to match exactly. We've been seeing those brightly colored draped turbans around town for several weeks, but only within the last few days have the turban striped shoes appeared. Types vary according to the costume. There's one for wear with summer formals, another in pastel stripes for afternoon tailleurs and a very dashing low-heeled model in multi-colors designed for summer sports wear. Wear these with white or monotone ensembles and know your footsteps are in fashion.

● THE MOST VERSATILE newcomer in fashion circles this season is a swanky, swishing little coat which can be worn over any type of costume from a sun suit to a formal dance frock. It's knckle length, in accordance with the new measuring stick of smart jackets, and may be selected in a variety of colors and fabrics. "Fireman's red" represents the brightest shade. As for materials, there are flannel, felt, quilted calico, linen, hopsacking, in addition to angora themes.

—o-o—

If looking pretty on the beach is one of your summer ambitions, the ideal bathing ensemble is of quilted cotton, patterned in a dainty flower pattern of pink and blue on a white background, and therefore very infantile in its inspiration. The one-piece suit has a pleated skirt over a knitted foundation. A coat that is the same length as the skirt completes the season's most handsome beach costume.

—o-o—

● LOUNGING PAJAMAS in arresting tri-color schemes are becoming the most popular every-day indoor costume for summer wear in St. Louis. One particular model has gained such popularity that there are three different versions of it in one family. Mother wears the pajamas in fuchsia tones, while one daughter goes in for a patriotic scheme of red, white and blue nad the other daughter has chosen brown, green and yellow. Trousers are so flaring they resemble a skirt. The blouse section is of the collarless shirtwaist type and the wide contrasting sash ties any way you want it to.

—o-o—

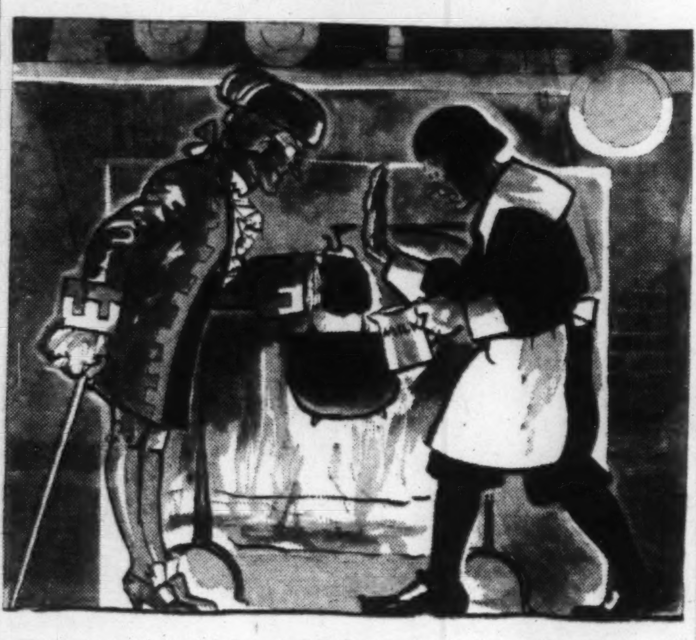
CLAM CHOWDER RECIPES FOR DIFFERENT TASTES

By George Rector



IF you want to get into a spirited argument with a New Englander all you have to say is: "Tomatoes belong in a clam chowder, and not milk." After all, what goes into a clam chowder is solely a matter of taste, but I do think the Manhattan clam chowder is the most popular.

I am wondering what has become of the old-time marching and chowder clubs. They were mostly stag affairs and during the summer months at the beaches in the vicinity of New York there were hundreds of these gay parties. The badge of membership consisted of donning a white apron and white cap, and then the boys were all set for a big time.

France has her bouillabaisse, Italy her Minestrone, England her mulligatawny and we come through with clam chowder which is 100 per cent American. No two people make it quite alike and I suppose that is the reason that it has become an interesting topic for debate and controversy.

One popular restaurant in New York will not use chopped clams in the chowder, but it gives the customers a break with whole little necks. Another famous restaurant in New York flavor its clam chowder with curry powder, and a popular restaurant in Atlantic City uses soft shell clams in the chowder, which is a departure from the cut and dried recipe we read about in books.

Pilot crackers are always served with chowder. The intention is to crumble them into the plate of chowder, especially into a milk chowder which has not been thickened with a little flour. Our books on etiquette will tell you not to do this, and all I can say is that it is like being restrained from dunking a doughnut.

Here is an example of clam chowder as served through New England: One-half cup diced salt pork, one onion, sliced; two cups diced potatoes (raw); two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one pint rich milk, 24 little neck clams and liquor, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon white pepper, one-eighth teaspoon thyme, crackers.

Cook salt pork in heavy frying pan until lightly browned and fat is extracted; add sliced onion and hold over low water until it is cooked colorless. Cover potatoes with boiling water, using about two cupfuls, and parboil for five minutes. Then add salt pork and onion to parboiled potatoes and let simmer until potatoes are tender. Meanwhile melt butter, blend in flour and gradually add cold milk and stir until smooth and boiling point is reached. Combine mixtures and add clams which have been brought to a boil in their own liquor. Add seasonings and serve with crackers.

A CHOWDER made with salt fish is good, too, and the ingredients in this recipe can be obtained any place and any time of the year.

One-half pound salt cod fish, two ounces salt pork (diced), one onion (finely chopped), three cups diced potatoes, one quart milk (scalded), six soda crackers.

Pick codfish into small pieces, cover with lukewarm water and let soak until soft and salt is extracted. Meanwhile, cook diced pork until lightly browned, adding the onion toward the last for two or three minutes of gentle cooking. Then add diced raw potato to pork and onion, cover with boiling water and simmer until potatoes are tender. Add the hot milk and drained codfish and reheat. Just before serving add the crackers to the chowder.

NOW FOR the Manhattan version of chowder, which contains tomatoes. Salt pork is lurking in all chowders, whether they are fish, clam or vegetable.

Clams (two or three dozen), one-half cup diced salt pork, one onion (finely chopped), one shallot (finely chopped), two cups diced potatoes, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper, one can tomatoes (No. 2 size), one-eighth teaspoon thyme.

Purchase clams in the shell. Scrub thoroughly in cold water to remove sand. Pack clams close together in bottom of saucepan; add one cup of cold water, cover tightly and let steam until shells open, or about 10 minutes. When cool enough to handle, remove clams to cutting board or chopping bowl, discard shells and strain clam broth through a double thickness of cheesecloth. There should be about one quart of clam broth. If there is less add cold water to make up the amount. Chop clams until they are coarsely minced; add them to the strained clam broth and proceed with balance of recipe. Fry salt pork in heavy frying pan until lightly browned, add chopped opion and shallot and cook colorless.

Meanwhile put raw diced potatoes in small saucepan, cover with boiling water, add salt and cook until potatoes are tender, but do not overcook, as each piece of diced potato should hold its shape. (Half inch dice is a good size for the potato and quarter inch dice for the salt pork.) Add cooked potatoes to minced clams and broth along with salt pork, onions and canned tomatoes. Add black pepper and thyme, bring to boiling point and serve.

The number of clams depends on the size and whether you like chowder thick with clams. A large cherry stone clam is perfect for a chowder, although the soft shell clam, which is much cheaper, can be used in the recipe with satisfactory results. However, this clam has a long black neck and skin which must be cut away and discarded after steaming. Soft shell clams hold a great amount of sand, so much care must be exercised to free them of sand before and after steaming.

HERE IS A popular family dessert and offers itself to many variations in the sauce. When fresh berries are in season use them in place of the sauce made with jam. Strawberries, blackberries, raspberries or blueberries make a delicious sauce for this type of steamed dessert when mashed and sweetened with sugar. A bowl of whipped cream which has been sweetened with powdered sugar and flavored with a few drops of vanilla extract may accompany the dessert.

One-half cup butter, one cup of sugar, two and one-fourth cups flour, three and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup milk, four egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Cream butter and gradually add sugar. Mix and sift flour and baking powder together; add to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into buttered cups and steam 35 to 40 minutes. Turn out of cups and roll lightly in powdered sugar. Make sauce as follows: Cream one-half cup of butter with one-half cup of powdered sugar. Add one cup of raspberry jam, stirring until mixed. Then add and stir in two well-beaten egg yolks.

"We All Have Boundary Lines In Our Lives"

By Elsie Robinson

CANADA has been front page news to us all in recent days. The thought of those two young people tackling its immensity—dead tired, yet game to the last smiling bow in them, is something that touches our own code of good sportsmanship. Politics? Maybe. But they'll leave us feeling nearer to our neighbors than ever in our history. Which means plenty in these parlous days when hate's the first thing you meet at every turn.

William Lyon Phelps phrased it beautifully in a few words last year, at the time Yale University conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws upon John Buchanan, Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, during the first official visit ever paid by a Governor-General of Canada to a President of the United States.

Said he, "In an insane world maddened by the beating of war drums, the most eloquent spectacle is something that cannot be seen; the invisible boundary line between Canada and the United States, without a fort, a soldier or a gun."

There's something more than smooth politics . . . there's a statement that goes to the very roots of every human existence whatever its blood or boundaries. "The invisible boundary line" doesn't exist merely between these United States and Canada . . . it may and can exist in every life . . . it must exist if we are to know any real power and pride and peace.

We all have "boundary lines" in our lives. Geographical boundary lines are relatively unimportant. It does not matter greatly whether you live in Toronto or Detroit. But spiritual boundary lines are vitally important. It matters tremendously on which side you live of hate or friendliness, trickery or fair play, courage or cowardice, decency or depravity.

Geographical boundary lines are a matter of chance. It's your parents' fault, not yours, if you're born in Africa, Lapland, New Zealand, the South Sea Islands, or Cicero, Ill. But it's up to you to pick your own spiritual boundary lines. The individual is just out of luck if he doesn't pick the right ones.

Never has this been as true as today. Abruptly humanity has gone jungle. Two thousand years of slow, tortuous struggle toward civilization has almost been wiped out by the last 20 years of hate, envy, resentment and cruel need, the aftermath of the World War. Every life today lies on the borderline of savagery. You may be the most peaceful and obscure of citizens, but you're constantly besieged by a barrage of poisonous propaganda as vicious as any flock of poisoned arrows.

Fifty years ago the world believed in friendliness and fair play. There were always festering spots, but most people felt that friendliness was a good bet. Today we distrust and sneer at everybody, everything. We go armed for bear. We expect trouble . . . and get it. Even worse, we think that "only saps believe in peace."

Nothing could be more stupid. The man who believes in hate and fear doesn't need an enemy to polish him off; he kills himself by his own secret festering. Those who live by the sword will die by it—and pronto! Those who hate will get what they expect by return mail, special delivery. Viciousness is the one investment that always pays 12 per cent.

Who's to blame for the fast-spreading trouble today? Not Hitler . . . or Mussolini . . . or Stalin. You and I are to blame for it. Every time we hate, every time we sneer, every time we envy, every time we unjustly suspect, we erect a Maginot line of hostility that's bound to react on ourselves. Haters are haters wherever you find them, and they're always a pain in the neck.

I'm no pacifist. Or sissy. But I tell you—this business of hate does not pay. It is possible for human beings to live at peace with each other. We Americans and Canadians have proved it. Without planning or boasting, we have hung up the greatest record in civilized neighborliness history has ever seen. If we can do it, Russia could do it, France could do it, Germany could do it, Italy could do it. It is not a matter of geography. It is a state of mind.

Hate is no longer necessary or intelligent. It is stupid and unnecessary. There are other and better ways of settling matters. People who hate in 1939 are savages, whether they live in New York or Somaliland. They should be treated as savages. There is no room or need in a civilized world for people who talk with guns.

Cooling Effects

It's the little things that make a house interesting, one store sign reads, and the surrounding merchandise follows out the idea by indicating little ways of preparing your house for hot weather. Even ash trays can add to the effect of coolness if, instead of heavy bronzed or thick china affairs, you use the light-toned sea shells made for the purpose. And instead of heavy hanging ornaments, try the strings of lacquered gourds and vegetables and crystal grapes that will assist in the cool country atmosphere set by your cotton draperies and furniture covers.

Glass Hats

For an unusual wedding present or an unusual addition to your own possessions, you can go in for collecting glass hats, which are being used in profusion for knickknacks, flower vases, or in the case of one huge crystal topper, to hold glasses and help you serve drinks in smartness.

New Sock Fad

Wearing bells on your toes will not be confined to nursery rhymes if the new sock fad catches on with junior and senior sock wearers. Instead of the bows many ankle socks boast on the cuff, these have tiny bells that jingle when you walk.

The SCREEN In REVIEW

By Colvin McPherson

GREAT things were expected of "Juarez," the new historical film at the Fox Theater, and to some extent, great things are realized. Any production which brings together the screen's premier character actor, Paul Muni, and its leading feminine dramatic star, Bette Davis, is of major importance. When such actors as Brian Aherne, John Garfield, Claude Rains and Donald Crisp are added to the roster, the result can't fail to enthrall.

So all persons who go to the Fox will be wined and dined on the very champagne and pheasant of acting. Muni adds to his astonishing representations of famous men, Miss Davis goes insane as magnificently as she went blind in "Dark Victory," Aherne will be remembered long through the sympathy he wins for his role.

Yet "Juarez" lacks the fundamental gift of any great picture, the magic of a thrilling tale cleverly related. The precious metals of its acting are never quite fused. The spectator goes away realizing he has seen something he wouldn't have wanted to miss, something he might wish to see again, but knows that he has not been informed very clearly about the tragic reign of that Austrian archduke, Maximilian, who was Mexico's Emperor from 1864 to 1867, and was sent to the firing squad by Benito Juarez, Mexico's national hero.

Attempts have been made before to get Maximilian and Juarez and Maximilian's Empress, Carlotta, into the same focus and have not succeeded. In Franz Werfel's play, "Juarez and Maximilian," Juarez was never seen. In Bertita Harding's historical novel, "The Phantom Crown," Juarez never came to court. Since the principals never faced each other in dramatic climaxes, not even capable screen play writers can do anything about it.

Moreover, the burning issues of the time are not brought to the fore. Even as "The Life of Emile Zola" soft-pedaled the fact that Dreyfus was a Jew, "Juarez" neglects to say that the Mexican patriot got in trouble by his measures against the Church and that the whole invasion of Mexico by foreign powers and establishment of Maximilian can be traced to that internal dissension. All evidence in "Juarez" attributes the affair merely to a whim of Napoleon III, hobby-horse Emperor of France.

To be sure, an issue of democracy versus monarchy is raised. In keeping with the 1939 fashion, when the glorification of Americanism sticks out like a bustle on every costume drama, "Juarez" has its surplusage of this showy material, but for no useful purpose.

The only character with a real problem, a real battle to fight is Maximilian. A true liberal, misled, misinformed, maneuvered into signing tyrannical measures and yet gallantly hoping to benefit Mexico and win the favor of her citizens, his is a truly noble and truly tragic figure. It is for this reason that Aherne, as Maximilian, steals the picture from both Muni and Miss Davis. His is the human interest, as well as the flashiest uniform, the curliest beard and the niftiest hair-do.

Muni, with flawless makeup of dark skin, straight, black hair and altered brow line, is the perfect representation of the great Benito Juarez, for whom one Benito Mussolini was named. As the quiet, stolid Zapotec Indian who traveled the country in black frock coat and top hat, who took his legal office as President of Mexico with him in a battered carriage, he is a fascinating figure. With a more central place in the film, he would win enthusiastic favor. Yet he has only one truly dramatic scene, that in which he enters headquarters of a rebel Mexican faction. The audience applauded it.

Miss Davis has little to do for 80 minutes of the film and 100 minutes have gone by before her mad scenes arrive. Young John Garfield makes an interesting Porfirio Diaz. Battles between the French and the Juaristas are the usual Hollywood hokum and Erich Wolfgang Korngold's musical score, far from being an aid to the picture, is more often an annoyance.

Not that it adds anything to the total, the Fox has a second feature, "Nancy Drew, Trouble Shooter." Bonita Granville and Frankie Thomas figure out another murder and get into several kinds of danger.

—o—o—

Tell No Tales

DANGER from one thing and another is always a staple product in the cinema and one used so often that any seasoned moviegoer soon takes the attitude of "You can't scare me." Take it from one who has gone for a lot of rides with gangsters, "Tell No Tales," at Loew's, can scare you, and plenty.

This is another of those crime stories in which a detective has to do his hunting without the aid of police, since he is wanted himself. This is another of those crime stories in which there is a damsel in distress and in which the opposition is bad, mean, wicked and stops at nothing. But that isn't all.

Leslie Fenton, director of the adventure, makes it a thriller in spite of all the foreknowledge. And whichever of three authors is responsible, "Tell No Tales" is a narrative richly filled with glimpses of big city life, surprising turns and, for once, hooray, culprits who are just culprits and not the Mayor and Board of Aldermen.

Melvyn Douglas and Louise Platt are the main performers. For future reference, Miss Platt is one of the young actresses most likely to succeed in the class of 1939.

—o—o—

The Gracie Allen Murder Case

LOEW'S has a comedy hodge-podge called "It's a Wonderful World," but the only other new item of very considerable interest in town is the "The Gracie Allen Murder Case," at the Ambassador. The killings, thought up by the late S. S. Van Dine, are real enough but Gracie's efforts at solution are hilarious.

"If you kill a man in this state," says Gracie to a suspect, "it's murder." And yet the biggest laugh of all comes when the daffy heroine uses a dial phone. See and appreciate.

So far as the Ambassador's other feature, "The Sun Never Sets," is concerned, I gathered nothing except that the British think a lot of their dear old Empire and that the Gold Coast of Africa is a region which very much resembles California.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Basil Rathbone are members of a fine old British family which sends its members all over the world to keep the sun from ever setting on British domain. Both lads in time go to the Gold Coast, where there's fever and ants, a fabulous deposit of molybdenum and a mysterious international figure, Lionel Atwill, whose plan is to goad the world into war with radio broadcasts and then make everybody pay a pretty penny for molybdenum. Well, his scheme doesn't work.

—o—o—

"Ex-Champ" and "Code of the Streets" are the two offerings at the St. Louis, along with the one-day revival today of "Wells Fargo." In "Ex-Champ," Victor McLaglen is a former tri-state titleholder who now is employed as doorman at the very apartment where his son, a Wall Street no-good, is courting a prominent debutante. In spite of all his humiliations, patient old Victor sticks by the lad and even jeopardizes the future of a young fighter, Tom Brown, to do it. "Code of the Streets" is another of the Dead End type of dramas, with some originality and individuality of its own.

"Only Angels Have Wings," that he-man drama of flying in South America, has been taken over by the Missouri and in addition to its hazardous exploits, has Jean Arthur to look at. "Young Mr. Lincoln," which didn't exactly electrify the Fox last week, but which is a humorous, poetic and highly worthy drama nevertheless, is with it.

STAGE PLAYS AND MUSIC

MUSICAL MERRYMAKERS IN PARK

OSCAR SHAW HAZEL HAYES BILLY HOUSE

'Queen High' at Opera For First Time This Week

"QUEEN HIGH," a musical comedy new to the Municipal Theater, although presented at the Garden Theater when it was in brief existence, will open in Forest Park tomorrow night, as the second production of the Municipal Opera season.

Adapted by Laurence Schwab and B. G. DeSylva from the stage farce, "A Pair of Sixes," "Queen High" tells the story of two partners in the garter business. One believes in keeping up with the trends of the time, the other is conservative. They decide to dissolve their partnership. A game of poker will settle everything, the winner to take the business and the loser to act as his butler for a year.

T. Boggs Johns, the loser, enters into his role of butler in a spirit of good sportsmanship, but George Nettleton, the winner, delights in humiliating him and he eventually rebels. By way of revenge, he starts making love to Nettleton's wife and it is Nettleton who wants to break the agreement.

Music to "Queen High," by Lewis E. Gensler, includes such tunes as "Cross Your Heart," "Everything Will Happen for the Best," "You'll Never Know," 'Don't Forget," "Beautiful Baby" and "It Pays to Advertise." The show opened originally in New York in September, 1926, and ran for almost a year.

Municipal Opera's cast for "Queen High" is made up of Oscar Shaw, Billy House, Earl Oxford, Duke McHale, Al Downing, Hazel Hayes, Doris Patston, Gladys Baxter, Melissa Mason and Una Val Castle.

Miss Hayes, a young prima donna with grand opera, concert, motion picture and radio experience, will be making her first appearances in Forest Park this week. She started her career singing in "Aida" with the Pacific Opera Company in Los Angeles, has sung with other companies in San Francisco and Canada and was chosen by Leopold Stokowski, renowned conductor, for the part of Brunnhilde in the Philadelphia orchestra's recording of the second act of Wagner's "Gotterdammerung."

She also has been guest artist with symphony orchestras in Boston, New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Havana, Portland, Seattle, Vancouver and Denver. In "Queen High," she has the romantic role of Polly Nettleton, niece of one of the partners.

Billy House, rotund comedian of "No, No, Nanette" and "White Horse Inn," returns as George Nettleton. Oscar Shaw, who was President Wintergreen of "Of Thee I Sing" last summer, rejoins the company as the other partner, T. Boggs Johns, Gladys Baxter, Melissa Mason, Duke McHale and Una Val Castle are other players returning this week.

Following "Queen High," the opera will present Robert Stolz' Viennese operetta, "Lost Waltz," which was introduced here last summer. Nancy McCord, Gladys Baxter, Eric Mattson, Jack Good and William Lynn, all members of the 1938 cast, will be seen again.

—o-o—

NOW driving ahead in its twenty-first season, Municipal Opera has the field of light opera pretty much to itself throughout the country. Two other such enterprises, in Louisville and Memphis, will not get under way until next month.

The Louisville productions, to be given in the Iroquois Amphitheater under direction of the Shuberts, begin July 3 with a revival of "The Student Prince." To follow in successive weeks are "Roberta," "Blossom Time," "The Gay Divorcee," "Bitter Sweet" and "No, No, Nanette."

At Memphis, the five shows are "The New Moon," "Roberta," "Babes in Toyland," "No, No, Nanette" and "Rose Marie." The season, under the direction of Reginald Hammerstein, begins July 7.

Some present and former Municipal Opera players are in the casts for the two Southern cities.

BETTY WILKINSON OF THE TOWN SQUARE THEATER'S "SEE NAPLES AND DIE."

Helen Hayes' New Play, With Herbert Marshall, Goes Into Rehearsal

REHEARSALS begin this week for Helen Hayes' new play, "Ladies and Gentlemen," in which she will be co-starred with Herbert Marshall, and which will open at the Curran Theater in San Francisco on July 10.

The focal point at present is Henry Miller's Theater in New York, where rehearsals will be held. Gilbert Miller, producer of "Victoria Regina" and many other hits, is presenting the show, which was written by Charles MacArthur, Miss Hayes' husband, and Ben Hecht. Settings are being designed by Boris Aronson.

Departing for the West Coast on July 1, the company will head directly for San Francisco. After a two weeks' run there, the play will go to the Biltmore in Los Angeles for two weeks beginning July 24. After that, it will return to New York for an early fall opening on Broadway.

Various stars have either opened plays on the West Coast in recent years or have found summer engagements there successful. The Lunts opened "Ampitryon 38" in San Francisco two years ago, Katharine Cornell in "St. Joan" and Gertrude Lawrence in "Susan and God," both found California audiences highly receptive to their plays immediately after New York runs were over.

Jack Benny Premiere At Waukegan June 25

Jack Benny's starring picture, "Man About Town," will have its world premiere in the comedian's home town, Waukegan, Ill., on June 25. The event follows on the heels of the Omaha world premiere of "Union Pacific" and the Springfield (Ill.) premiere of "Young Mr. Lincoln."

Benny, accompanied by his entire radio troupe and several members of the cast of the picture, will journey from Hollywood to Waukegan by special train. On the stage of the Genesee Theater, the comedian will present his last coast-to-coast radio program of the current season immediately prior to the showing of the film.

'Yeomen of Guard' To Be Central City Festival's Revival

CHARLES KULLMAN, Metropolitan Opera singer, will take the leading role of Col. Fairfax in the revival of Gilbert's and Sullivan's "The Yeomen of the Guard," which will inaugurate the eighth annual drama festival in the old Opera House at Central City, Colo. The two weeks' run begins Saturday, July 15. Also selected for the cast are Anna Kaskas and Hilda Burke of the Metropolitan, Natalie Hall and Richard Hale of Broadway musical background.

Robert Edmond Jones is consulting supervisor of the festival, with which he has been identified since it was inaugurated in 1932. Frank St. Leger will conduct the musical part of the production; Felix Brentano, noted Viennese director, will stage the show.

John Hoysradt, one of the favorites of New York's night club life will be an added attraction at the festival. Hoysradt will do his repertory of songs and comic monologues at the Teller House Night Club after the theater on Saturday and Thursday nights. The historic Teller House is owned and operated by Central City Opera House Association of the University of Denver, and adjoins the old stone Opera House.

Screen Hits From Flops On the Stage

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 10.

THE movies' new habit of converting flop stage plays into screen hits is apt to prove a bit disconcerting to the Broadway critics of the cinema, who would prefer to think the process always works the other way.

As a matter of unbiased record, there are points to be made on each side. It all boils down to the fact that the success of a play on the stage is no criterion of its fate on the screen. History may repeat itself, or reverse itself completely. As has been strikingly demonstrated with "Dark Victory," yesterday's stage flop may prove today's screen sensation.

When it was produced on Broadway in the fall of 1934, "Dark Victory" died a sad death after 51 performances, despite the fact that it had the advantage of a big name star in Tallulah Bankhead. Produced with Bette Davis in the Bankhead role, the screen "Dark Victory" is currently reaping a box-office harvest and bids fair to win another Academy award for Miss Davis.

"Dark Victory" is not an isolated example. The same studio, Warner Bros., took "Jezebel" and made a hit picture out of it, despite the fact that it made an even more dismal showing than "Dark Victory" as a stage play. "Jezebel," the records show, bowed off the boards after 32 performances. On the screen, it brought Miss Davis her second Academy award and was an outstanding artistic and box-office success.

Yet "Boy Meets Girl," an outstanding Broadway hit, did only fair on the screen, "Tovarich" never achieved its stage popularity, "Three Men on a Horse" was no such surefire winner in the movies as it had been on the Main Stem or the road, "Room Service," one of the highest priced play properties ever bought, was the kind of a flop Hollywood calls colossal. "The Shining Hour" failed to shine at the box office and "Having Wonderful Time" wasn't so wonderful, either.

"You Can't Take It With You," a Pulitzer prize play, was last year's outstanding picture success, however, and "Idiot's Delight," another prize play, did well. Hollywood continues to pay fancy amounts for proved Broadway material and right now has perhaps a dozen or more hit plays in various stages of purchase or preparation.

Failure of a stage hit in the movies, according to Producer Jack L. Warner, is sometimes due to the fact that Hollywood gets too enthusiastic and overestimates the play's screen possibilities. It may appeal to only a limited audience, may depend on smart dialogue, which is not enough in the movies, may lack action and visual appeal, which are highly important.

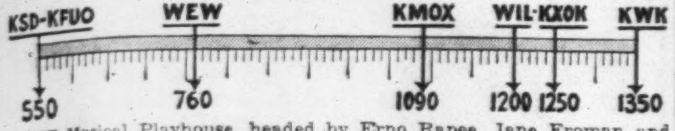
ST. LOUIS BROADCASTING STATIONS



THE Musical Playhouse, headed by Erno Rapee, Jane Froman and Jan Peerce, opens tonight on KMOX at 5:30. This summer musical revue replaces the Screen Guild Show which has been heard at this time. Except for guest appearances this program marks the first time that Rapee, Peerce and Miss Froman have appeared together in a series.

Dramatization of conservation work done by the Federal Government will be presented in "Democracy in Action" today at 12 noon on KMOX. The series, produced jointly by Columbia and the Office of Education of the Department of the Interior for the World's Fair Commission, is intended to interpret and supplement the Federal exhibits.

Dick Shelton and his University of Illinois dance band, a young organization of students and recent graduates of the university, will be the "orchestra of tomorrow" on the Bandwagon program on KSD at 5:30 this afternoon. This group of musicians will be heard in novelty numbers. Garry Morfit, 24-year-old master of ceremonies, will make his second appearance on the broadcast.

"The Piper," a satire on Irish super-patriotism by O'Riordan, will be heard during the Radio Guild hour tonight at 5:30 on KWK. The play, which is little known in this country, deals with the Irish rebellion of 1798. It was received coldly when first produced by its author, who is better known as Norrys Connell, at the Abbey Theater in Dublin with Sarah Allgood in the leading role. It has since been recognized as a classic.

FCC Permits Advertising on Short Waves

Clause in New Ruling Causes Raising of Censorship Protest—Here and There on the Air.

THERE are still rumblings in Washington and the broadcasting studios over the action by the Federal Communications Commission when, in lifting the ban against sponsored programs on the international short waves, it imposed a restriction requiring licenses of stations which aim their programs at foreign lands to "render only an international broadcast service which will reflect the culture of this country and which will promote international good will, understanding and co-operation." The cry of "censorship" was immediately raised in radio circles and taken up by some newspapers which said the rule was a species of governmental supervision that might readily be extended to domestic broadcasting.

While the prospect of commercial sponsorship on the short waves is slight, the ban was raised presumably to encourage the development of an improved international broadcasting service from the United States and at the same time promote foreign trade. The commission is requiring that all of the 14 international broadcasting stations of this country shall raise their power to 50,000 watts by Nov. 1. This means a cost of at least $100,000 per station in physical equipment. The assumption is that, in the absence of governmental subsidies of American broadcasting, all or part of this cost may be derived from sponsors seeking to promote export trade via short wave radio. However, the rule further reads that their "commercial program continuities give no more than the name of the sponsor of the program and the name and general character of the commodity, utility or service, or attraction advertised."

British stage and screen stars in New York and Hollywood are uniting in a one-hour radio program in honor of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England today at 1 o'clock over a coast to coast NBC-Red network. With Gertrude Lawrence as mistress of ceremonies a number of British born theatrical stars, among them Leslie Howard, Freddie Bartholomew, Herbert Marshall, Laurence Olivier, Dennis King, Judith Anderson, C. Aubrey Smoth, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Roland Young, Anna Neagle, Cissy Loftus, Basil Rathbone, Brian Aherne, Edna Best, David Niven, Norma Shearer and Madeleine Carroll will be heard. Music will be supplied by the NBC Symphony Orchestra and Ray Nobl and his band.

Gertrude Lawrence and Herbert Marshall will do a scene from "Private Lives." There will be bits from movie and stage hits, impersonations and popular numbers. Freddie Bartholomew will deliver an informal talk to the royal Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose. The performance of the British national anthem with Dennis King as soloist with the cast from both points joining in, will close the program. St. Louis listeners may receive the program on WENR and WMAQ in Chicago.

"Bright Shadow," written for Knickerbocker Playhouse by True Boardman, radio writer and co-producer of Silver Theater, Columbia Workshop and other network productions, will star Guy Robertson, formerly of the St. Louis Municipal Opera, in a leading role tonight at 8 p. m.

A new series of Saturday morning artist recitals will begin on the Columbia network and KMOX at 9:30 a. m. with a song recital by Suzanne Sten, young German mezzo-soprano. She will be accompanied by Leo Taubmann. Helen Jepson, American soprano, will introduce the soloist and explain the purpose and nature of these weekly broadcasts.

Final eliminations in the first Chicago Boys' Club Radio Guild Competition will be held in the audience studio of station WBBM, Chicago, on Monday, June 12. Casts victorious in the three Boys' Club center contests conducted on June 5, 7, 9 will compete in the finals for a chance to be heard over the air on Saturday, June 17.

The finals contest will not be broadcast, although a cast will be selected to give an All-Star performance of the required script on the air at 4:45 p. m. on June 17. In addition to the required script, more than 250 members of the Boys' Club have been competing during the past few weeks on scripts written by the boys themselves. They not only dramatize and write the scripts, but make their own sound effects for use on the air.

MEMBERS of the Group Theater will be heard again on the "Kate Smith Hour" on Thursday, June 15, at 6 o'clock. They will do "The House of Connelly," Paul Green's story of a tenant farmer and plantation owner in the modern South. It was one of the first plays of the Group Theater on Broadway. The radio adaptation of the play will include Morris Carnovsky and Roman Bohnen.

George Nygaard, member of Wisconsin's State Soil Conservation Committee, will be heard on KWK's Farm and Home Hour, Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. Other speakers are R. H. Musser, regional conservator, and R. H. Davis, in charge of flood control surveys for the Federal Soil Conservation service. . . . Conservation of natural resources and historical shrines is the theme of the "What Price America" episode on Saturday at 12 noon over the Columbia network. . . . Columbia's "Grand Central Station" has just added two stage stars to its cast. Mady Christians of "Henry IV," and Betty Garde of the late "Primrose Path."

Summer will be vacation time for a number of programs on the airlanes. Edward G. Robinson's "Big Town" will take a 10-week layoff after the broadcast on the fourth of July. "The Circle" with Madeleine Carroll, the Marx Brothers, Lawrence Tibbett and Bobbie Dolan will also vacation after the program of July 9.

BILLED IN NEW SUNDAY NIGHT CONCERTS

JAMES MELTON, THE TENOR, WHO IS TO SING IN THE SERIES WHICH REPLACES THE SYMPHONIC CONCERTS FROM DETROIT AT 7 O'CLOCK SUNDAY NIGHTS.

Trade Notes

Retail dealers will preview the 1940 advance Zenith radio line of home receivers in the Crystal Room at the Coronado Hotel during the week of June 12 according to J. Howard Klein, assistant sales manager of Electric Lamp and Supply Co.

The entire new line of radios which will be introduced will be equipped with the Wavemagnet, a new development tried out on one model in January of this year, which does away with aerials, antennae and ground wires. This new development permits the radio to be moved from one part of the house to the other since the radio is no longer anchored to an antennae and ground wire. The Wavemagnet also acts as a static eliminator since it reduces man-made static produced by motors, generators and other electrical devices.

This annual preview follows the National Distributor Convention which was held in Chicago a few weeks ago.

The entire sales, advertising and service organization of the Artophone Corporation, local distributors for Philco radios, attended the Philco national convention which was held at French Lick, Ind., last week showing the new 1940 line. Members of the Artophone Corporation which attended the convention were Herbert S. Schiele, Edwin Schiele, Earl Atwell, E. H. Beumer, George Rosner, Glen Allison, Paul Burks, F. H. Stuckwish, Ralph Winters, Al McClees, Bill Johnson, J. D. Wehrly, Stanley Bauer, Hal Rude and Walter Glusenkamp.

Tony Martin, young radio and screen singer, will be back on Good News of 1939 on Thursday at 7 o'clock. This is his first of three weekly guest appearances. Fanny Brice, Frank Morgan, Hanley Stafford and Meredith Willson and the Max Terr chorus, with Robert Young as master of ceremonies are heard.

James Melton Soloist in New Sunday Series

Tenor and Francia White to Sing on Programs Replacing Concert From Detroit at 7:00 P. M. Today.

THE series of summer programs replacing the concert from Detroit with James Melton, tenor, and Francia White, soprano, as soloists, is to begin at 7 o'clock tonight on the CBS network and KMOX. The singers will be supported by a chorus of 14 voices and an orchestra led by Don Voorhees. Voorhees and his orchestra, selected from the personnel of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, will be heard in popular music with emphasis on musical comedy and operetta selections. This mood will be maintained throughout the hour broadcast by Melton, Miss White and the guest artist.

Melton will be heard in "Our Love," "Play Gypsy Play" and "Love's Old Sweet Song." Miss White sings "If I Were on the Stage," and "Make Believe" from "Show Boat" will be sung in duet by the two soloists.

Nathaniel Shilkret, composer, conductor and musical authority will be guest conductor of the Magic Key orchestra today at noon on the NBC-Blue net and KWK. The program also features Dick Todd, singer, and a humorous sketch by the late Ring Lardner.

Assisted by a chorus and soloists, Shilkret conducts the orchestra in selections from Victor Herbert's operett. "The Red Mill." Among the numbers offered are "Moon Beams Shining," "Because You're You" and "The Streets of New York."

The fifth season of broadcasts from the Lewisohn Stadium will be inaugurated on Thursday evening, June 15, with Massimo Freccia, young Italian conductor, leading the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. Selections from the second half of the concert scheduled for broadcasting include Stravinsky's "Fire-Bird Suite" and Verdi's "Vesperi Siciliani" overture.

The second and third of these broadcasts will be on Thursday at this same hour. Thereafter the concert is to be moved to Wednesday at 7 p. m. Massimo Freccia who directs the opening concert made his debut at the Stadium last year. Conductors scheduled for later appearances include Efrem Kurtz, Erich Leinsdorf, Charles O'Connell, Fritz Reiner, Alexander Smallens and Frieder Weissmann.

Handel's Oboe Concerto in G minor, "Les Eolides" by Cesar Franck, and the Reformation Symphony by Mendelssohn have been scheduled by Howard Barlow for his symphony hour today at 1 o'clock on KMOX. Mitchell Miller will play solo oboe in the Handel work.

This is one of few performances of the Mendelssohn Symphony, written in 1829 for the tercentenary festival of the Augsburg confession, which accounts for the use of religious themes. One of these is the famous Dresden "Amen." The final movement contains Martin Luthers' well-known hymn, "Ein Feste Burg."

THE FIRST ANNUAL CONVENTION of Missouri Automobile dealers and representatives of finance companies will be held in St. Louis on Friday, June 16, at Hotel Chase. The principal speaker will be the Hon. Wright Patman, United States Congressman from Texas who will address the luncheon meeting at 12:15. L. Clare Cargile, senior vice-president of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, and a Chevrolet dealer in Texarkana, Ark., will speak on the subject of "What the Dealers Can Do to Lead Themselves Out of the Wilderness," at 2 o'clock. L. M. Stewart, Chrysler and Plymouth distributor of St. Louis will discuss "What Can a State Association Do for an Automobile Dealer?" at the morning meeting, while John H. Henderson, chief counsel of the sales tax department of the State Auditor's office at Jefferson City, will talk on the sales tax situation. Members of the Committee on Resolutions are L. M. Stewart, chairman; Fred A. Groves, Cape Girardeau; John T. McMullen, Columbia; Carl L. Lukeman, Hannibal; Roland H. Record, Kansas City; M. B. Roys, St. Joseph, and Claude E. Woodruff, Springfield. J. M. Allton of Columbia is president of the association, Joseph A. Schlecht is secretary, and George M. Berry is treasurer. W. J. Rasmussen is president of the Greater St. Louis Automotive Association.

W. M. PACKER HAS BEEN made vice-president of distribution of the Packard Motor Car Co., according to an announcement made yesterday by M. M. Gilman, president of the company. The new officer who is 44 years old has been an automobile sales executive for the past 14 years. He became city sales manager for Chevrolet in St. Paul and Minneapolis in 1925. He joined the Packard company in October, 1934, as sales manager for the One Twenty car and was made general sales manager in 1936. Activities of the company are divided into three divisions, distribution, manufacturing and engineering, with a vice-president in charge of each and under the direction of the president. Since Gilman's elevation to vice-president and general manager in 1934 and president in March of this year the post of vice-president of distribution had not been officially filled.

OFFICIALS OF THE HUDSON Car Co. announced the selection of letters written by Carl Jaeger of Denhard Motors, Inc., and Robert E. Knoblauch of the E. C. Miller Motor Co. of St. Louis as among the winning entries in the recent national sales essay competition held by Hudson. Salesmen in all types of communities in every part of the country entered the competition, presenting ideas and slants on selling problems which are to be included in the sales education program. Officials said the winning letters showed a fine knowledge of the fundamentals of salesmanship.

WILLIAM NEWMAN, WHOLESALE manager for the Arthur R. Lindburg Co., distributor for Studebaker cars, has appointed the Webster Groves Motors, 126 East Lockwood, Webster Groves, as a Studebaker dealer. Members of the firm are M. Lynch, president, and Paul Walker, vice-president, who have been in the automotive business for 17 years. The building on Lockwood contains more than 7500 feet of floor space and is completely equipped with parts and service for Studebaker cars.

ACCORDING TO CHARLIE Matthews of the General Tire Co., 3400 Washington avenue, St. Louis motorists who have visited the New York World's Fair declare that traveling in the family automobile is one of the most satisfactory ways of getting there. He has, therefore, established "excursion rates" on various lines of tires in his stock, making it possible for motorists who are so minded, to travel to and from the fair on safe fresh rubber at the opening of the summer season.

A FORD V-8 TRUCK WHICH has been driven 411,000 miles in uninterrupted service by W. O. Sloan of Huntington Park, Cal., has been placed on exhibition in the Ford Building at the Golden Gate Exhibit. The truck which has been used for 54 months by the S. H. Bacon Materials Co., is a 1935 model with a two-speed axle, trailing axle and special large sized dump body. In addition to hauling sand and gravel it has been used on a number of cement pouring jobs which required 24-hour a day service. A truck being shown at the New York World's Fair has more than 784,000 miles to its credit, accumulated in 56 months of service for the Petroleum Carrier Co. and its predecessor of Jacksonville, Fla.

GRAY CARS STAND SECOND only to black in preference of Oldsmobile purchasers, according to D. E. Ralston, general sales manager. "Black remains the most popular car finish," Ralston said. "It is chosen by approximately 30 buyers in every 100. But gray is running a very close second with a preference of 29 per cent. This last figure, however, includes two different shades, a light gray and a dark gray. The two grays have traded places in the popularity rating. In the 1938 model year, dark gray represented 13.2 per cent of our deliveries, against 16.9 per cent for light gray. Our latest color report shows dark gray is currently accounting for 18 per cent against only 11 per cent for light gray. The next most popular colors are light blue, green and dark blue, respectively. Trailing on the color popularity chart are brown, maroon, red and cream.

VACATION DAYS AGAIN place the accent on safety for the nation's youth in the minds of the public, says W. A. James, advertising and merchandising manager of the Hudson Motor Car Co. In urging the adoption of the "look out for each other" frame of mind in the prevention of accidents involving children playing in the streets, on bicycles, and roller skates, James cited the need for mutual watchfulness. This was amply proved in a series of safe-braking demonstrations conducted under police supervision, he said. Cities where safe stopping demonstrations were held showed a decline in accidents. It is said that Hudson will continue to use a portion of its advertising appropriation in the promotion of child safety on the streets.

CHEVROLET'S SIXTH AND largest post-graduate school of modern merchandising and management opened in Detroit this week. With a total enrollment of 32, including three men from foreign lands, the retail business management school began an eight-week course which will touch on every phase of automotive dealership operation. All students are sons or relatives of Chevrolet dealers. Far-off lands are represented in the foreign contingent, students being registered from South America, South Africa and England.

The school is the outgrowth of research conducted by William E. Holler, Chevrolet general sales manager. Honorary lecturers who have appeared before past sessions of the school include Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the board of General Motors; William S. Knudsen, president General Motors; M. E. Coyle, general manager, Chevrolet; C. F. Kettering, director of research, General Motors; R. H. Grant, vice-president General Motors; James D. Mooney, vice-president General Motors, in charge of overseas operations; Graeme K. Howard, general manager General Motors Overseas Corporation; Albert L. Deane, general manager motors holding division, and Charles E. MacTavish, general sales manager, G. M. Products of Canada, Ltd.

NEARLY ONE THOUSAND Ford dealers and salesmen from the St. Louis branch area of the Ford Motor Co. attended a celebratiodn luncheon meeting in the Jefferson Hotel last Monday. The event was arranged as a "thank you" party for the dealers and salesmen in recognition of their steady gain in sales during the months of April and May. "Each month in 1939 has been better than the previous and May considerably exceeded expectations," stated M. N. Johnson, manager in St. Louis. "We were very much gratified to be able to recognize the enterprise of our St. Louis dealer and salesman organization in this manner." Johnson addressed the dealers and salesmen, giving them details of a June and July sales program which includes payment of all dealers and salesmen of an extra bonus if they make the quota assigned them for the two-month period.

TESTING AUTOMOBILE brakes on outdoor ice with the thermometer reading well over 70 degrees, is a novelty for Los Angeles where ice is usually found only in refrigerators. The tests were conducted on the ice at the year-round skating rink to show the ability of the hydraulic brakes of a 1939 Ford V-8 to bring the car to a fast, straightline stop without sideslipping. With attendants on ice skates the car was put through a series of straight stops and twisting skids at various speeds. Straight stops were attributed to the equalized action of the car's hydraulic braking mechanism.

A CAMPAIGN TO ELIMINATE unsafe tires will shortly be launched according to an announcement made by the Rubber Manufacturers' Association recently. The campaign will promote highway safety by educating the motorist on the necessity of having tires in good condition. Because of the success of the campaign in a few market centers, it has been decided to place the movement this year in the hands of local committees in the principal markets of country.

BUICK'S METHOD OF COIL springing its cars on all four corners minimizes the tendency to skid on wet or icy pavements or when a rear tire blows out, its engineers report. In tests when rear tires of a Buick traveling 70 miles per hour were purposely exploded, there was virtually no sidesway, they say.

GENERAL of the ARMIES

THIS is the first reproduction of the only full-length portrait in existence of General John J. Pershing in his dress uniform as General of the Armies of the United States. Completed several months ago, the picture was painted by the noted American artist Leopold Seyffert of New York, who, like Pershing, is a native of Missouri. It was painted from life, the sittings being held in Washington. This new portrait of the commander of the American Expeditionary Force in the World War is life-size; the canvas measures 90 inches by 55 inches. Seyffert made the picture at the instance of a group of St. Louisans. It will be hung in the Soldiers' Memorial here.

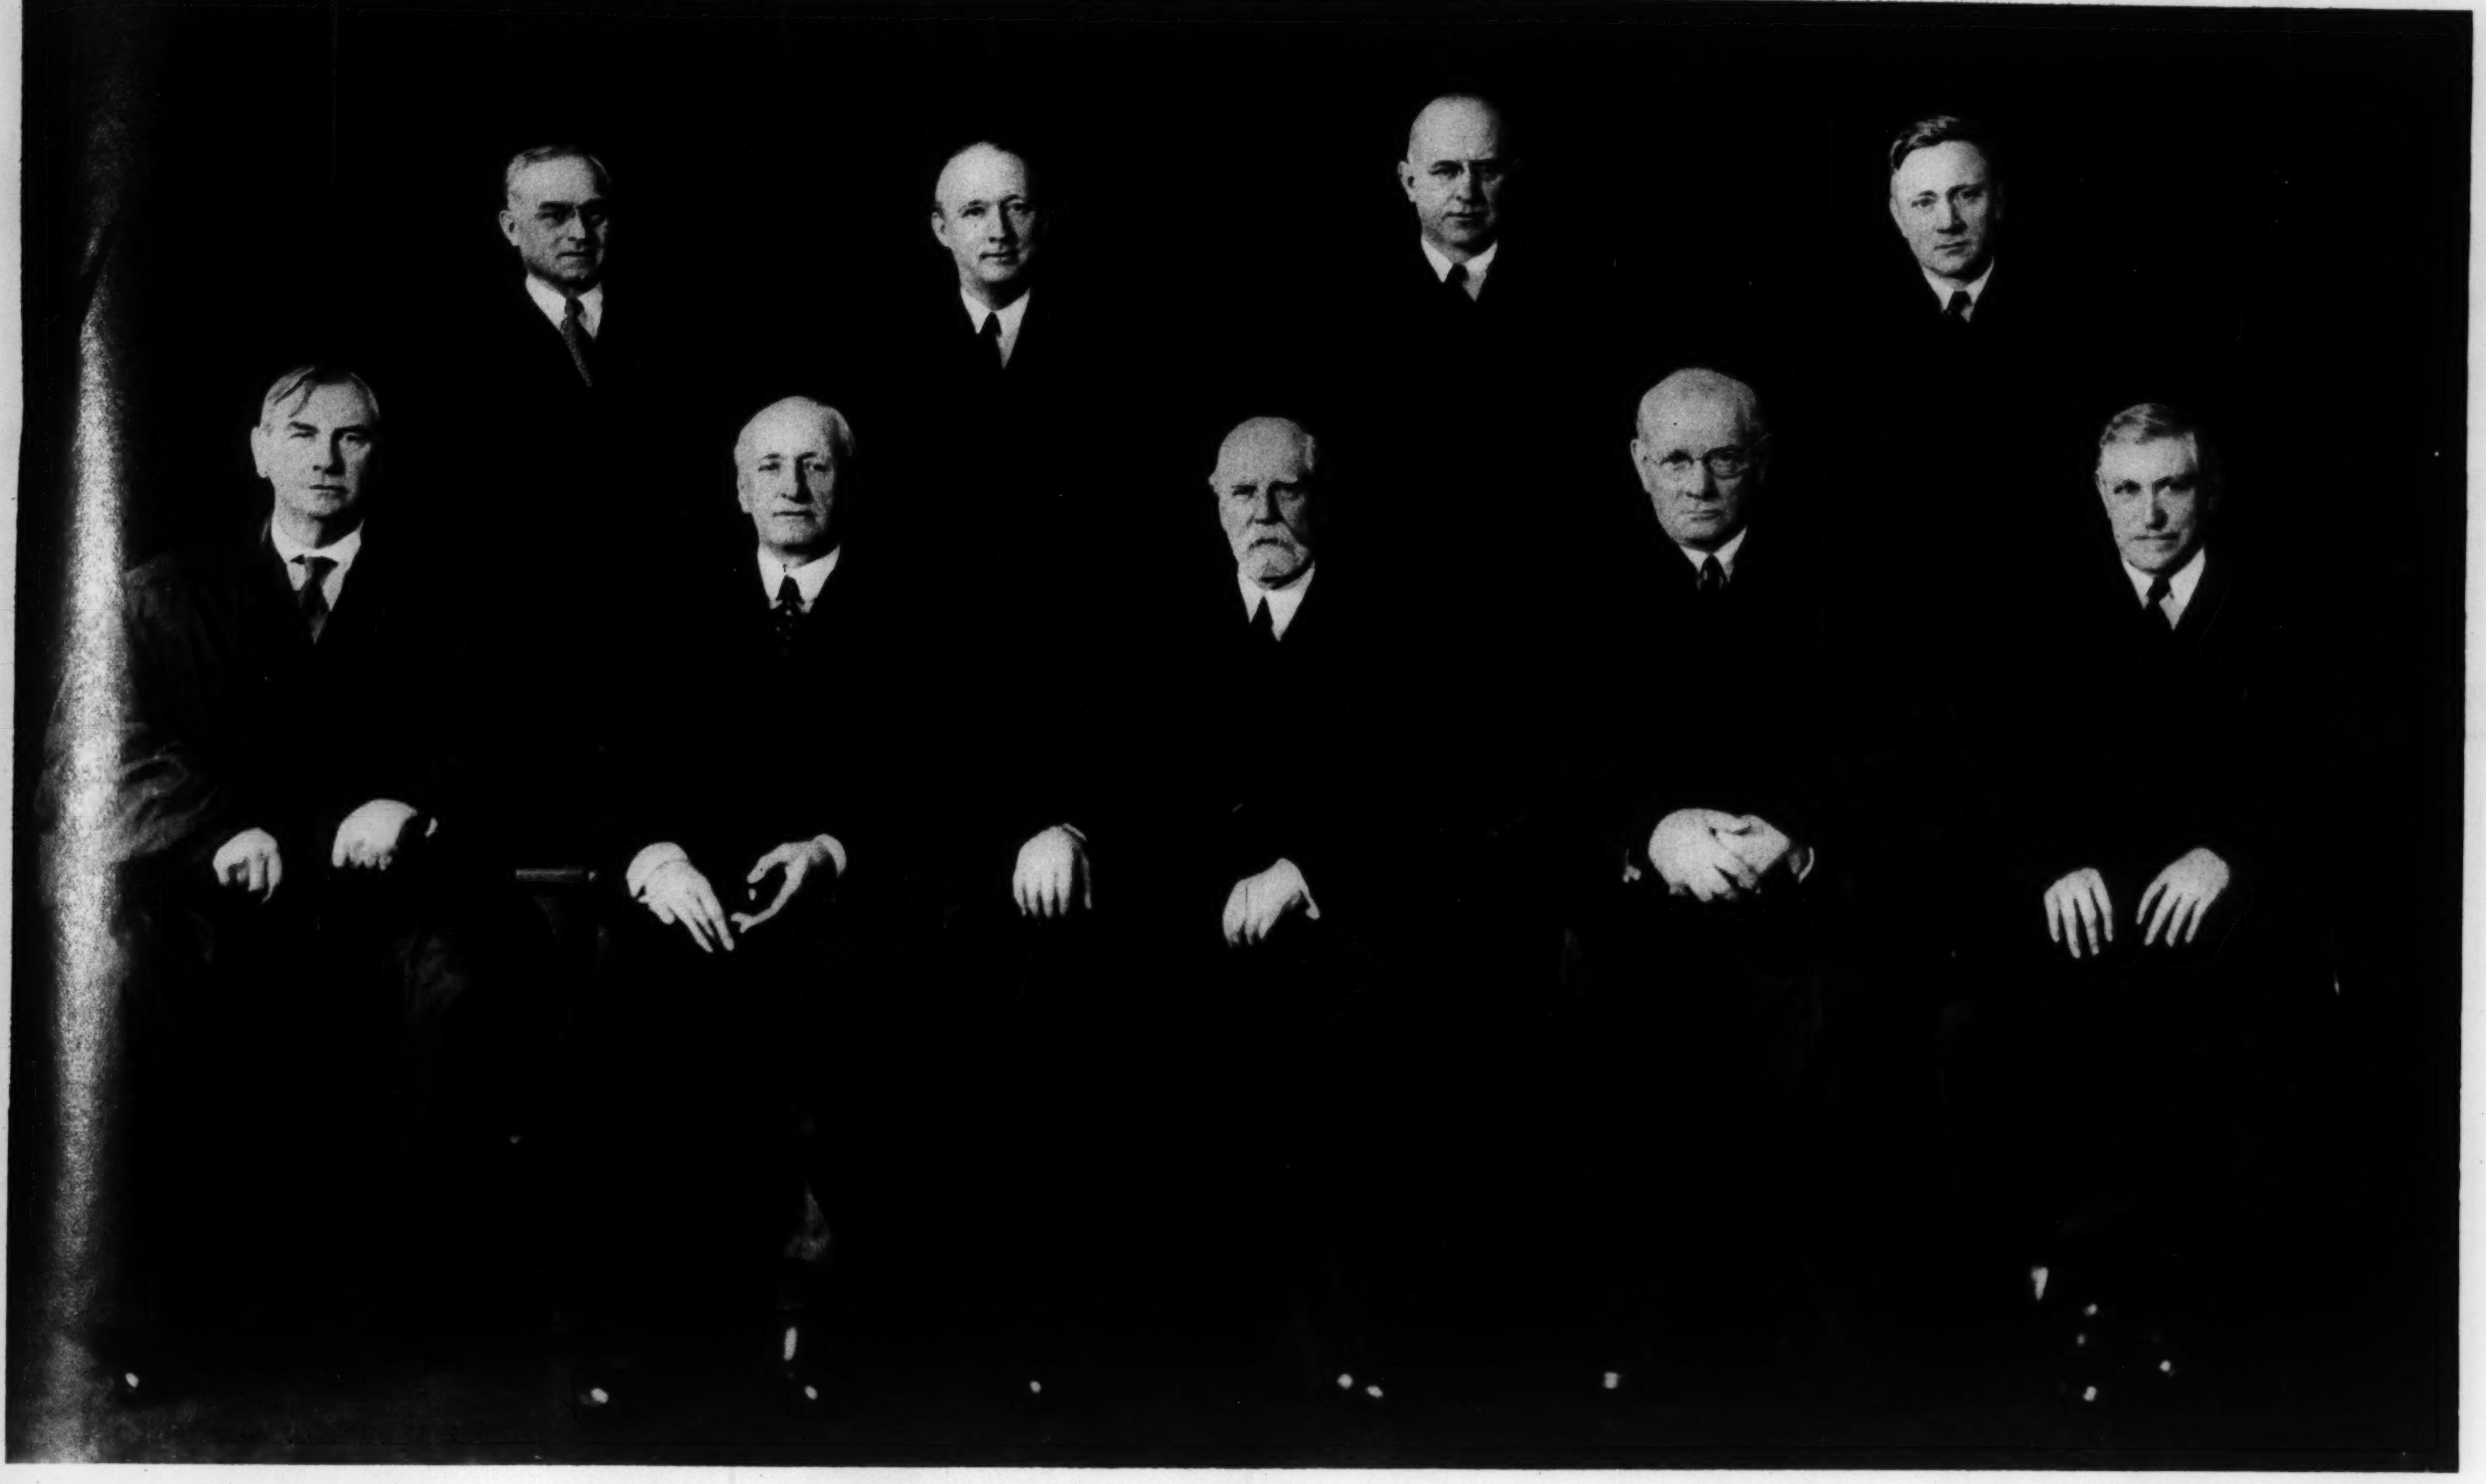
The Supreme Court Rules Against Boss Hague



A recent picture of the United States Supreme Court, and the first since Justices Reed, Frankfurter and Douglas were seated. It is, therefore, a new picture of an essentially new Supreme Court which in the C I O vs. Hague decision acted on the view of Justice Frankfurter that members should express themselves individually. Of the seven Justices who participated in this decision, five wrote separate opinions. Left to right, front row: Associate Justices Harlan Fiske Stone and James Clark McReynolds, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, Associate Justices Pierce Butler and Owen J. Roberts. Rear row: Associate Justices Felix Frankfurter, Hugo L. Black, Stanley F. Reed and William O. Douglas.

IN A DECISION directed specifically at Mayor Frank Hague's despotism in Jersey City, the United States Supreme Court last week struck a heavy blow at local political tyranny throughout the nation. For in affirming the jurisdiction of a United States District Court in the Jersey City case, it held that citizens anywhere whose fundamental civil rights are invaded by local officers may seek protection in the Federal courts, no matter what the monetary value of those rights. And it held the Jersey City ordinance at issue, which required permits for public meetings and under authority of which Mayor Hague has long prevented in his town public expression of views he didn't like, to be in violation of those rights and therefore unconstitutional and void. The ordinance violated, a majority of the court ruled, rights of free speech and free assembly guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution. The decision, which upheld an injunction against Jersey City officials obtained by the C I O, the Civil Liberties Union and others, also noted that the Jersey City ordinance forbidding distribution of handbills was void, in accordance with a recent decision in another case.

The Jersey City decision was notable also for illustrating the current tendency of Supreme Court Justices to make public their individual views—which Justice Frankfurter recently called a "healthy practice." In this case Justice Roberts and Justice Black, sustaining the lower court decree, had one opinion; Justice Stone and Justice Reed, also holding the ordinance unconstitutional, had another; Chief Justice Hughes, concurring, agreed in part with each section of the majority; Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented, each in his own opinion. Justices Douglas and Frankfurter did not participate.

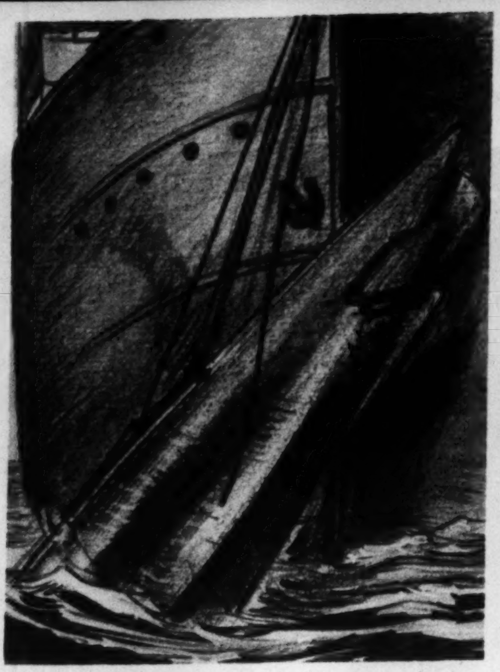
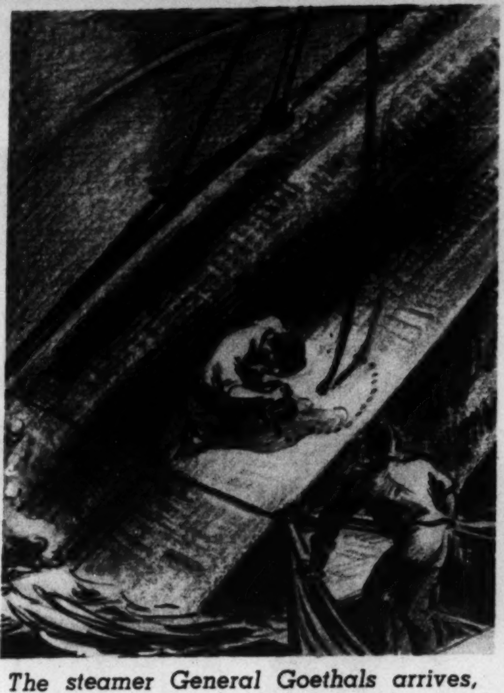
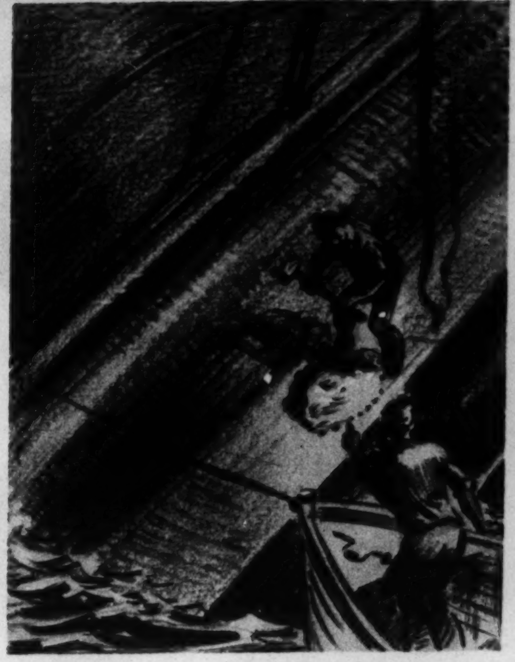
A handkerchief on a pole projecting from a hole in the stern of the S-5 attracts the attention of a passing ship. A small hand drill was used to pierce the exposed part of the metal hull. It took 12 hours.



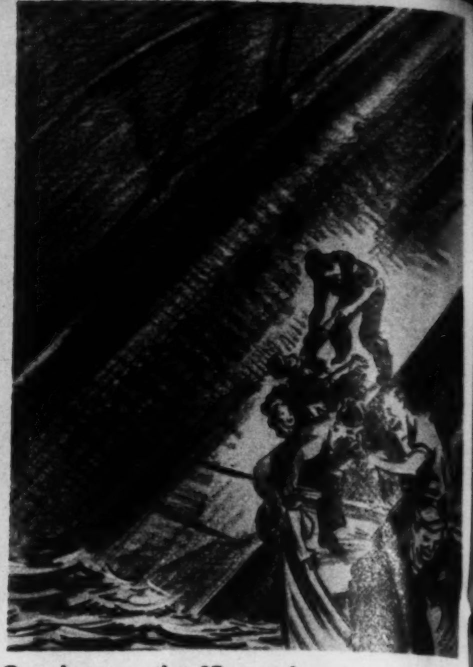
The steamer Alanthus holds the submarine's stern above water by cables, while it pumps air to the prisoners with a small hand pump. Unequipped for salvage, the Alanthus signaled for additional help.



The steamer General Goethals arrives, sends out the chief engineer and an assistant with a hand rachet, sole available instrument, to free the crew. After many hours 56 holes gave the men oxygen.



A sledge hammer is used to knock out the center of the circle formed by the holes, make a single hole big enough for a man to pass through.



One by one the 37 members of the submarine's crew emerge from their prison. It is only 37 hours after the S-5 went down, although all rescue equipment was impromptu and the rescuers ordinary American seamen.

ALL SAVED ON THE S-5

A Triumph of American Ingenuity in an Emergency That Paralleled the Thetis Disaster

STRANGELY parallel to the sinking of the British submarine Thetis in Liverpool Bay off the Welsh Coast was the loss of the United States submarine S-5 off Cape Henlopen, Delaware, September 1, 1920. Chief difference was that only four men of the 103 aboard the Thetis, which lay in 130 feet of water, were saved; all 37 men aboard the S-5, which went down in 165 feet of water, were rescued. Had there been 103 on the S-5, they would have been saved as easily as the 37. And it was all due to the ingenuity of the American crew of the S-5 and their meagerly equipped rescuers.

The Thetis was discovered 18 hours after it went down, by one of the ships sent to search for it. It was a full 25 hours before the passing steamer Alanthus spotted a handkerchief on a pole, heard the crew of the S-5 calling through a single small hole they had bored by hand drill from inside of the stern that projected above water. The Alanthus made the stern of the S-5 fast to keep it high, pumped in air until the steamship General Goethals arrived and provided a ratchet drill with which the hull was pierced, the crew released. Stern of the Thetis also was above water, but the four sole survivors came out by an escape hatch, with Davis lungs. No effort was made for five hours to raise the Thetis' stern, and then "the wires parted." Six hours later a similar effort resulted similarly, although numerous rescue vessels were at the scene. A final attempt to raise the stern 13 hours later cut away the marking bouy, dropped the stern below water level, lost the Thetis to rescuers for four hours. After that the British Admiralty gave up hope for those still imprisoned.

Familiar and Unfamiliar Spots Now Attracting Restless Vacationists

Beautiful America

THE United States is richly endowed by nature as a vacation land. Its wide variety of climate and scene, its wealth of dramatic scenery, natural wonders, gigantic works of man like the Boulder, Tennessee Valley and Grand Coulee dams; the creation and improvement of national and state forests; and the development of facilities for tourists everywhere have combined to make it ideal for providing refreshing changes of scene for the vacationist.

More and more Americans are visiting beautiful America. The business of catering to vacationists in this land has risen to the billion dollar class. The person who wants to get away has almost an unlimited choice. He can loaf at summer resorts in Michigan, Wisconsin, New England, the Ozarks, or Colorado. He can motor through the vast West, with its plains and painted deserts, awesome mountains and canyons. He can live a strenuous life fishing, boating or on a dude ranch. He can explore the excitement of strange cities, visit the two great fairs, the California tourists' paradise, or cruise leisurely about the Caribbean, or the Great Lakes. Even Americans who have been abroad are finding places in their own country to equal in interest anything they have visited in Europe. Many are finding "See America First" a good slogan.

THE REAL MASON AND DIXON LINE

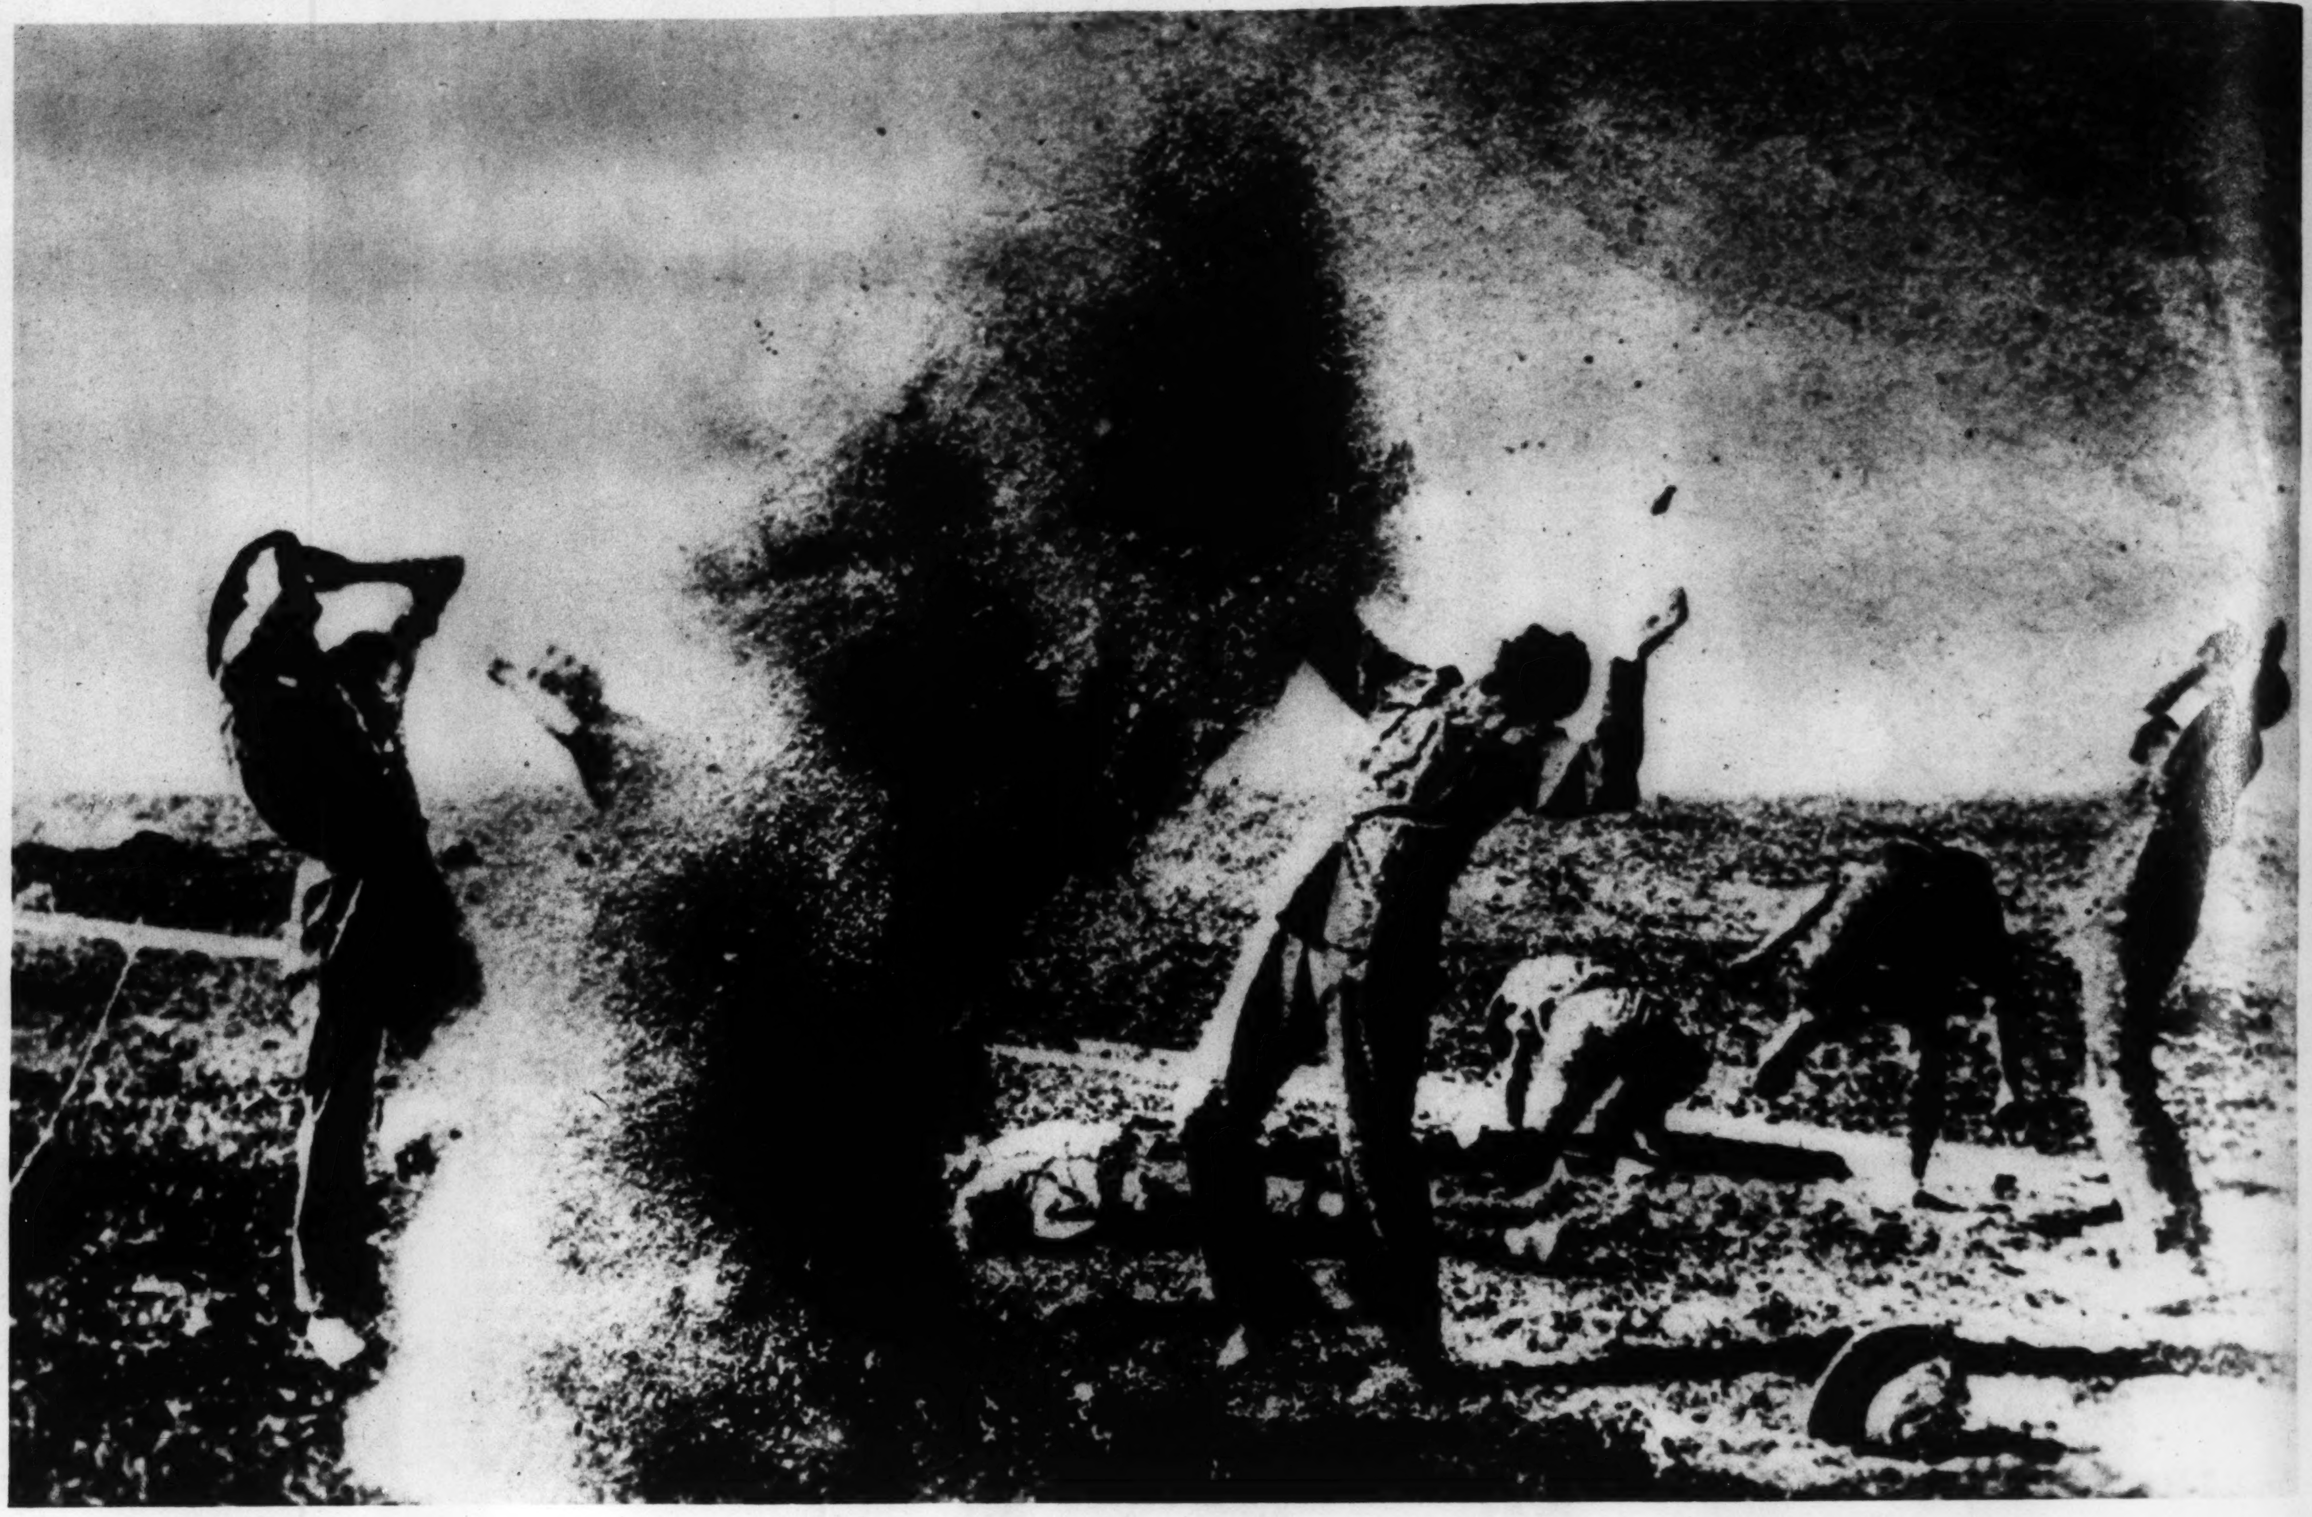
A Falling Bomb Clicked the Camera



This remarkable World War photograph, which has come to light after more than 20 years, shows a shell bursting among a group of Australian soldiers near Beirut, Palestine, in 1918. Harold E. Richards, one of General Allenby's troopers, had focused his camera for a snapshot of a group of his comrades and was about to take the picture when the shell arrived. As he fell, wounded, from the horse on which he was seated, he dropped the camera. Apparently, the explosion opened the shutter as the camera fell, recording the scene shown. All but one of the soldiers in the picture were severely wounded by shrapnel, and Richards' horse was killed.

Stockings Made From Coal, Air and Water

AT A RECENT exposition of the American Retail Coal Association in Chicago, Miss Naomi Anderson wore for the inspection of the coal dealers a pair of copper colored stockings whose cost was estimated at $250,000. They were made of a new material called nylon, a product of coal, air and water, and the high cost assigned to them takes into account the expense of developing the material in the laboratories of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours plant at Wilmington, Delaware. Nylon is represented as stronger, finer and more elastic than silk. Nylon stockings are expected to be on the market in about a year, costing at least $2 a pair. Increased production may lower them to 25 cents.

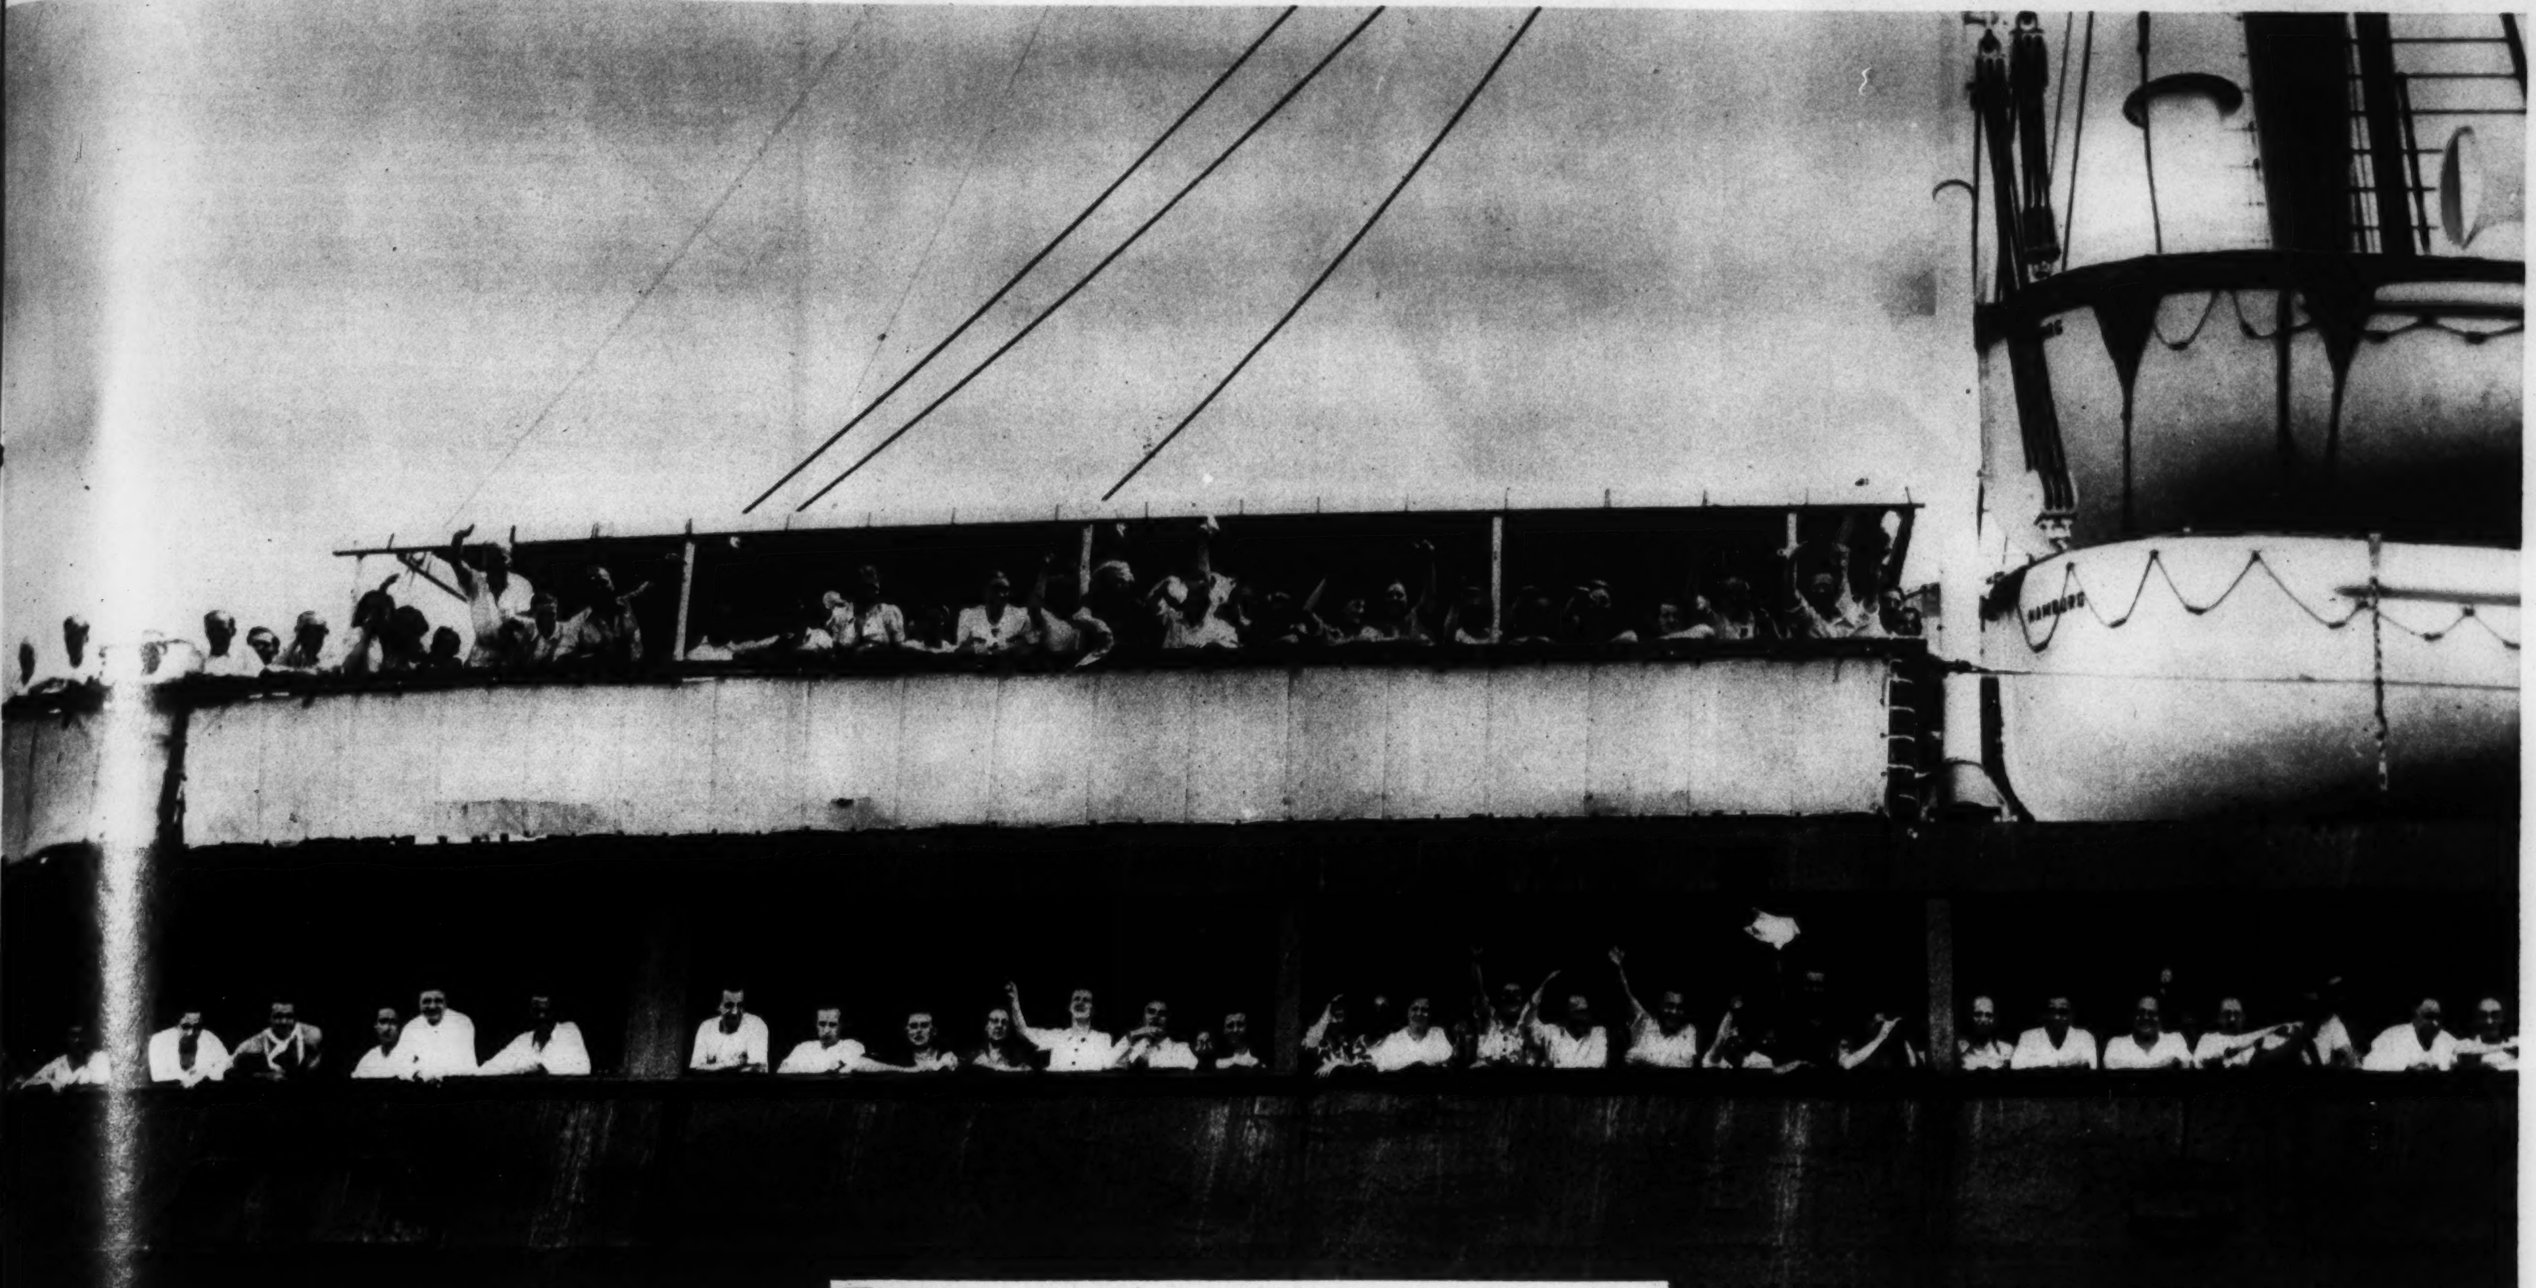
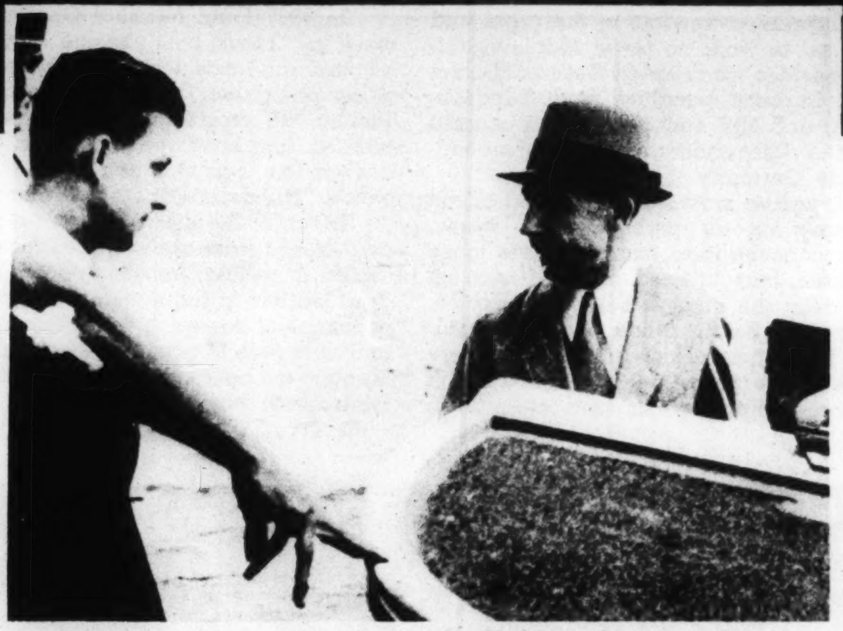
Jewish Wanderers Turned Back on Germany



Jewish refugees from Germany on the German liner St. Louis as it steamed out of Havana harbor by order of the Cuban Government. The smiles and hand-waving indicate they had not yet abandoned hope they would be allowed to land.

A few of the 907 passengers forbidden to land in Cuba. There were 500 women and 150 children in the shipload.



Captain William Schroeder of the Hamburg-American liner St. Louis going ashore at Havana to confer with Cuban officials.

THE international problem created by the efforts of Jews to emigrate from Nazi Germany has been poignantly dramatized by the experience of a shipload of refugees who sailed from Hamburg May 15 on the German liner St. Louis, seeking haven in Cuba. They found themselves barred from Cuban soil; while the ship lay at anchor or cruised uncertainly near that island they failed to arrange for sanctuary elsewhere, and last week they were on their way back to Hamburg. Of the 937 refugees, the Cuban Government had allowed only 30 to land—including a man who was placed in a hospital after he had tried to commit suicide over the prospect of returning to Germany. The remaining 907, of whom 500 were women and 150 children, were denied admission to Cuba on the ground they did not have the proper papers, their Immigration Department provisional permits to land as passengers on the way to the United States having been annulled by a decree of President Laredo Bru shortly before they left Hamburg. Efforts to modify Cuba's stand were unsuccessful, and Cuban authorities ordered the liner out of Havana harbor. While the ship hovered in the vicinity, the Dominican Government offered to admit the refugees for $500 each; but many of them were said to be penniless. About the time the refugee ship started the return trip to Hamburg, taking its despairing passengers back to whatever fate awaited them in Germany, other Jewish refugee groups were refused admission to Paraguay, Argentina, Mexico and Costa Rica. The quota list for immigrants to the United States from Germany is filled far ahead. The situation was complicated further by charges made by an American Jewish group that extortion was practiced both in Germany and Cuba upon the refugees.

Anti-Nazi Propaganda in Germany

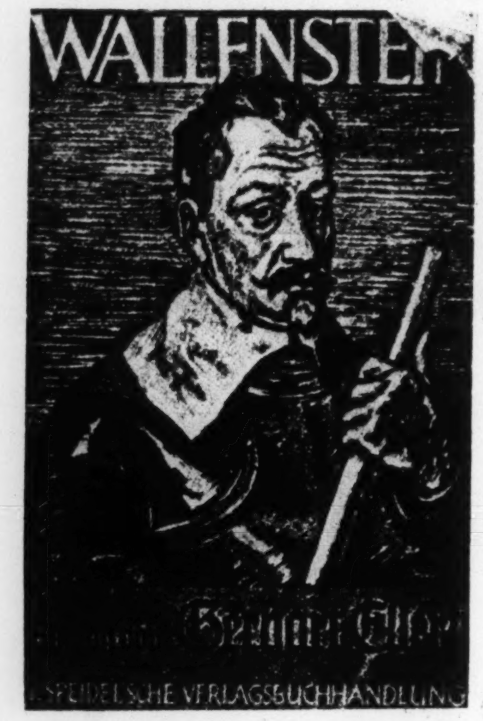
THE Nazi Government has suppressed freedom of the press and speech among its citizens, set to work no fewer than five different police organizations besides the dreaded Gestapo (Secret Police) to ferret out offenders, imposed penalties from imprisonment to death for those caught, and still nation-wide propaganda machines manage to carry on their daily undercover work of spreading anti-Nazi propaganda inside Germany.

To distribute their material, agents must be skillful and adroit at every turn. The headsman's ax—or perhaps even worse, imprisonment and torture in a concentration camp—awaits those who slip. In outwitting the Nazis, camouflaged material such as that shown on this page has been the most widely used device. Thus during the Olympic games in Berlin, guide books identical in outward appearance with the official Nazi guide book were circulated, but inside the cover were pages setting forth explicit information about concentration camps, arrests and executions.

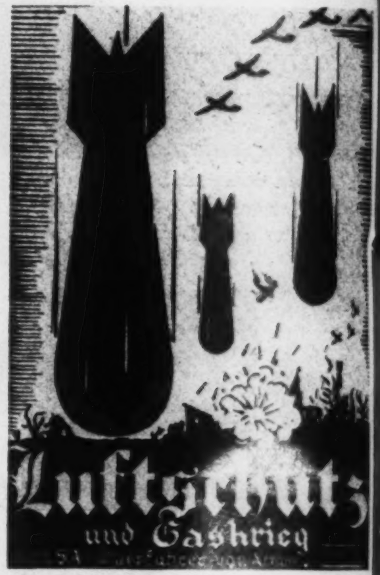
In 1937 Field Marshal Goering planned to carry out a whole week of "black outs" in the cities as practice against air raids, but the anti-Nazis took advantage of the darkness to distribute so many pamphlets that they were called off after the first night. In Vienna the propagandists imitated the Nazis' own pre-Anschluss method, and scattered thousands of bits of round paper on which a swastika was stamped. But the symbol was made out of the words "Hunger, War, Oppression."

Much of the literature is printed in Germany itself, but a great deal comes from abroad, particularly from Paris. Presses are concealed in cellars, forests, even graveyards. Speeding motorcycles drop leaflets in the streets. Sympathetic railroad workers conceal packages of papers in coal bunkers. Sailors hide them aboard ship until it is safe to smuggle them ashore. Daring persons sometimes manage to chalk up slogans on buildings. The work is occasionally interrupted, but never ceases.

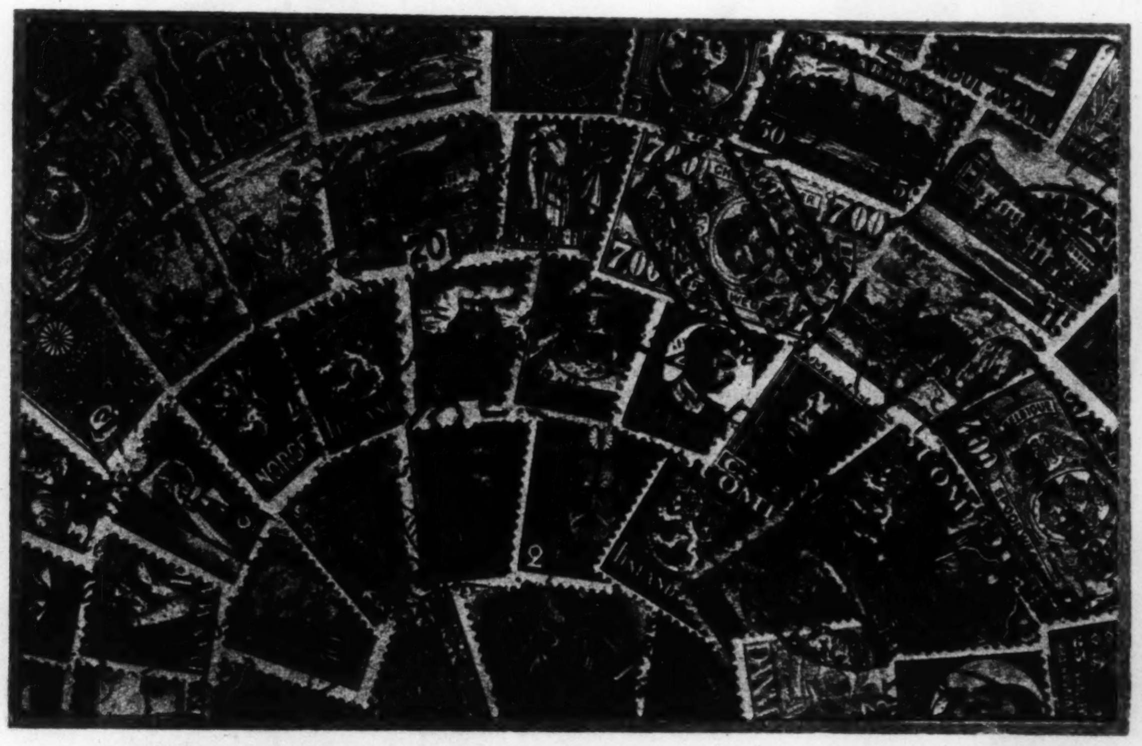
(Pix Photos)



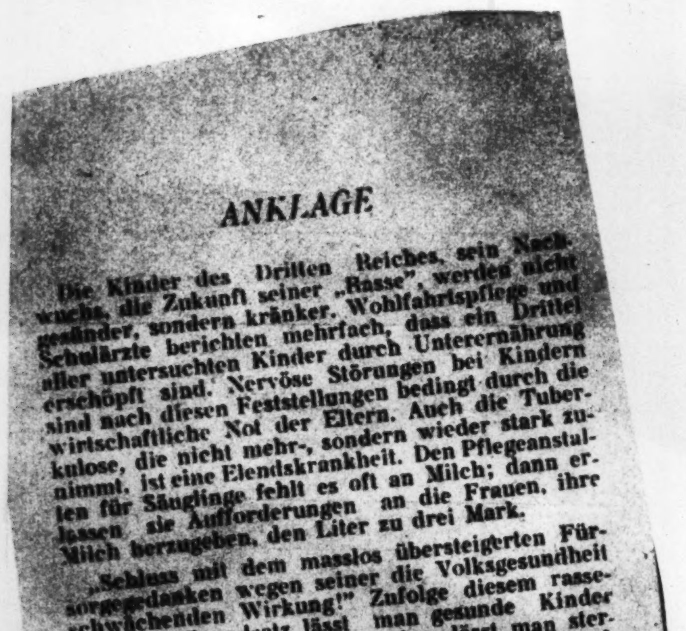
Inside this ordinary booklet cover is an attack on Hitler.



This is the cover of the official Nazi handbook for protection against air raids and gas, but the contents expose "German vulnerability" to air attack.



Behind a screen of stamps for sale in a packet, a pamphlet recites extracts from speeches by English political figures attacking Nazi methods.



ANKLAGE

Die Kinder des Dritten Reiches, sein Nachwuchs, die Zukunft seiner „Rasse", werden nicht gesünder, sondern kränker. Wohlfahrtspflege und Schulärzte berichten mehrfach, dass ein Drittel aller untersuchten Kinder durch Unterernährung erschöpft sind. Nervöse Störungen bei Kindern sind nach diesen Feststellungen bedingt durch die wirtschaftliche Not der Eltern. Auch die Tuberkulose, die nicht mehr-, sondern wieder stark zunimmt, ist eine Elendskrankheit. Den Pflegeanstalten für Säuglinge fehlt es oft an Milch; dann erlassen sie Aufforderungen an die Frauen, ihre Milch herzugeben, den Liter zu drei Mark.

Grundsatz lässt man gesunde Kinder Menschen lässt man ster-
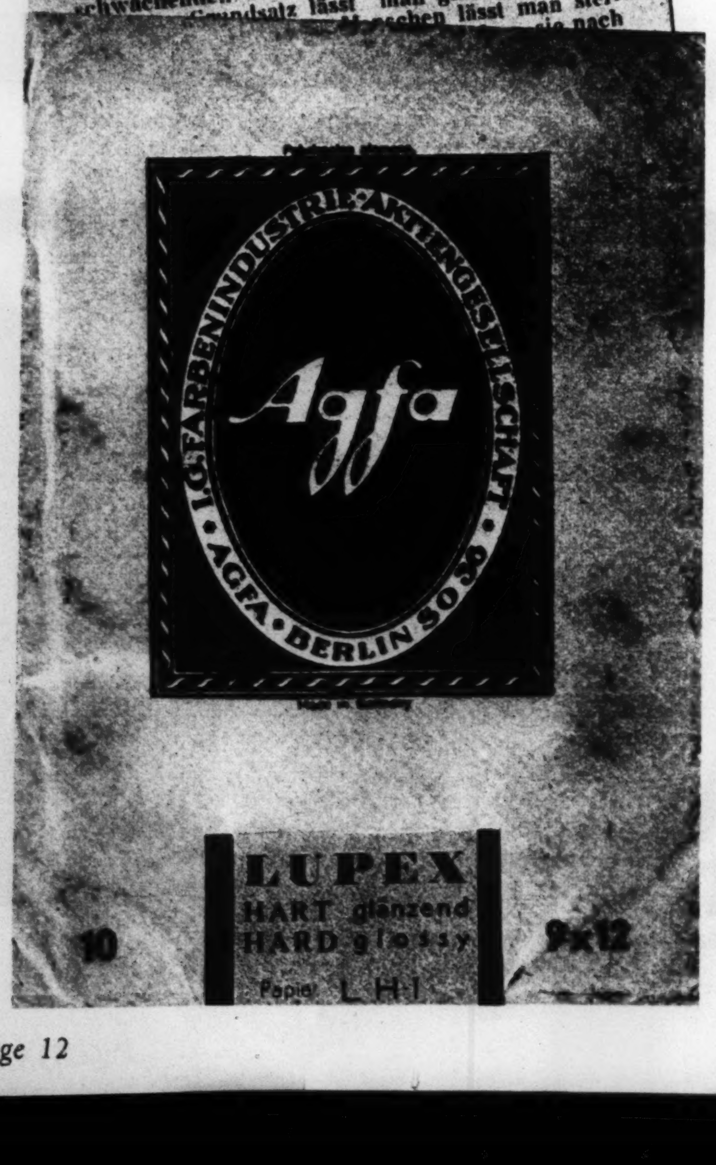
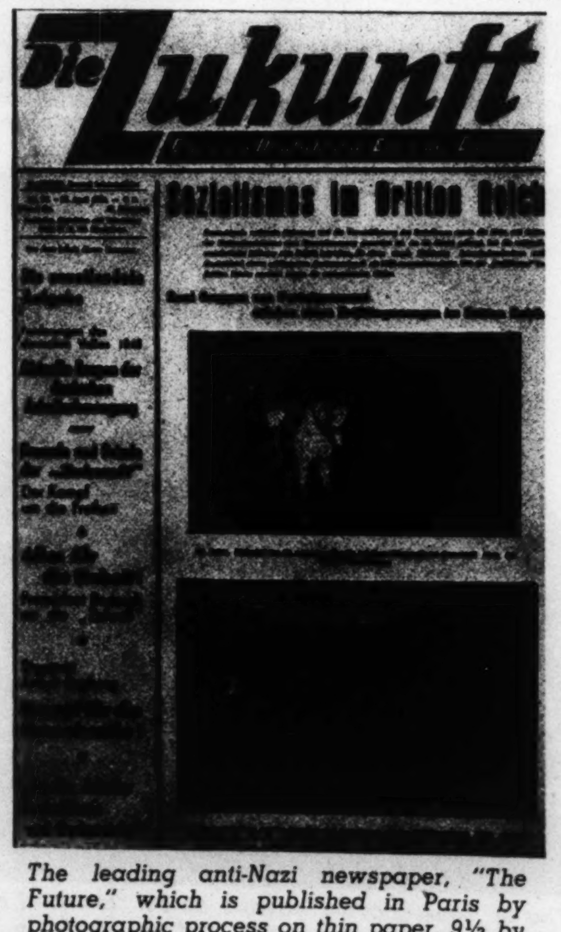
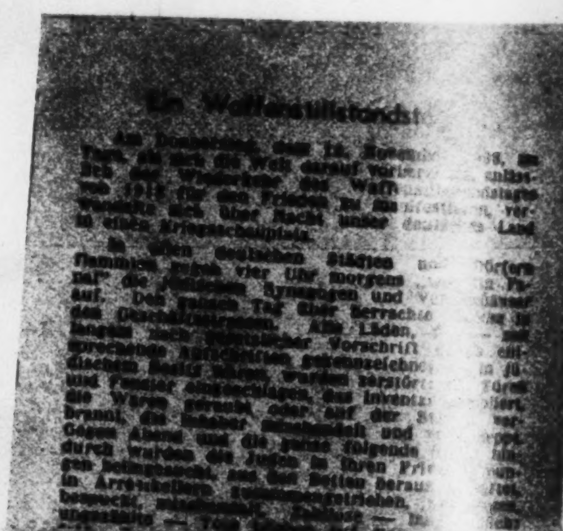
sie nach

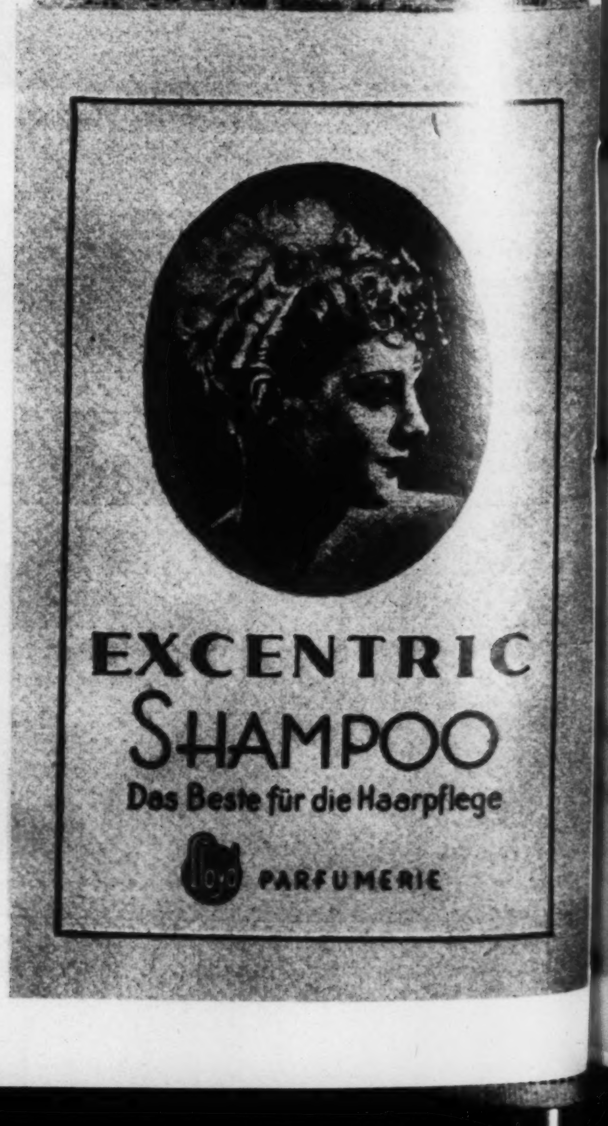


Apparently a package of photographic papers, this one contains a pamphlet assailing Nazi statements of the health of the country's youth. It states that a "third of the school children examined by State physicians are suffering from malnutrition," tuberculosis is on the rise, that the Milk Bureau often runs out of milk for nursing children, then orders mothers to sell theirs for three marks a quart.



The leading anti-Nazi newspaper, "The Future," which is published in Paris by photographic process on thin paper, 9½ by 6¼ inches, and sent through undercover channels to Germany.



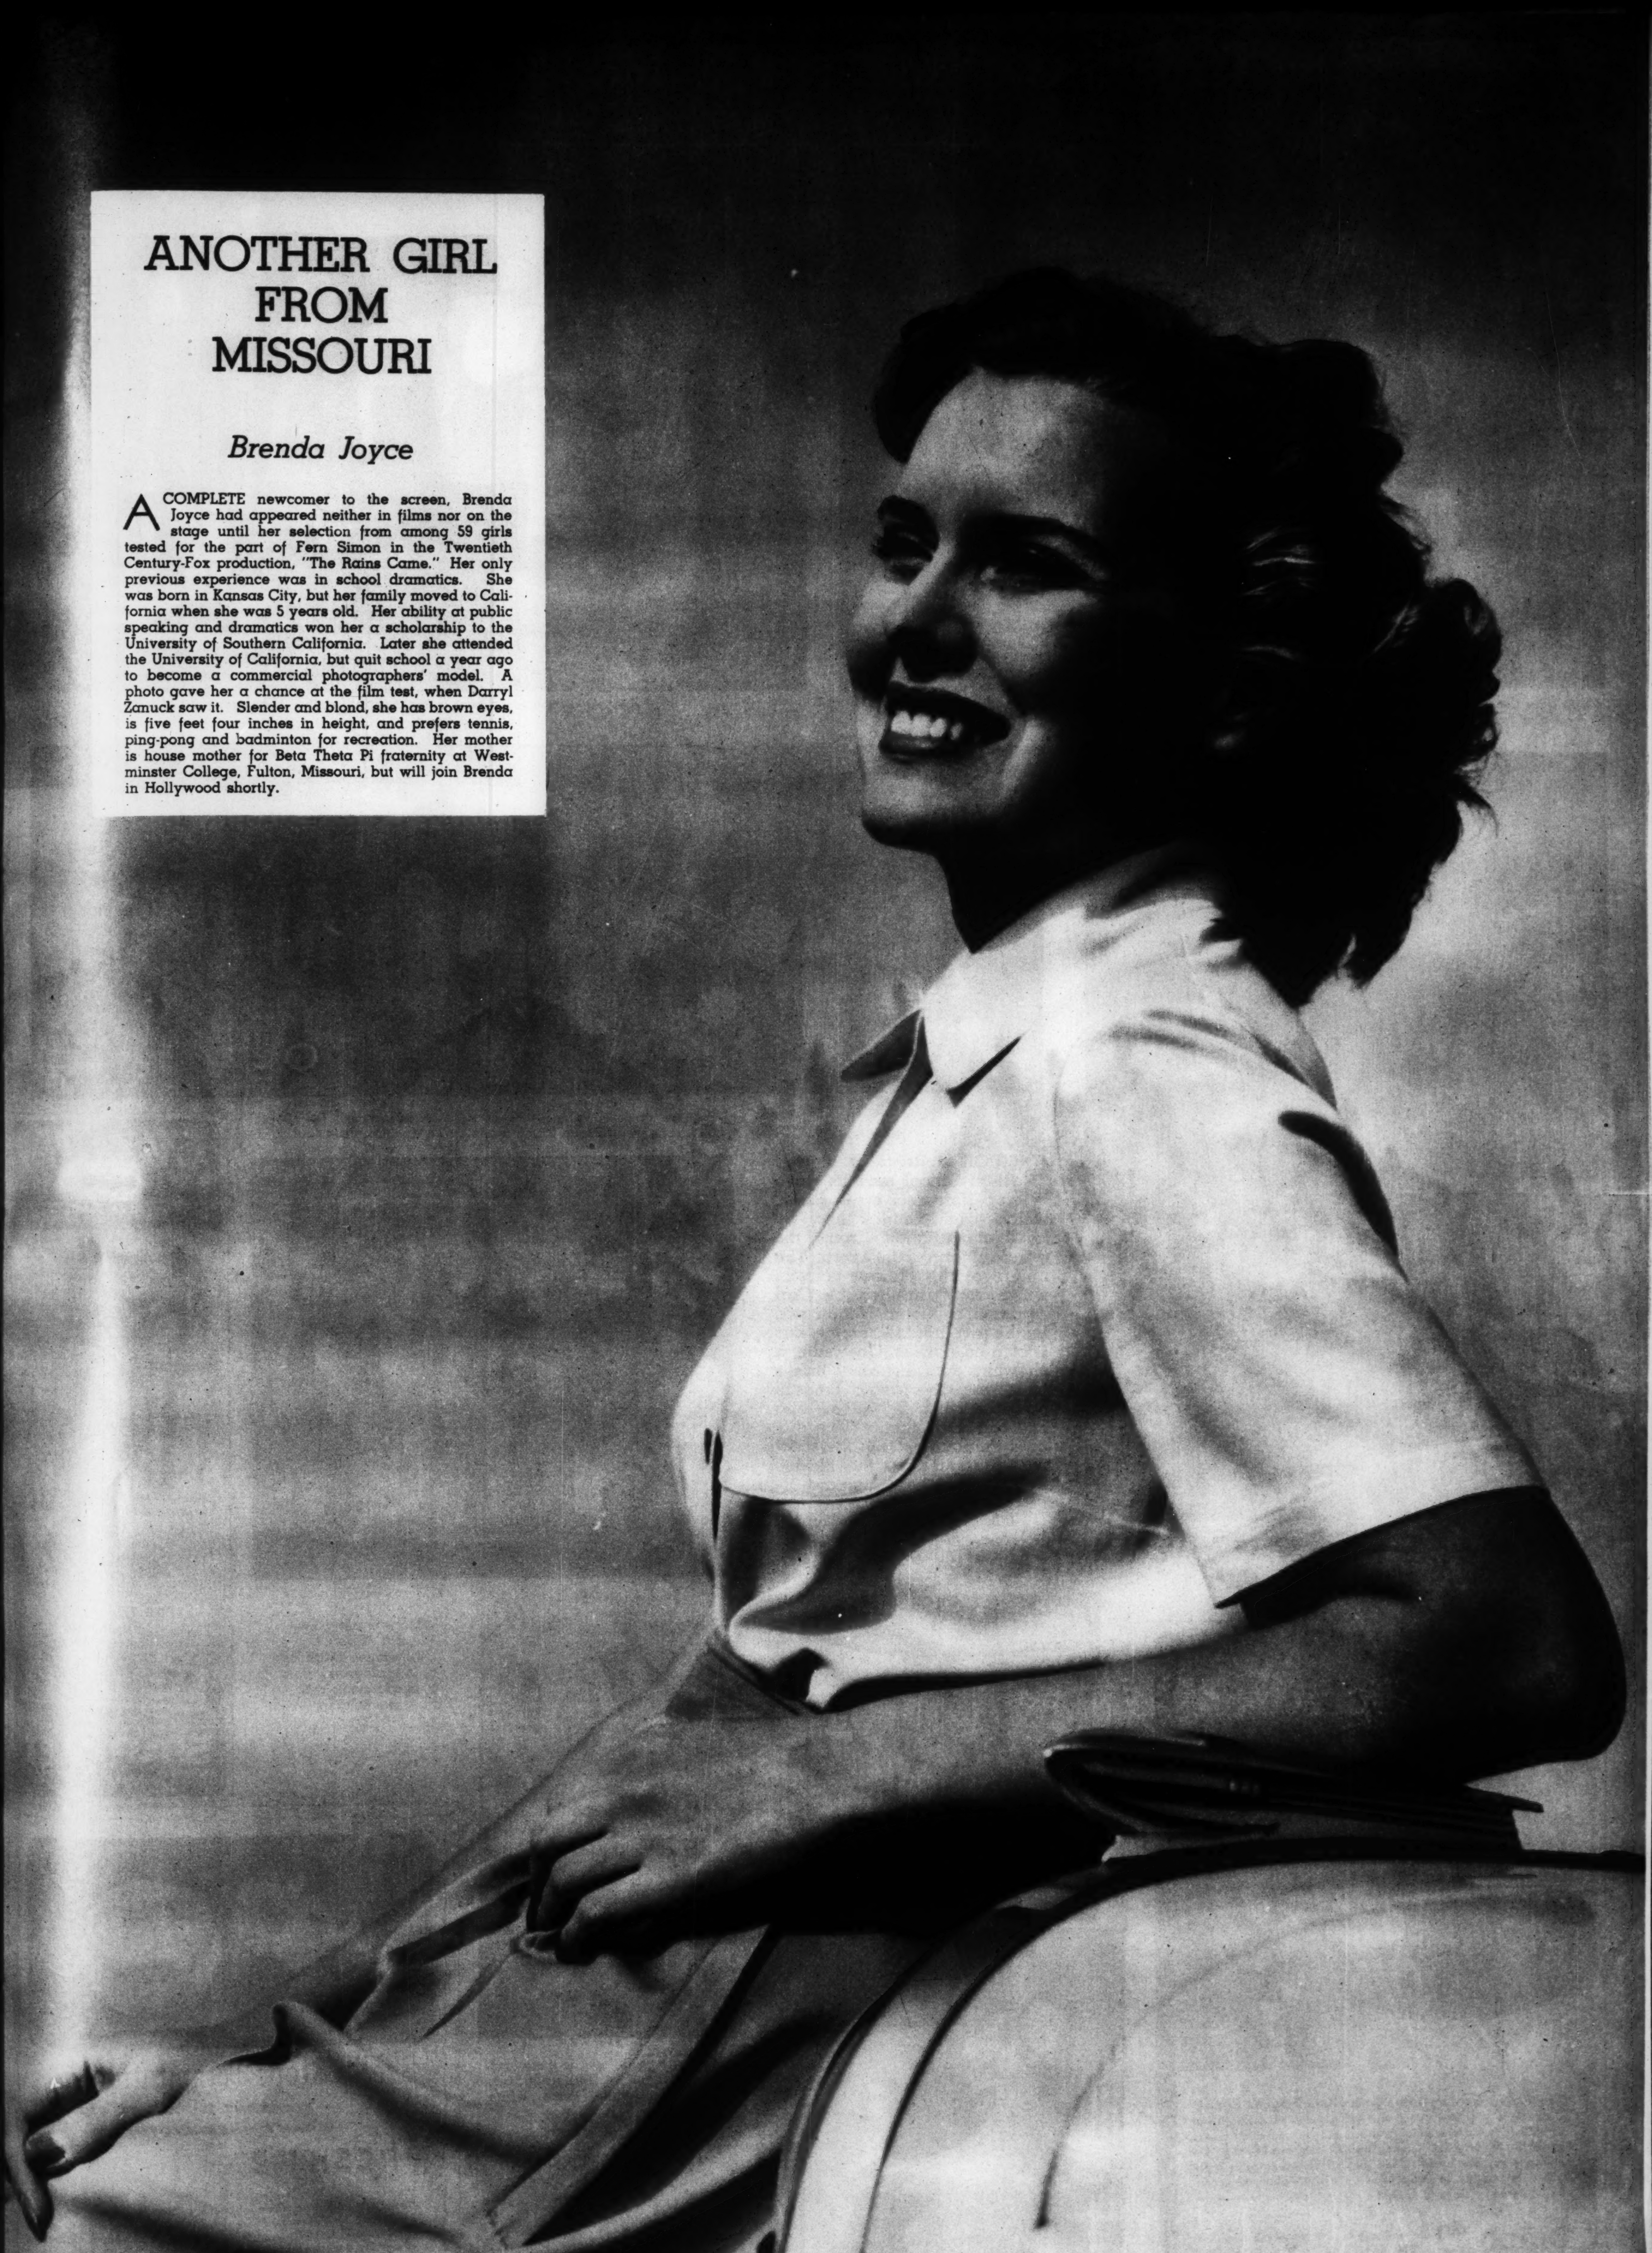


The contents of a dummy shampoo packet expose the "Armistice Day" of November 10, 1938, when a widespread, concerted pogrom was carried out against German Jews. It describes in detail the actual lootings, burnings, killings, arrests and destruction of that day and the following night.

ANOTHER GIRL FROM MISSOURI

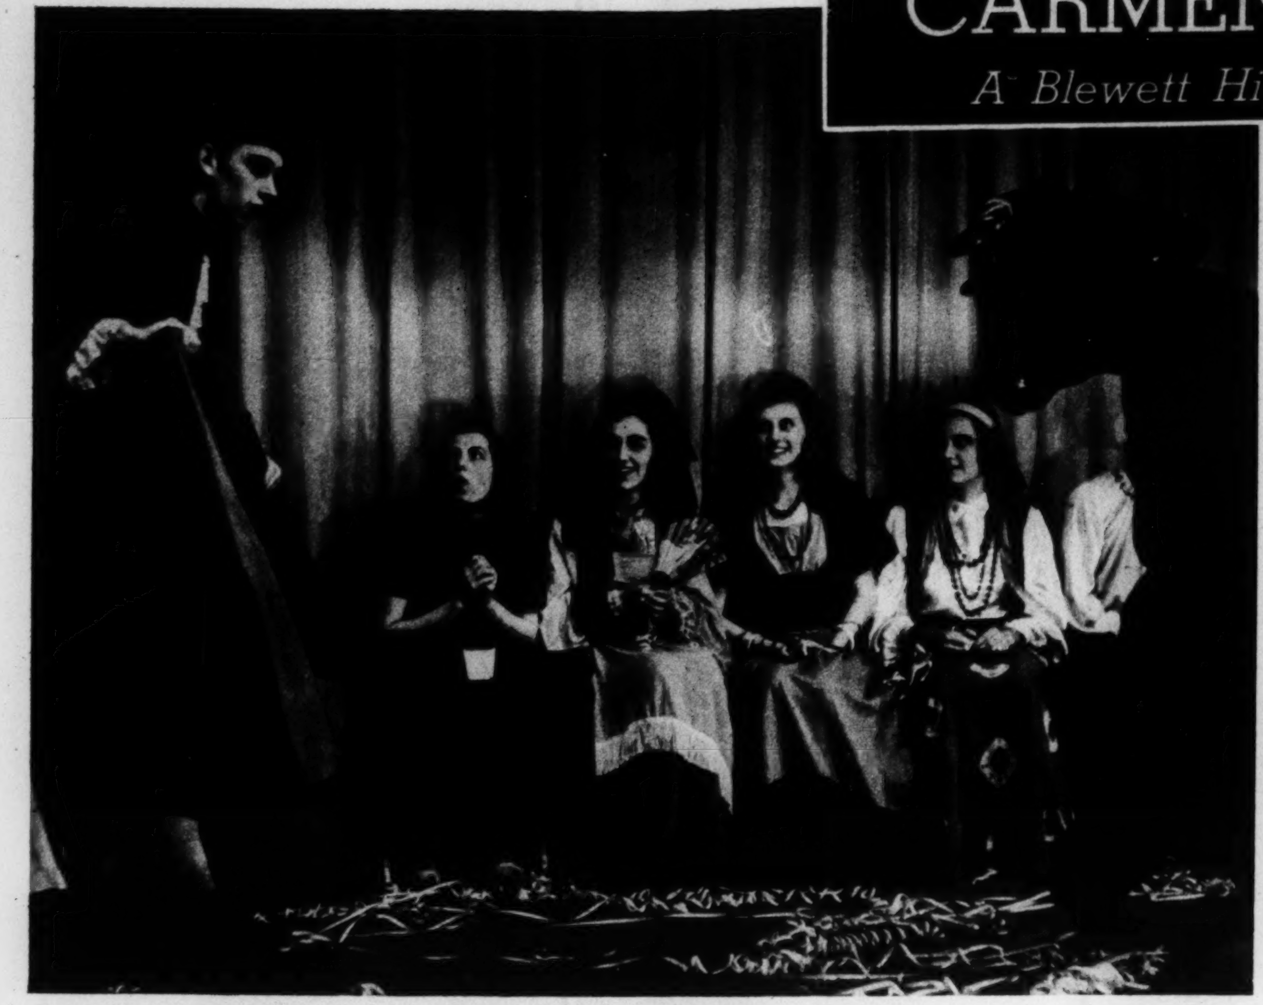
Brenda Joyce

A COMPLETE newcomer to the screen, Brenda Joyce had appeared neither in films nor on the stage until her selection from among 59 girls tested for the part of Fern Simon in the Twentieth Century-Fox production, "The Rains Came." Her only previous experience was in school dramatics. She was born in Kansas City, but her family moved to California when she was 5 years old. Her ability at public speaking and dramatics won her a scholarship to the University of Southern California. Later she attended the University of California, but quit school a year ago to become a commercial photographers' model. A photo gave her a chance at the film test, when Darryl Zanuck saw it. Slender and blond, she has brown eyes, is five feet four inches in height, and prefers tennis, ping-pong and badminton for recreation. Her mother is house mother for Beta Theta Pi fraternity at Westminster College, Fulton, Missouri, but will join Brenda in Hollywood shortly.



CARMEN a la Mode

A Blewett High School Travesty



Escamillio, the toreador, played by Carl Zytowski, faces the bull, played by Anne Bayha, in the Blewett High School production of "Carmen."

A scene in Act I. The setting is a square in Seville. The girl with suitcase is Grace Ulrich in the part of an American tourist.

SENIOR students of Blewett High School recently gave a performance of "Carmen" which was distinguished by notable variation from the standard form of the opera. The nature of the Blewett version, which was arranged by Carl Zytowski, a student, is indicated by the fact that the heroine was known as Carmen Chewsum, a chewing gum heiress. Bizet's music was discarded at times in favor of songs by Gilbert and Sullivan and others. The program announced that the show was presented by the Blewettropolitan Opera Company.

St. Louis Girl Becomes Air Headliner

The one-time Catherine Lorraine Grimm of St. Louis with her vocal coach, Vera McIntyre. The new radio favorite continues her study despite her success.

AMONG the new favorites of the air, on a nation-wide weekly program, is a singer who at her first performance was introduced as Kay Lorraine. In private life, however, she is Mrs. Raymond I. Sweeney, the former Catherine Lorraine Grimm, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Grimm of St. Louis. She is a graduate of Holy Rosary School and of Rosati-Kain High School, where she once was chosen "most popular girl." She made her radio debut here at Station KSD in January, 1935, earned part of her tuition in high school singing with a band over the radio. Her present contract followed auditions in which more than 200 girl singers participated. Before it she sang under the name of Lorraine Grimm. Her husband is with a New York advertising agency.

A bit of romance, by Vernetta Geiler.

IN THE commercial department of Valle High School at Ste. Genevieve, Missouri, students have learned to use their typewriters as instruments of art as well as of commerce. So well have they learned that the school recently wón first place in a nation-wide artistic typewriting contest in which 70 high schools in 36 states competed. Valle High School is maintained by the Ste. Genevieve Catholic parish, and its teachers are Sisters of St. Joseph. The commercial department is in charge of Sister Mary Mercedes. THE ONE-TWO PUNCH

THE one-two punch in boxing—a hard jolt with one hand, usually to the head, followed in a split second by another with the other hand—is one of the most effective means of starting a fighter on the road to victory. How effectively Lou Nova used it in his recent fight with Max Baer to determine the challenger for Champion Joe Louis' heavyweight crown is shown in these pictures. Nova so battered the 30-year-old Baer he was unable to continue in the eleventh round, and Nova, six years younger than Max, was awarded the decision on a technical knockout. For standing up and trying to beat each other to a pulp, each fighter received about $22,000. Television photos of the fight, showing how the pictures were taken, and giving the contrast between them and the orthodox pictures on this page, are continued over.

(International News Photos)

The Nova-Baer Fight as Seen by Television

In the fourth round, as Baer, in a neutral corner, staves off Nova.

Here is where the images started. R. W. Pickard of NBC, at the ringside, trains his television camera on the fight. At Pickard's right Announcer Sam Taub describes the fight over the television microphone.

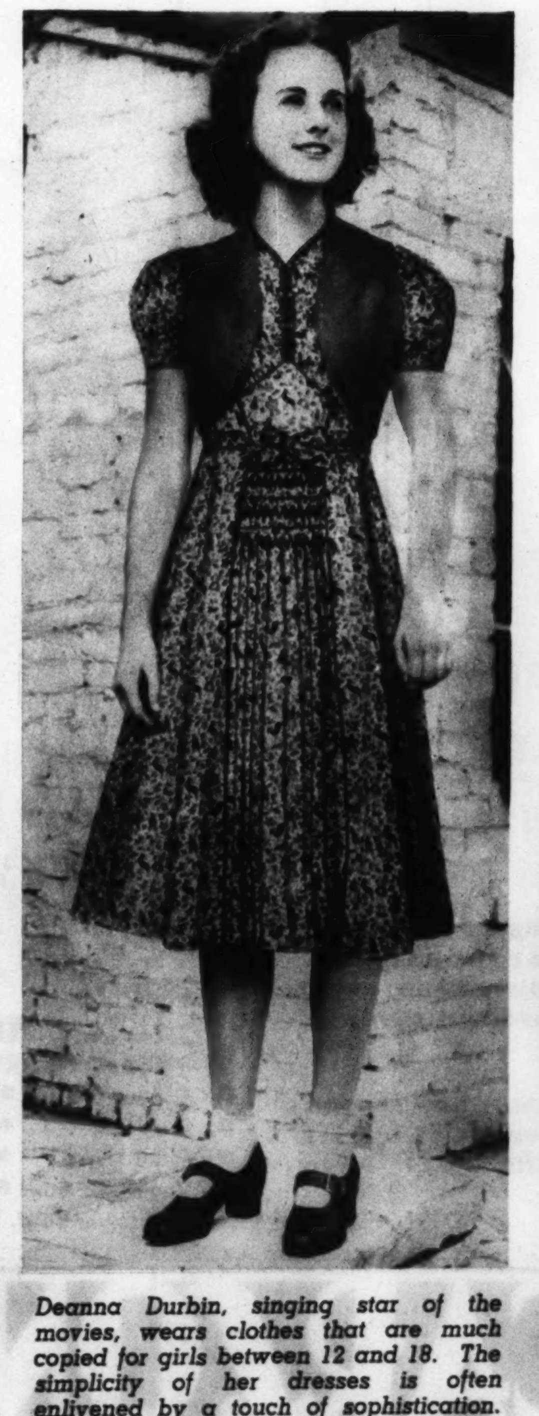
CELEBRITY is a potent style influence in juvenile as well as adult dress. Many styles in children's wear become popular because they are worn by children who have received an unusual amount of public attention. How much of the demand for such fashions arises spontaneously—Mary wants a certain kind of coat because a movie starlet or a little princess has one—and how much is created by the purveyor probably no one knows exactly. At any rate, the youngsters shown on this page are among the leading juvenile style setters.

(Register and Tribune Syndicate Photos)



Deanna Durbin, singing star of the movies, wears clothes that are much copied for girls between 12 and 18. The simplicity of her dresses is often enlivened by a touch of sophistication. She is shown in a sleeveless jacket—designed to conceal her increasing maturity—which is said to have started the bolero vogue.

"Sistie" Dahl, granddaughter of President Roosevelt and a style setter, wearing a black coat with princess silhouette.

3 THINGS YOU DESIRE NOW IN NEW SHAMPOO

Sparkle for even dry hair, manageability, with no scalp irritation, are all 3 now possible with an amazing new shampoo discovery!

HAVE you ever gazed in envy at some other woman and said to yourself, "Why wasn't I born with hair like that?" But don't blame your Fate. Just read on carefully and discover how old-style shampoos may be cheating your hair of its natural beauty. What's more important, your hair has such an electric effect on the rest of your make-up.

Picture yourself entering a roomful of people. Because of a new discovery in Halo Shampoo your hair now dances with dazzling highlights. It casts subtle overtones on to your skin, giving your complexion softer, more transparent color. You read in the eyes of every man around that the total effect is perfect!

Now why couldn't old-style shampoos do this? Because old-style shampoos so often leave an unrinsable film of soap or oil to actually dull the hair and cover up its natural brilliance. That's why women used to need a lemon or vinegar rinse. Why your hair so often looked dull and dead, stringy and unmanageable.

How lucky for all women that a scientist made this discovery now in Halo Shampoo—a way to make rich, creamy shampoo lather without the use of either soap or oil.

Here at last is the perfect shampoo for dry, oily or normal hair. One shampoo with Halo demonstrates perfectly how it removes all trace of dull film left by old-style shampoos. How radiant and full of luster it leaves your hair, eliminating any need for lemon or vinegar rinse. How silky-soft and manageable it leaves even "wild" hair. How clean and fragrant your scalp, without irritation. In fact, even loose, flaky dandruff is safely removed.

Buy Halo from any drug, department or 10¢ store in the 10¢, 50¢ or $1.00 size. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau.

Girl Students in a Chocolate Pie Duel

MISS ANNA HOLSTEAD and Miss Varnelle Plastow, senior and sophomore, respectively, at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston, fell out over Miss Plastow's criticism of one of Miss Holstead's literary efforts. Miss Plastow said that it "smelled." They decided to settle their quarrel by a duel. On the morning after Miss Holstead's graduation they met at dawn behind the school stadium and fought it out with chocolate pies at 10 paces. Miss Holstead was declared winner because she emerged less smeared than her opponent.

© NYWF 1939

Proved the one best bread by 490,850 women who have compared them all

NEVER before has such a vast army of women so clearly shown their preference for any one bread!

Just look at the record! To date, 542,909 women have judged all good bread in their food stores by the famous "Compare All" Test for bread quality.

And—nine times as many chose Slo-Baked Wonder Bread as all other breads combined!

Try Wonder Bread yourself! We believe that once you discover its delicious "wheaty" flavor... its smooth, soft texture... its fine appetizing aroma... you, too, will agree that Wonder Bread is the One Best Bread!

And remember, on every loaf of Wonder Bread you get the amazing 3-7-11 Wonder Menus.

WHAT THE 3-7-11 WONDER MENUS CAN DO FOR YOU AND YOUR FAMILY

Too many Americans—no matter how much they spend for food—do not get the proper food essentials . . . food essentials so necessary to build vitality and energy . . . to build resistance against disease . . . to build radiant, buoyant well-being.

Now on every loaf of Wonder Bread come the remarkable 3-7-11 Wonder Menus . . . a new set each week.

They give you scientifically planned, low-cost meals that supply in everyday foods these 3 essential food groups: carbohydrates, fats, proteins; the 7 well-known vitamins; and the 11 minerals your family needs to be well and happy, ready for work and eager for play.

FIGHT THAT "TIRED FEELING"!

If you have ever felt "run-down"—not ill—out of sorts, too tired after the day's work for fun and good times, then the 3-7-11 Wonder Menus may make an astonishing difference in the way you feel! For the amazing 3-7-11 Wonder Menus tell you how to get all the vital food essentials plus the food-energy you must have to feel fit, energetic, full of life all the time.

BUILD STRONG, STURDY BODIES

Every mother wants her children to be strong and sturdy . . . to have sound bones and teeth . . . to be chock-full of energy. So the 3-7-11 Wonder Menus are scientifically designed to give your children the iron, calcium, vitamins and all the other natural food essentials they must have to grow up mentally alert and physically sound.

RESISTANCE AGAINST GERMS AND SICKNESS

Colds, influenza, many other germs and illnesses are all around us. To combat them . . . to help resist them when they strike . . . you must, authorities agree, build up your vitality and strength. The 3-7-11 Wonder Menus provide a splendid way to help you do this . . . to help you get the energy-giving, resistance-building vitamins, minerals, proteins and other body-strengthening food essentials you need to fight germs and sickness.

TAILSPIN TOMMY

UNDER MYSTERIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES, THE SILVER HAWK-T. P. 32, NEW TYPE SPEED PLANE DESIGNED BY THREE-POINT ENGINEERS FOR MILITARY PURPOSES, BURST INTO FLAMES AT A HIGH ALTITUDE, WHILE BAXTON, TEST PILOT, WAS PUTTING THE SHIP INTO A TERMINAL VELOCITY DIVE FOR INSPECTION OF NAVAL OFFICERS. BAXTON COULD NOT RENDER A SATISFACTORY EXPLANATION OF WHY, OR HOW, THE CRAFT CAUGHT FIRE, AND HERB DECIDES TO INVESTIGATE THE SMOLDERING WRECKAGE.
LOOK HERE, PAUL! WHAT DO YOU MAKE OF THIS HOLE UNDER THE INSTRUMENT PANEL?
IT IS POWDER!
AND I'M SATISFIED THAT A BULLET MADE THAT HOLE, PERHAPS AN INCENDIARY ONE
BUT.. HOW COULD THAT HAVE HAPPENED, PAUL, UNLESS SOMEONE UP THERE TRIED TO SHOOT BAXTON DOWN?
IF BAXTON HAD A "DOG FIGHT" UP THERE, HE'S A MODEST HERO. HE DIDN'T REPORT IT TO ME, HERB LET'S FIND HIM..HE MAY HAVE THE ANSWER TO THIS!
MEANWHILE, TOMMY..
HOW LONG ARE YOU THUGS GOING TO KEEP ME HERE?
UNTIL YOUR BOSS DECIDES TO QUIT TEST-HOPPIN' THAT NEW MYSTERY PLANE OF..
SHUT UP, YOU DOPE! DO YOU WANTA SPILL TH' BEANS?
